

PNPA Head to Open Press Confab Today

G. A. Harshman, editor of the Sharon Herald and president of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association, will greet approximately 400 newspapermen from all over the state at the opening luncheon of the Pennsylvania Press Conference at noon today in the Nittany Lion Inn.

The conference will close at 6:30 p.m. with the presentation of awards to winners of the "Better Writing Contest" by Bernard J. Smyth, publisher of the Delaware State News.

40 Violators Are Sent 2d Warnings

Forty students who were sent letters in April by the dean of men's office were mailed second notices yesterday requiring them to report to the office for failing to go before Traffic Court.

The office reports that 28 out of approximately 100 students who were sent letters this month for the same reason have failed to report. Monday was the deadline for reporting.

Dean of Men Frank J. Simes said Tuesday that those students who fail to report may be placed on office probation, and that those students who fail to pay traffic violation fines may not be allowed to register in the fall.

Traffic Court hears cases of students who feel they have been wronged by being tagged by Campus Patrol for traffic violations.

Simes appeared before All-University Cabinet May 5 requesting Cabinet to take action to force students to heed the summons. Later Simes said that action by Cabinet would not be necessary since his office would act upon the matter.

Office probation requires students to report to the dean of men's office for informal talks, as long as the office deems necessary. No permanent record is placed on the student's transcripts.

Cline to Head Cheerleaders

Hugh Cline, junior in arts and letters from Yeaton, was chosen head cheerleader last night by four judges, according to Bruce Coble, retiring head cheerleader.

Chosen as assistant head cheerleader was Harry Albert, junior in industrial engineering from Latrobe.

Judges were Harold R. Gilbert, director of athletics; Dr. Hummel Fishburn, professor of music and music education; Eugene Wettstone, associate professor of physical education; and Coble.

Marine Interviews To Start Monday

The United States Marine Corps will interview applicants for Marine officer training programs Monday and Tuesday in Engineering E. Interested students should apply to Captain James R. A. Rehfus.

The officer training programs are held during the summer months and do not interfere with academic studies. Freshmen, sophomores, and juniors may enroll in the Platoon Leaders Class. All expenses are paid.

Trainees receive Marine pay for two summers during the six week courses. Upon completion of the course, trainees are given reserve commissions.

Seniors and graduate students may enroll in the officer candidates course. Trainees in the OCC receive ten weeks training at Quantico, Virginia, prior to being commissioned. The new officers then go to Officers Basic School for six months.

Two Awards

Dr. Frederick Marbut, professor of journalism, will present awards to two Pennsylvania newspapermen for distinguished service to their communities at a dinner at 6:30 tonight in the Inn. The two men are Joseph C. Boyle, publisher of the Jim Thorpe Times-News; and John H. Biddle, publisher of the Huntingdon Daily News.

The conference is sponsored by the department of journalism, the PNPA, the Pennsylvania Society of Newspaper Editors, and the Pennsylvania Women's Press Association.

Workshops

Other highlights of the two-day conference include a workshop for daily newspapers from 9:30 a.m. to noon tomorrow in the assembly room of the Inn; and a press conference on water resources at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow in the assembly room.

John P. Robin, Pennsylvania secretary of commerce, will speak on the "Economic Development of Pennsylvania" at tonight's dinner. He will be followed by a program of comedy entertainment and group singing by Dr. Hummel Fishburn, professor of music, and Frank Gullo, associate professor of music.

Throughout the two days, about 20 newspaper publishers and editors will speak on newspapers and their publishing in Pennsylvania at the different daytime sessions.

The central Pennsylvania chapter of Sigma Delta Chi will meet at 9 a.m. Sunday in the John Gilpin Room of the Inn.

Grad Centennial Dance

Graduate students are sponsoring a Centennial dance to be held from 9 to midnight Saturday in the Hetzel Union ballroom.

Jack Huber and his orchestra will provide music. The dance is open to graduate school members, faculty members and their wives.

David Sullivan was approved for the post of chairman of the Association of Independent Men Judicial Board of Review Wednesday night by the AIM Board of Governors.

The appointment was made by Bruce Lieske, AIM president.

Other students appointed and approved for Judicial Board of Review are:

Wayne Zarr, David Cummings, and Paul Sypheer, new members; Joseph Tomer, Robert Martz, Lloyd Matter, John McCabe, and Thomas Binford, returning members; and Richard Kinsman and Richard Davis, alternates.

The board also approved a recommendation by Lieske that the editor of the AIM handbook be compensated $25. AIM handbook editor is Donald Shoemaker, city editor of the Daily Collegian.

Reedy Named to Head Economics Department

Dr. John H. Reedy, Jr., assistant professor of economics, has been named acting head of the department of economics for the 1955-56 academic year.

He will fill the position while Dr. Howard A. Cutler, associate professor of economics and present head of the department, is on leave of absence. Dr. Cutler will serve as visiting associate professor at the University of Chicago under the Carnegie Foundation Internship program in general education.

Players 'Shrew' to End 7 Week Run at TUB

The final weekend run of the "Taming of the Shrew" will be at 8 tonight and tomorrow night in the Temporary Union Building.

Karl Held and Betsy Jones play the lead roles as Petruchio and Kate in the Shakespearian "farce-comedy."

Oliver Discusses East

By ANNE FRIEDBERG

Quemoy and Matsu have already been abandoned in United States foreign policy, according to Dr. Robert T. Oliver, head of the speech department. Oliver spoke to members of the Young Republicans Club Tuesday night.

Dr. Oliver said he received this "consensus" from Senator James Duff (Rep.-Pa.). The problem facing the administration was how to evacuate the islands without losing face, Dr. Oliver said.

In his talk on "The Crisis of the Far East," Dr. Oliver gave an informal character sketch of President Syngman Rhee. He elaborated on the difficult job and momentous decision Rhee had to make in June 1950, when the Communists attacked South Korea. At that time, Rhee had no guarantee and no reason to believe that the Allies would offer any help in the Korean conflict, he said.

Dr. Oliver emphasized the force-fulness of Rhee's character by showing how he brought Korean truce talks to a final conclusion when he released 26,000 anti-Communist Red prisoners. The Communists gave in as soon as the prisoners were released.

Dr. Oliver was adviser to President Rhee from 1948 to 1954, and an adviser to the United Nations Korean Delegation from 1945 to 1954.

The greatest danger facing the free world today, Dr. Oliver warned, is that the Communists will take over the world without any resistance. Since the United States has followed a policy of appeasement in dealing with the Communists, tension has increased throughout the world, he said.

"The important question facing the United States is," Dr. Oliver said, "are we going to surrender our concept of liberation for the mainland of Asia?"

Although the plan is not feasible, according to Dr. Oliver, it is

Painting Exhibition To Be Held In Fall

A "Centennial Exhibition of Pennsylvania Painters" will be held in conjunction with the Centennial celebration on Oct. 8 through Nov. 6 in the Mineral Industries art gallery.

The exhibition, which includes no living artists, will be composed of four dozen Pennsylvania painters from the eighteenth to the twentieth century. It will be the first important loaned exhibition ever to be held on campus.

Each painter will be represented by his most important single painting. A catalogue of the exhibition will offer a concise history of painting in Pennsylvania.

Complications were involved in obtaining three of the paintings in the exhibition. The Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts in Philadelphia, celebrating their one-hundredth anniversary also, are showing the paintings and the entire Pennsylvania Academy exhibit was taken abroad by the United States Information Agency to tour Europe. The three paintings will be withdrawn from the European tour to be flown back to the United States and placed in the University show.

Included in these three pictures is a portrait of Walt Whitman by Thomas Eakins, a Philadelphia painter. This portrait was the one best liked by Whitman and is today a famous piece of Americana.

In conjunction with the Centennial art exhibit, an art symposium will be held on Oct. 8 at which four speakers will talk on aspects of art in Pennsylvania. To make room for large audiences, there will be a morning and afternoon session of the symposium.

The four speakers for the symposium are all famous figures in American art. They are Dorothy Grafly, Philadelphia art writer and critic, Lloyd Goodrich, associate director of the Whitney Museum of American Art, Edgar P. Richardson, director of the Detroit Art Institute, and Benton Spruance, noted print maker and artist. An exhibition of prints by Spruance will be shown in the Hetzel Union Building at the Centennial Art Exhibition.

Chem-Phys Council OK's 'Series' Assessment Fee

The Chem-Phys Council Tuesday night voted in favor of a 50 cent assessment to be added to student fees to support the Penn State Series, a proposed replacement for Community Forum.

The council also discussed investigating the possibility of setting up a Chem-Phys Scholarship with money remaining in the council treasury at the end of the school year.

A committee was appointed by the council to select an editor for the Chem-Phys Newsletter.

New Course To Include Trip Abroad

The University will sponsor a course on economic institutions and current economic problems this summer. The course will include a trip through Europe.

The three credit course, listed as Economics 499x, will be conducted by Dr. Vaclav E. Mares, associate professor of economics. The course has been prepared primarily for students of social science and international economics.

Students enrolled in the course will leave New York by chartered plane July 3, and will return September 1. Travel by ship can also be arranged.

The course outline includes a talk with Pierre Mendes-France, former French premier; a visit to UNESCO headquarters in Paris, France; a trip to the International Labor Offices in Geneva, Switzerland; a visit to port installations; and a conference with leading importers and exporters in Marseille, France, and Genoa, Italy.

Included on the agenda for Italy will be a visit to headquarters of the Italian Fair; a trip through a racing car factory; and a visit to the Venice Chamber of Commerce. In Florence, the students will talk with the mayor of the city, and join in a symposium of faculty members at the University of Florence.

A visit to the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations and headquarters for the Federation of Italian Industries will be included in the tour through Rome.

While enrollment for credit is optional, students desiring credit will be required to complete prescribed reading, take an examination, and prepare a paper based on an evaluation of experiences of the tour.

McChesney Awarded Stewardson Fellowship

Alan McChesney, senior in architecture from Swarthmore, has been awarded the $1500 Stewardson fellowship.

The fellowship, awarded each year by the John Stewardson Memorial Committee, provides funds for a year of study abroad.

Architectural students from the University of Pennsylvania, Carnegie Institute of Technology, and the University compete for the prize each year. Twenty-three seniors entered the competition, which required the design of a religious retreat on an island.
