

Hutzel Awarded Top Ag Honors

Donald Hutzel, fifth semester animal husbandry major, was awarded the top honor Saturday afternoon in the annual Little International Livestock Show in the Ag Hill pavilion. Hutzel was chosen grand champion showman. Reserve champion showman went to Ned Sitler, sixth semester animal husbandry major.

Drill Team Places 2nd In Meet

Company B-5 of the University won second place in the basic standard drill division of the Pershing Rifles Fifth Regimental Drill meet Saturday.

Eric Taylor, fourth semester aeronautical engineering major, was named outstanding cadet of Company B-5. The awards were made at a banquet in the Hetzel Union Ballroom, Saturday night. Company B-5, of the University was host to the meet.

Company Q-5, Pennsylvania Military College, took two first place honors. The PMC company took first place in the advanced trick drill and basic standard drill divisions.

University of Pennsylvania's Company G-5 was named outstanding company of the year in Pershing Rifles, Fifth Regiment; Company W-5, Villanova University took first place in the basic trick drill division; and Duquesne University won the rifle match.

Awards were made by Col. Jesse Darlington, eighth semester animal husbandry major, commander of Fifth Regimental Pershing Rifles headquarters.

More than 500 men, representing 17 out of the 20 companies in the Fifth Regiment, attended the weekend drill meet. All competition was held on Holmes Field in back of the HUB. The rifle match was held in Recreation Hall.

Ayer Confesses Fraternity Theft

Richard Ayer, second semester industrial engineering major, confessed to taking articles and money valued at $48.50, from Alpha Chi Rho fraternity, State College police reported yesterday.

Ayer appeared before Justice of the Peace Guy Mills yesterday on larceny charges. Police said Ayer had been drinking at Alpha Chi Rho and Alpha Chi Sigma houses, and didn't know what he was doing. The student said he didn't need the items.

He was permitted to make restitution and pay costs of $11.30.

Speaking Contest Won By Goldblatt

Sidney Goldblatt, eighth semester pre-medical major, was awarded first place in the John Henry Frizzell Extemporaneous Speaking Contest last night. Edward Wickersham, third semester arts and letters major, took second place.

First prize of $50 and second prize of $25 were awarded by John Henry Frizzell, whom the contest was named. Frizzell, former head of the speech department, retired from the University in 1946. The winners also received the John Henry Frizzell Award of Merit in extemporaneous speaking.

Goldblatt, speaking on "They Die But Once," explained that man may face life with either despair or faith. Everytime a man dispairst, he dies a little, but the valiant who have faith taste of death but once.

Wickersham spoke about "The Educated Farmer." He pointed out that agriculture, which was once important in our country, is now taking a back seat. Reminding us that our University was founded as a Farmers High School, Wickersham expressed his hope that people would recognize the need for more educated men in the field of agriculture.

Other finalists were Joanne Montgomery, "No Man Is an Island," Lucinda Manarin, "The Man Nobody Knows," George Haines, "This Is a Woman's World," and Edward Klevans, "Delinquency: The Tragedy of Our Youth."

Dr. Robert Oliver, head of the Department of Speech, was chairman of the contest. The judges were members of the faculty of the speech department.

The finalists were selected in a semi-final round last week. The competition has been held at the University for more than 75 years and is believed to be the oldest speaking contest of its kind.

HUB May Get Additional Supply Of Shuffleboards

George L. Donovan, director of associated student activities, said Friday that more table shuffleboards might be purchased in the future for the Hetzel Union Building.

Donovan said he is pleased with the interest students have shown in the shuffleboards.

The boards were placed in the HUB as a suggested experiment by Donovan. He said he has not seen them vacant at any time of the day so far, and that he is surprised at the number of students wanting to play.

Donovan reported the shuffleboards in the HUB are the only ones in any student union building, to his knowledge.

Two students became so interested in the game that they prepared a suggested form for rules of the game, a score board, and challenge board. Donovan explained. These items have since been added.

Competition in the show was divided into four categories: cattle, sheep, horses and swine. Hutzel, who showed a white short horn, was both the champion fitter of cattle and the champion showman of cattle. He then competed with the champion showmen of the other three divisions in showing all four animals and wore the grand championship.

Sitler, who showed a Percheron mare, won the reserve champion showman of horses.

Swine Division
In the swine division Robert Dickel, second semester animal husbandry major, was the champion fitter of horses and Joel Colvin, fourth semester animal husbandry major, was the reserve champion fitter of horses. James Ellenberger, sixth semester general agriculture major, was the champion showman of swine and Robert Bishop, fourth semester pre-veterinary major, was the reserve showman.

Other winners in the horse division were Gerald McCammon, sixth semester animal husbandry and Eileen Gible, sixth semester major, champion fitter of horses, zoology major, reserve champion fitter of horses. Nancy Huff, second semester pre-veterinary major, was the reserve champion showman of horses.

Cattle Division
Other winners in the cattle division were Julia Squier, fourth semester home economics major, reserve champion fitter of beef cattle; and Larry Hilgendorf, sixth semester animal husbandry major, reserve champion showman of beef cattle.

In the horse division, Edgar Rits, fourth semester animal husbandry major, was the champion fitter of sheep and Vernon Hazlett, fourth semester animal husbandry major, was the reserve champion fitter of horses. Glenn Gross, eighth semester horticulture major, was the champion showman of sheep and Rits was the reserve champion showman of sheep.

Show Judges
Judges in the show are: Jesse Darlington, Sr., Darling, horses; Arthur Neuenschwander, Anville, Shorthorn and Angus cattle; Lloyd Schmiege, Lancaster County, sheep; Joseph Hay, secretary-fieldman for the Pennsylvania Hereford Association, Hereford cattle; and A. W. Jordan, swine.

Other events in the show were a sheep shearing demonstration by William Kelly, the show manager; a sheep dog demonstration by Carol Shaffner, and an oxen team demonstration by an oxen team owned by Henry Fryer, Hillcrest Farm, Clearfield County.

Froth Boards to Meet

All Froth circulation boards will meet at 6:45 p.m. tomorrow in 317 Willard.

Ackerman Awarded $4000 Cancer Grant

Dr. Eugene Ackerman, assistant professor of physics, has been awarded a second $4000 grant-in-aid from the American Cancer Society for his research work at the University.

Dr. Ackerman received a similar award last year for studies on the enzyme systems of the blood cells to enlighten the processes of growth. The new grant, which he will receive July 1, will be used to further these studies.

Dr. Harriet Harry, president of the Centre County Cancer Society, presented a certificate to Dr. Ackerman yesterday for his work in the field of cancer research.

Thirteen grants have been announced for research projects by the Pennsylvania division of the ACS, Dr. Harry said. The society will finance 305 research projects in 36 states and the District of Columbia, she said.

$2 Million Awarded
More than $2 million has been awarded, effective July 1, by the Cancer Society. It is the first step in a program expected to reach $5,800,000 for the fiscal year, Dr. Harry said.

In addition to the grants-in-aid, the society's total budget for this year will include $2 million for institutional grants, $2 million for fellowships, and $1 million for scholarships, she said.

Results of Research of the research, Dr. Harry said, "Pointing to some of the results. We are told that today people are living with cancer who would have died 10 years ago. Some of them have been cured. Others have had precious months added to their lives through the use of chemicals or hormones."

Dr. Ackerman said he plans to develop apparatus for studying the effect of temperatures on reaction rates of the enzyme sys-

Cabinet to Make 21 Appointments Thursday Night

Twenty-one students will be appointed to committees by the All-University Cabinet at its meeting Thursday night.

The following students will be appointed to Traffic Court—seniors: John Riggs; juniors: Richard Kurtz, Samuel Kahn, Steven Jordan, and Harry Martini; sophomores: Thomas Cross and Leo Smith.

Co-chairmen of the freshman customs board will be Margaret Boyd and Herbert Black; other members of the board will be: Carole Ruff, Katherine Dickson, Mary Lockwood, Harry Oxman, Edgar Palmer, and George Will.

Campus Chest Chairman will be John Riggs.

Students handbook appointments will be: Dorothy Stone, editor; Ronald Gatehouse, managing editor; and Inez Althouse, copy editor.

Robert Heck will be appointed Centennial Committee chairman.

Observations are now being made of the differences that occur in the enzyme reactions when the viscosity of the surrounding medium is altered, he said.
