Panhel to Meet Tonight

Panhellenic Council will meet at 8:30 tonight in 203 Hetzel Union. Representatives should bring a list of advisers and chapter members, alphabetized according to class standing. Joanne Caruso, council president, announced. Money for the Panhellenic banquet is also due tonight.

The interviews will be conducted by the co-advisers of the Flight, Miss Josephine Grossbeck, secretary to President Milton S. Eisenhower, and Mrs. Daniel Riva, wife of the commanding officer of the Air Force unit on campus, and by members of the flight and Arnold Air Society.

Angel Flight, sponsored by the Arnold Air Society in cooperation with the Air Force Reserved Officers Training Corps unit on campus, serves as a women's auxiliary corps for the Air Force ROTC. It was brought to campus last year from the University of Omaha where it originated. The Penn State unit of 55 coeds was first introduced at the 1954 Military Ball. It was the third group of its kind in the country.

Members of Angel Flight will assemble at 4 p.m. today in the Armory in uniform, and again at 7 tonight in the Armory for a business meeting, Miss Lederman has announced.

The group serves as hostesses at Arnold Air Society conventions and at Air Force open houses. They will participate in Armed Forces Day and will in the future act as co-sponsors of Military Ball. In addition, the flight members presented a fashion show for the ROTC wives and last week ushered at the ROTC drill competition.

The Flight does a limited amount of drill for their public appearances. Their uniforms include a dark blue skirt with matching cape and hat, and a white blouse and gloves.

University women interested in the Angel Flight may sign up until 5 p.m. today at the Hetzel Union desk.

Leonides Approves Forum Plan

Leonides voted at their final meeting of the semester last night to approve the recommendation set forth by All-University Cabinet for a series of programs to replace the Community Forum.

The plan as suggested by Cabinet provides that students be assessed fifty cents a semester or one dollar a year through student fees to defray costs of obtaining performers. In addition, students would be charged fifteen cents for each performance.

Leonides members were in favor of these proposals and suggested that this series would probably receive stronger student support than the Community Forum program if a more popular type of entertainment were provided and if more prominent celebrities were scheduled for performances. Leonides members also favored either having the programs in Recreation Hall or providing for two performances of each program in Schwab Auditorium.

The series of programs will be scheduled for the fall and spring semesters of next year on a probationary basis if approved by Cabinet. If the series proves to be successful as far as student support is concerned, it will be continued. If not, the entire plan of a program to support the Community Forum will be discarded.

Loretta Hunter, junior in education from Pittsburgh, submitted a report on the spring dance sponsored by the Association of Independent Men and Leonides on March 18. Members voted to sponsor the spring dance annually during National Independent Student Association Week.

The executive committee will meet 7 p.m. Monday in 218 Hetzel Union.

Handbook Business Candidates

The business staff of the Student Handbook will meet tonight in 208 Willard. The meeting is open to the public.

Flowers Become Fashion Leaders

By INEZ ALTHOUSE
Collegian Society Editor

Flowers seem to have come into their own this spring as an accessory in women's fashions. Though an old favorite in adding that touch of spring about this time of the year, they have taken on a new and more versatile popularity.

Imitation roses, daisies, and other spring flowers have long been worn in the hair. But now the fashion world has come up with a special type of flower—one that is wired to bend and clamp around a pony tail. No pins are needed to hold this decoration in place.

Another innovation combines the recently popular headband with a circle of flowers. On the head, the creation resembles a tiara of flowers. Little combs on the ends of the headband hold it firmly in place.

Flowers have also taken over the jewelry world this spring. Flower chain necklaces with matching earrings are fast becoming favorites, as are flower brooches with matching earrings.

Several other accessory items are taking on "new looks," too. The latest news in belts is the transparent belt, either plain or trimmed with metal or pastel decorations.

A new "straw-stretch" belt is also on the market. This belt comes in pastel shades, and resembles the formerly popular waist cincher. It is made of a fine straw, and dressy in appearance.

Hats this spring appear, on the whole, to be fairly small. Here, too, flowers are playing a big part. Many of the recent millinery creations are the smaller, clamp-on type that fit on the top of the head.

The detachable collars, so popular with the sweater set during the winter, are still leading fashion items. The collars vary from the high, man-type collar to the

ACHiO Adopts Korean Child

The University chapter of Alpha Chi Omega has financially adopted a Korean war child through the Foster Parents' Plan for War Children.

As foster parents, the sorority contributes $15 monthly towards the child's support for at least a year. The group received a brief history and photograph of the child, and weekly letters are written to the child.

The eight year old girl, Lee Jung Soon, lives in Seoul, Korea, with her brother, sister, mother, and grandmother. During the war they were forced to flee from their home, and at this time the father was kidnapped by the Communists.

Since aid has come to Jung Soon, her "adoption" will assure her of all benefits possible.

wide, lacy one. They come in all fabrics—pique being very popular for spring and summer.

Spotlighting Phi Mu

Phi Mu, founded upon the principles of love and mutual understanding, was organized at Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga., in 1852. It was known first as the Philomathean Society.

In 1904, Phi Mu was granted a charter by the state of Georgia, which gave it the status of a national corporation.

Beta Mu, one of 72 chapters, was founded at the University in 1929. Last October the Phi Mu's celebrated their 25 years on campus at which some of the original members were present.

The Phi Mu's sponsor a toy cart at Bellefonte Hospital, collect books for several organizations, and provide a wardrobe for a local high school girl.

This year the sorority held a car wash to raise money for a sister chapter house which burned down. They participated in Mardi Gras and Spring Week, and were first this year in the Mad Hatter's original diversion.

The chapter has received the achievement award for their district, as well as national achievement, finance, and library awards.

Each March at the Founder's Day service a scholarship cup is awarded to the pledge having the highest average, and the outstanding pledge receives a bracelet. The active sister showing the greatest improvement in average is awarded a medalion. Last fall the sorority's average was 2.04.

A sister, Kay Kerr, has been awarded the Danforth Scholarship for this year, and Aurelia Arre, who was chosen cap girl at the annual Matrix Table, has received a graduate assistantship at the University.

Six members of Phi Mu are hat women. One has been named dairy queen, and another Pennsylvania apple queen.

Sorority colors are rose and white. Their flower is the enchantress carnation, and their motto is, "Faithful Sisters."

Officers of the sorority are: Mary Craig, president; Shirley Martin, vice president; Mary Krause, recording secretary; Mary Gysling, corresponding secretary; and Gertrude Lutz, treasurer. Sor-

MISS KITTY DICKSON

Okay, Joe?

So far, Kitty is the loveliest OK Joe of this school year. Representing the local Phi Epsilon Pi chapter in a national Phi Epsilon Pi contest at two of the many parties we photographed this weekend, there were pinning serenades going on. It was a beautiful sight to watch the men in their white jackets and candle illumination, serenading this one lucky girl. We photographed this affair at both houses and he results were quite striking. So, if you'd like something unusual for your scrapbook, give us a call if you expect to be doing the honors.

Saw a movie the other night showing all the contestants individually of the latest "Miss Universe" Contest. There wasn't one beautiful girl in the entire procession. To top it off, the American contestant who won the title was probably the least fit as far as beauty anyway. I used to wonder about the qualifications of these contests. I no longer wonder.

Remember, a beautiful portrait is worth a thousand letters.

Sincerely,
