

Senior Prom Tickets Go on Sale—Hefti to Play

Neal Hefti will play at the Senior Prom from 9 to 1 tonight in Recreation Hall. Tickets will be on sale at 9 a.m. today at the Hetzel Union desk and at the door tonight. Price is $5 per couple.

Hefti, only 33 years old, is a seasoned veteran with almost 15 years of name band experience as arranger, soloist, instrumentalist, conductor, and radio and television work. He has also done recording work as instrumentalist, conductor, and arranger.

Trustees May Air New School

Creation of a school of journalism and bids for the construction of the Helen Eaken Eisenhower Memorial Chapel are expected to be discussed by the Executive Committee of the University's Board of Trustees at its meeting tonight.

Plans for construction of new dormitories on the campus may also be a topic of discussion.

Selection of a head of the school of journalism and of department heads and the school's overall program are expected to be on the agenda.

A five-man committee was appointed by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower early in the fall to discuss the possibility of establishing a school of journalism. The University now has a department of journalism in the Liberal Arts college.

Members of the committee are Ben Euwema, dean of the Liberal Arts college, chairman; Richard C. Maloney, assistant dean of the college; Dr. James W. Markham, associate professor of journalism, and Lawrence Dennis, administrative assistant to the president.

The committee submitted its report and recommendations to President Eisenhower early this week.

Bids on the chapel were due yesterday. President Dwight D. Eisenhower will lay the cornerstone for the first unit of the chapel, a meditation chapel, when he visits the University to deliver the commencement address on June 11.

The chapel was dedicated at ground-breaking ceremonies on Feb. 22, during Centennial celebrations.

Student Struck by Car, Borough Police Report

A University student was injured when he was struck by a car at the intersection of Atherton street and College avenue Tuesday night, borough police said yesterday.

Paul Simonetti, junior in chemical engineering from Altoona, suffered possible rib and arm injuries, and a mild case of shock. He was examined at the scene by a State College physician who passed by, and was taken to the University Hospital where he was released.

Awards to Be Offered By Scholarship Fund

The Penn State Student Scholarship Fund is offering awards to regular four year students with a 1.5 All-University average, who have been on campus for at least one academic year as of June 1955. Applying students are required to continue part time work to help with their education. They must show evidence of financial need, and good character.

Applications may be obtained from the Hetzel Union desk and must be returned by Thursday, May 19.

Andrew Carnegie visited the University November 18, 1904 to dedicate the Library.

AIM Judicial Board Forms Due Tomorrow

Tomorrow is the deadline for applications for the Association of Independent Men's Judicial Board of Review.

Applications are available at the Hetzel Union desk, and from the dormitory counselors. Independent men with at least a 1.0 All-University average are eligible for application.

AIM-Leonides Tickets Stolen From Booth

Between 1000 and 2000 tickets were stolen Wednesday night from the Association of Independent Men-Leonides booth at Spring Week Carnival, according to John Carlson, president-elect of West Halls Council.

Carlson said the tickets, which were in a paper bag behind the counter, were grabbed when the lights went off for a few seconds about 10 p.m.

Carlson said the thieves may have been two high school students, who were seen in the booth before the lights went out, but who were missing when the power resumed. One student was wearing a derby, Carlson said.

Under the new system, an organization receives no points for tickets collected over the number of 225.

Two Ag Seniors Receive Awards

Two agriculture seniors have been given scholarships and awards, Dr. Russell B. Dickerson, director of resident instruction, has announced.

Samuel Smith, a senior in agricultural and biological chemistry from Lock Haven, is the first University winner of the National Alpha Zeta award of $1500. Smith was also one of two students to receive the John W. White Fellowship of $600. The award is an All-University selection.

Bruce Schwalm, a senior in agricultural engineering from Valley View, was named winner of the Evan Pugh Medal for seniors.

Last Music Recital Set for Saturday

Students of voice, piano, and violin in the music and music education departments will present their final recital of the year at 4:15 p.m. Monday in 117 Carnegie.

Harryette Gerhart, sophomore in music education from Arlington, Va., will sing an original song by Carson Rothrock, junior in education from Tyrone. She will be accompanied on the piano by James Madenfort, senior in music education from State College.

Photographer's Annual Includes 2 Professors

Dr. George Johnson, professor of agricultural extension, and Nora Wittman, assistant professor of German, have been included in "Who's Who in Exhibition Photography for 1955."

The list is published annually in the PSA journal which is published by the Photographic Society of America.

Both names are included in Who's Who in Color while Johnson is also listed in Who's Who in Nature.

Lantern on Sale Today

Lantern, liberal arts magazine, will be sold today at the Hetzel Union desk. Price is 50 cents.

Arrangements by Hefti have been in demand for several years. He has conducted recording dates for Nat King Cole, Frank Sinatra, Eileen Barton, Frances Wayne, and others. He has conducted the "Toast of the Town" television show and the "Arthur Godfrey Show" on radio and television.

Joins Woody Herman

In 1944, Hefti joined the Woody Herman orchestra and the next year was responsible for writing several of the most famous numbers the band ever produced including "Caldonia," "The Good Earth," "Wildroot," "Apple Honey," and "Northwest Passage."

Hefti has achieved considerable fame in New York through his work with the "Arthur Godfrey Show" as well as doing numerous dates for himself and for other artists.

Early this year Hefti decided to start a band of his own that could play anything from "swing to ballads." He then spent months preparing to make a debut as an orchestra.

Other Top Bands

Other top dance bands which Hefti has played with are Horace Heidt, Charlie Barnet, and Charlie Spivak. He has recorded two long playing albums: "Swinging on Cofal Reef" and "Singing Instrumentals."

The Princeton Nassoons, also included in the program tonight, will not be present due to unavoidable circumstances. Theta Kappa Phi fraternity was sponsoring the band, which was scheduled to play during intermission.

Decorations for the dance will follow the carnival theme of Spring Week. Colored awnings will extend from the walls. Clown figures will decorate the walls in addition to the awnings. A blue ceiling will have rows of colorful banners.

Spring Week Trophies

Trophies for the Spring Week activities will be presented during intermission, about 10:30. Joseph Barnett, chairman of Spring Week, will present the trophies to the winners.

Dance programs will be in blue and gold. A couple in colonial dress and a shield with 1955 will decorate the cover.

Members of the dance committee are Richard Hurlbrink, chairman, Ann Lofquist, Eleanor McKenzie, Eleanor Gwynn, Joan Gillette, and Richard Gordan.

The system of coat checking which was started at the Interfraternity Council dance will be used tonight also. Under this system more checking rooms and more attendants are used.

Refreshments will be served throughout the evening.

Camera Club Meeting Tuesday

The Camera Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in 213 Hetzel Union to elect officers.

Hearing Held for Four

State College police pressed charges at a hearing yesterday against four University students involved in the hassle with Bellefonte and State College police early Wednesday morning.

Robert Hawk, senior in arts and letters from Petrolia; Robert Larson, junior in business administration from State College; Chester Leone, junior in business administration from Kittanning; and John Hayes, senior in education from Elmira, N.Y., had been fined Wednesday night by Bellefonte police for violations committed while the men were still in Bellefonte.

According to State College police, Hawk pleaded guilty to charges of disorderly conduct and failing to yield the right of way to a patrolman. He was fined $60 and costs for the two violations. Hawk pleaded not guilty to the charge of resisting arrest. He must appear before the September session of county court.

Larson, Leone, and Hayes pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct charges. Larson and Leone were each fined $25 and costs; Hayes was fined $15 plus costs.

At a preliminary hearing, Hawk was found guilty of drunken driving; Leone and Larson, guilty of disorderly conduct and resisting arrest; and Hayes, guilty of disorderly conduct.

The incident began late Tuesday night in Bellefonte. Bellefonte police said the four students—passengers in Hawk's car—were driving recklessly through Bellefonte streets. When police tried to hail the car, the men refused to stop, and drove toward State College. The Bellefonte police radioed ahead to State College police, who intercepted the students as they drove into the borough.

Attempts by State College police to stop the car failed at first. They forced the students' car off the road. As the three cars stopped on a by-pass near the

University to Admit 3600 Frosh in Fall

Although 6051 Pennsylvania high school students have applied for entrance into the University for the fall semester, only 3600 will be admitted as freshmen, Dean of Admissions C. O. Williams has announced.

Of these, only 500 freshman women will be enrolled on the main campus. The quota has already been filled, forcing 225 extra freshman women to enroll at University centers to fill a total quota of 725, Williams said.

However, next fall's quota is 100 short of last fall's when 600 freshman women were admitted to the main campus.

A 2000 quota of male freshmen to be admitted to the campus next fall has almost been filled, Williams said. Students still filing applications may enroll at the centers, which will accept 875 freshman men.

Last Spring's Applications

The total number of applications received so far is about 700 more than the 5360 received last spring at this time, according to Williams.

Last week, Dean of Women Pearl O. Weston said that there would be no change in the enrollment of freshman women for the fall semester, contrary to Williams' report of a cut of 100 high school graduates.

Williams cited two reasons why fewer freshman women will be admitted. They are:

High School Standing

1. The University has been admitting women with high standing in their high school classes because of limited quotas. As a result, the number of women students dropped during the year has decreased.

2. Also because of the small quotas, women who were not admitted to the campus for the last two years enrolled at the six centers. Now they must be admitted to the University to complete their junior and senior years.

Williams said he believes the expected upsurge in University enrollment has begun to set in, and he cited the admission problem of women students as especially critical because they are almost entirely limited to living in University dormitories.

Future Improvement

Thinking of future improvement of the problem, Williams cited the plans which are currently being drawn up for dormitories planned to hold 1000 women. Thompson Hall, a dormitory built for men, is helping the situation by housing 432 women students, he said.

Men and women students who applied for the main campus and were placed at centers instead will be given preference in filling vacancies resulting from late cancellations. Among these students, greater preference will be given to women who have an older sister or brother on campus or who are daughters of University alumni, Williams said.

Bock Painting in Exhibit

A painting by Walter Bock, graduate student in art education from Pine Grove Mills, is included with paintings selected for exhibition in the reception room of the president's office in Old Main.

Centennial

Students Strike for Class Cuts

The most famous student-faculty disagreement in the University's history occurred in 1905 when the student body staged what is known as the "great strike."

Cause of the trouble was the general feeling among the men that the rule regarding class attendance was too rigid.

The feeling boiled over when a faculty notice forbade students to use any of their six per cent allowed absences within 24 hours before or after vacations.

Send Petition

The upperclassmen sent in a petition asking for a modification of the ruling, but it was rejected by the faculty because it sounded more like a demand than a request. The students countered by sending an ultimatum to the effect that if favorable action was not taken, they would take independent action.

When no reply was received, the men held a mass meeting and voted to refuse to attend classes. Again the faculty stood its ground and refused to receive a committee of students as long as they were in revolt. A second secret ballot among the students showed only 17 wished to return to classes.

Committee Meets

Finally the situation was eased when a trustee-alumni committee met with the faculty and the student committees to arbitrate the difficulty. They decided, if the students would return to classes, there would be no retaliatory measures and their grievance committees could have more ready access to the administration.

The following morning the students, after having missed 10 days of classes, returned to their studies. The "great strike" was over.

Summer Sessions Forms Are Ready

Official registration forms for the 1955 Summer Sessions have been distributed to the deans' offices, according to Marion R. Trabue, dean of summer sessions.

On-campus students who wish to obtain advance approval of their programs of study for the summer must do so before May 18. When such approval is not obtained, registration must be completed in full on the official day of registration for the respective sessions in which the student wishes to enroll.

Students must obtain the approval of their official faculty adviser, and graduate students must also obtain approval from the dean of the graduate school.

Thornton, Hill Awarded $350 in Ag Scholarships

John Thornton, junior in general agronomy from Lemont, and Paul Hill, sophomore in agricultural engineering from Spring Mills, have been awarded scholarships through the College of Agriculture.

Thornton was chosen for the $100 KDKA scholarship from Pittsburgh, and Hill was chosen regional winner for the entire northeast in the $250 Sears Roebuck Foundation award.

Cheerleader Tryouts

Tryouts for cheerleaders will be held at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday in front of Old Main.

Second semester freshmen with at least a 1.0 All-University average may try out.
