

Case Paintings Are Exhibited In HUB Display

"Thirteen Paintings," the work of Andrew W. Case, professor of fine arts and chairman of the fine and applied arts section, is now on display in the Hetzel Union Building.

The exhibition, which went on display Saturday and is the first one-man exhibit to be held in the HUB, includes eleven oils and two water colors. Except for one painting, all are shown for the first time.

One of the paintings has a local scene for its theme. It is a canvas titled, "Bellefonte," a semi-abstract presentation of a view along Spring Creek.

Of the thirteen pictures, seven are religious subjects.

A graduate of the School of Fine and Applied Arts of Pratt Institute, Case received his bachelor of science and master of science degrees from the University. He also worked for a time with Paul Daubner, a Hungarian ecclesiastical painter.

Prior to his appointment to the faculty at the University, Case was supervisor of art education for two years in the St. Clair public schools.

Contestants in the Ugly Man contest may pick up their pictures at the Student Union desk.

Customs to Follow Centennial Theme

Student Centennial Committee decided Sunday to carry the Centennial theme throughout freshman customs next fall. The theme will be used for the fall activities of the University, according to Robert Heck, chairman of the committee.

Heck reported that the committee will attempt to condense the pertinent facts concerning the University and its history on one page of the Handbook. This is to help freshmen during the customs period, he said.

Heck also announced the committee has chosen honorary keys for its members. Other business included a report of "Centennial Spree," given by the committee Friday night.

DeJeu to Head Business Society

Paul DeJeu, sixth semester management major, has been elected president of the Society for the Advancement of Management, formerly the Business Management Club.

Other officers are John Weller, vice president; Janice Magavich, secretary; and James Cramer, treasurer.

The Business Management Club became affiliated with the national Society for the Advancement of Management, and has assumed that name.

Door Checking Plan Abandoned By Pattee Library

Pattee Library will not inaugurate a system of door checking in the immediate future, Ralph W. McComb, University librarian, announced yesterday. Such a system has been under consideration as a measure to cut down on the number of missing books.

Librarians have been asked to check more closely on departing students to see if they have forgotten to return any books, but there will be no guards posted at any of the doors. The library's present budget prevents such a system, and a good location for such guards is also a problem. While this step might be taken next year, it will not be made without posting proper warning signs.

McComb emphasized that few students intentionally take books. Most losses occur from absent-minded students who are too busy to charge them out, he said.

Watkins' Art on Exhibit

A large still life painting by Franklin Watkins is on exhibition in the second floor lounge of Old Main. It is one of the nine suggestions for a senior class gift.

The painting, which is an outstanding example of Watkins' work in still life, was brought to the campus by the University Art committee. It will be on exhibition for several weeks.

Hess Will Speak To Service Wives

Colonel Dean Hess of the United States Air Force will speak to the service wives orientation class at 8:30 tonight in the Mineral Sciences auditorium.

Colonel Hess, who left the ministry and became a Korean War hero, will speak on "Opportunities for Greater Service in the World Community." A film of his experiences is being made by Universal-International Studios.

Colonel Hess, now assigned to the Pentagon, is acting as adviser for the film. The money he receives from the film will go to the Orphans' Home of Korea, which figures prominently in the film.

AIM Meeting Cancelled

The Board of Governors of the Association of Independent Men will not meet tonight, according to Bruce Lieske, AIM president.

Yale Prof to Speak In Lecture Series

Dr. Oystein Ore, professor of mathematics at Yale University, will speak on "Early History of Probability" at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in 105 Mechanical Engineering.

His talk is the second of the Centennial series sponsored by the department of mathematics.
