Summer Dating Code Discussed in IFC

Interfraternity Council last night heard comments from O. Edward Pollock, assistant to the dean of men, in charge of fraternity affairs on the possible revisions of the summer dating code.

Pollock said that he was drawing up a rough draft of the

Fifty Fail To Report To Simes

About 50 out of approximately 100 students who were sent letters by the dean of men's office requiring them to appear at the office for failing to go before Traffic Court had not reported as of noon yesterday, Dean of Men Frank J. Simes said last night.

Yesterday was the deadline for reporting. Simes added that he did not know the final number of students who failed to appear because he had to leave his office early yesterday.

The students, Simes said, are liable to office probation or more severe disciplinary punishment unless they heed the letters.

As yet the students have failed to come before Traffic Court on charges of traffic violations, although they had received several notices to do so.

Traffic Court is a student body which hears cases of students who feel they have been wronged in being tagged by Campus Patrol for violations.

Simes appeared before All-University Cabinet May 5 requesting that some legislation be initiated by the body requiring the students to heed the summonses. Simes later said it would not be necessary for Cabinet to act on the matter since it would be handled by his office.

Simes' ultimatum was handed down after debate by his office on what to do about the problem.

Office probation requires students to report to the dean of men's office for informal talks at certain times as long as the office deems necessary. No permanent record is placed on the student's transcripts.

Pivot Contains Faculty Articles

The Centennial issue of Pivot, the University's poetry magazine, will contain poems written by both students and faculty members. In the past, all contributions were written by students.

The magazine will be on sale from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. today through Thursday on the Mall, in front of the Corner Room, at the Hetzel Union desk, at Grahams, and at the Book Exchange.

The magazine is organized by English composition 13, a poetry workshop. Members of the class will sell the magazine, which costs 25 cents.

Dr. Joseph L. Grucci, assistant professor of English composition, is faculty adviser to the magazine. Gordon Sterner, senior in arts and letters from Plainfield, N.J., is editor; and Ruth Kluger, junior in education from Wyoming, business manager.

Cool Weather, Showers Forecast for Today

Cooler weather with increasing cloudiness and possible afternoon showers is forecast for today by the department of meteorology. Minimum temperatures are expected to be around 40 and the high will be 70.

Yesterday's high was a warm 83 and the low was 47. Today's weather data was compiled by Clarence Sakamoto, senior in meteorology from Honolulu.

Carnival Tickets Not Recovered, Lieske Reports

The approximately 1000 tickets stolen Wednesday night from the Spring Week Carnival booth of the Association of Independent Men and Leonides have not been recovered, according to Bruce Lieske, AIM president.

No further action will be taken on the matter, Lieske added.

The theft, which took place when the lights went out for a few seconds, did not harm the standing of AIM and Leonides since credit was given for only 225 tickets. The booth collected over this number, and the independent student associations went on to take third place in their division of the final Spring Week standings.

It is believed, according to John Carlson, president elect of West Hall's Council, that two high school students stole the tickets. They were seen in the booth when the lights went out, but were missing when the power resumed. "Splitting of the Atom" was the theme for the booth.

Positions Open For Students On WDFM

Students interested in working in any capacity of station operation of campus radio station WDFM may attend a general staff meeting at 7 p.m. tomorrow in 312 Sparks.

Department heads will discuss the work of their respective departments. Students may sign up for the following staffs: announcing, campus and community services, continuity, engineering, music, news, office, promotion, public relations, special events, sports and traffic.

Morton Slakoff, station manager, announced yesterday that the station will broadcast three hours of continuous music from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. during the final exam period.

The three hour program will consist of one hour of popular music, one hour of semi-classical music, and one hour of classical music.

The station will stop broadcasting June 8.

SU Directory Lists Due at HUB Desk

Groups who have not submitted their list of officers for the Student Union Directory must hand them in at the Hetzel Union desk by Saturday. These groups include sororities, fraternities, clubs, honorary societies, and any other organization having officers.

Organizations which do not get their lists in by Saturday will be assumed inactive and no longer be included in the Directory.

Suspension, Probation Recommended for Three By AIM Judicial Board

The Association of Independent Men's Judicial Board of Review last night recommended that a freshman be suspended from the University for one semester.

The student was accused of stealing a chicken from the Poultry Plant with the intention of releasing it in McElwain Hall, early the morning of May 8.

Around 2:50 a.m. that morning campus patrolmen saw two students at the southeast side of McElwain Hall with a chicken. They apprehended one but the other ran away.

The patrolmen required the student to return the chicken. They accompanied him to the Poultry Plant where they found the glass door on one of the pens was broken. The student said that he had nothing to do with this damage but admitted to stealing the chicken.

Planned to Take Cow

The student said he and his cohort had planned to take a cow from the University barns with the intent of tying the animal in the Nittany dining hall. However, he said, they abandoned this plan in favor of stealing the chicken. Two chickens were actually stolen but one got away from the students and was returned to the Poultry Plant the next day.

The chickens were a part of an experimental group being employed by the College of Agriculture. In view of this fact the incident fell out of the class of a prank, according to the dean of men's office. The College of Agriculture is legally able to make a case of breaking and entering, and petty larceny out of the situation.

The dean of men's office said it considered the act a serious setback to important research being financed by the University and the government. The student described the reason for the incident as being "something to do" to break the monotony of the routine.

Begins Next Semester

The recommendation called for suspension from the University for the fall semester of 1955. The student will be eligible to apply for readmission in the spring semester of 1956.

The board also recommended disciplinary probation for two Nittany students for throwing firecrackers in a Nittany dormitory.

The two, both sophomores, were caught by counselors after throwing a firecracker down the hall of a dormitory on the night of May 2. They admitted owning firecrackers and said that they had thrown a firecracker once previously this semester. The student that threw the firecracker got it from his accomplice who owned the firecrackers. The owner said that he was not familiar with the rule prohibiting the use

Retirements Approved For 7 Profs

The University Board of Trustees approved retirements for seven faculty members at the weekend meeting of the executive committee.

Dr. Arnold Currier, professor of chemistry, will retire June 30, with the rank of professor emeritus of chemistry, after 36 years of service.

Dr. Joseph E. DeCamp, professor of psychology, will retire July 1, after 36 years on the faculty. He will be honored with the rank of professor emeritus of psychology.

Charles A. Eder, will also retire June 30 with the rank of professor emeritus of Civil engineering. Eder has served on the faculty for more than 22 years.

Also from the school of Civil engineering, John S. Leister, will retire June 30 with the rank of professor emeritus of civil engineering, after 18 years of service.

Charles R. Gearhart, professor of the dairy science extension, will retire May 1, as professor emeritus of the dairy science extension, after 32 years of service.

Dr. J. Robert Hilgert, associate professor of marketing, will retire, effective July 1, with 21 years of service.

Henry R. Eby, county agricultural agent in Allegheny county, will retire, effective June 1, after more than 33 years of service.

Education College Outstanding Senior Nominations Close

Nomination blanks for the outstanding senior award in the College of Education must be turned in today at the Hetzel Union desk.

Seniors in education may be nominated by both faculty and students, and will be judged by the Education Student Council on the basis of professional and scholastic records, and service to the University.

The name of the outstanding senior will be announced at the council banquet at the Eutaw House tonight. The banquet is held in honor of the newly elected council representatives. Students attending the banquet will meet at 6 p.m. behind Old Main.

The outstanding senior will have his name engraved on a plaque in Burrows and will also receive a gold cup in recognition of his achievement.

Cabinet Agendas Available Today

All-University Cabinet agendas and reports will be available to Cabinet members beginning at 9 a.m. today at the Hetzel Union desk.

Cabinet will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday in 203 Hetzel Union. The Cabinet banquet, which was scheduled for Thursday, has been postponed until next week because it conflicted with the Armed Forces Day parade on Thursday night. Robert Bullock, Interfraternity Council president, said yesterday.

dating code to present to the Senate Committee on Student Affairs tomorrow. There are no major changes in the code, Pollock said.

In the past there could be no unchaperoned dating in a fraternity house during the summer, Pollock said. This policy will probably continue to remain in effect, he added.

No Provisions

At the present time there are no provisions for housemothers to remain in fraternities during the summer, Pollock said, but there is the possibility that in the future some provisions may be made where housemothers may stay during the summer.

The draft will include provisions for the operation of houses where only members stay during the summer, where both members and non-members stay, and where the house is rented to an outside group.

Pollock said that fraternity operations in the summer have not previously involved IFC, as far as he knows.

Probation Possible

Pollock said that there is the possibility that a fraternity could be placed on probation for the fall semester for an adverse incident which occurred during the summer. He said that if the house is rented "you are responsible" for what goes on at the house.

A question was raised from the floor asking why changes such as amendments to the code involving fraternities not go before IFC for action. Pollock said that he was "not in a position to answer that."

Robert Bullock, IFC president, told council members to discuss in their houses the feasibility of big weekend dances on Saturday night instead of Friday night and to find the reactions of house members. Bullock said that the houses could hold jazz sessions on Saturday afternoons and that parties could be held Friday night.

Bullock said, however, that this will probably not go into effect next year since the next year's calendar has already been drawn up.

Senior Class Gift

Ballots for senior class gift suggestions were distributed to the council and members voted for five of the nine gift suggestions listed. Bullock said that the ballots will be turned over to Donald Balthaser, senior class president.

Gift suggestions on the ballot were: furnishings for the social lounge of the All Faith Chapel wing; furnishings for the All Faith Chapel (such as pews, and hymnals); a still-life painting by Franklin Watkins of the Penn.

Germany Protests Pact

VIENNA, Austria, May 16 (AP)—Austria, celebrating her long awaited treaty of independence, ran into trouble with neighboring Germany today.

The first protest about the new pact came while Chancellor Julius Raab was telling reporters he thought the Austrian settlement "may have opened the door somewhat for a solution on Germany."

It was Adolf Hitler's annexation of Austria in 1938 that started 17 years of military occupation for this country. Difficulties between the two arose again today when the West German government protested the "unexpected" way the question of German property had been settled in the new treaty. The protest was made verbally by Dr. Carl Mueller-Graf, Bonn's diplomatic representative in Vienna.

German Property

The treaty specifies that former German property in Austria cannot be returned except if it is individual property worth less than $10,000 or if it belonged to religious, cultural, educational or charitable organizations.

This means German owners can get back none of the great oil fields or industrial plants which the Russians seized as "German assets" in 1945 and which Austria is now having to buy back at a total cost of 150 million dollars.

Territory Involved

In Bonn, a government spokesman could give no immediate indication of how much German property in Austria is involved. He said that, besides a protest to Vienna, the West Germany government is asking the Western Allies for "clarification." Austrian Deputy Chancellor Adolf Schaerf told a news conference today the $10,000 limit was set by the Big Four.

"It is admittedly a big advantage to Austria," he said. At the same time, Schaerf said there was no reason for Austria to compensate the former German owners. "The treaty also contains the stipulation that Austria may not make any claim on the German Reich."

Austrian Claims

He said Austrian claims on Germany could include the funds of Austrian Social Insurance Institutes and compensation for the holders of German state bonds.

West German news correspondents repeatedly questioned Raab
