

Gallagher to Reign Over May Court

By DODI JONES

Faith Gallagher, eighth semester arts and letters major, will be crowned May Queen today by Patricia Ellis, former Women's Student Government Association president, at ceremonies beginning at 3:30 p.m. on the lawn in front of Old Main.

The event will begin with the arrival of two rollocking jesters, followed by the sound of the heralds' trumpets.

The procession of nine former May Queens, headed by Sara Cushman, Women's Recreation Association vice president, and ten past WSGA presidents, led by Margaret Forster, WSGA vice president, will start from the steps of Old Main.

They will be followed by the hemlock chain, composed of 36 women, the 20 women of the honor arch, eight class attendants dressed in pastel gowns, the WSGA and WRA presidents, a representative of the University Christian Association, two flower girls, the Freshman Maid of Honor, and, finally, the May Queen.

Miss Gallagher will wear a white, eyelet organdy gown with a square neckline, wide straps, and a full, unpleated skirt.

Attendants Named

Attending her will be Nancy Scofield and Rosemary Short, senior attendants; Cecelia Yarnall and Mary Spangler, junior attendants; Sandra Stover and Anne Cain, sophomore attendants; Avis Dungleberger and Eleanor Woodward, freshman attendants; and Freshman Maid of Honor Katherine Dickson.

After the folk dances, Tau Kapa Epsilon, fraternity winner of the IFC-Panhel Sing, will sing two songs, "I Had a Dream, Dear" and "Honey."

Climaxing the festivities will be the winding of the maypoles. Thirty-six freshman and sophomore women will join in the dance, accompanied at the piano by Jane Patton, sixth semester music education major.

The ceremony will close with the traditional recessional.

Spectator seats for the celebration are reserved for parents of students participating in the program.

Frosh Coeds May Sign Up As 'Sisters'

The big sister plan to aid next year's town freshman women, sponsored by Women's Student Government Association Senate, has been opened to freshmen as well as sophomore women.

Interested students may sign up in the dean of women's office, 105 Old Main, until May 14, Jane Patton, WSGA town senator, has announced.

The plan specifies that upperclass women on campus will act as big sisters to the town freshman women. The purpose of the program is to provide general counseling for the town students and to aid them with problems relating to campus life.

Upperclass women acting as big sisters will spend an average of two hours a week with their town sister.

Several town women will also be available to help with problems relating specifically to the town student.

Miss Patton explained that this system will help freshman women from State College become acquainted with campus life and aid in adjusting to college.

The program will go into effect when the upperclass women return to campus in the fall.
