The game was one of a series played each spring by the club, which is made up of both foreign and American faculty members and students.

Cosmopolitan Club Has Varied Agenda

University students Saturday afternoon had the unique pleasure of watching a cricket game—a sport seldom seen on campus.

The match was played between the Cosmopolitan Club and Princeton University on the field in front of Forestry Building. The Cosmopolitan Club eleven won the game, 178 to 105.

Cricket is only one of the activities sponsored by the club, which was founded at the University about 1910. Since that time its membership has grown from 17 to over 300.

Any student or a faculty member may join the club, whose main purpose is to meet the social needs of the foreign students on campus and enable American and foreign students to become better acquainted.

Meets Once a Month

The club meets regularly once a month. Sub-meetings of special committees are held at frequent intervals. At present, 160 of the members are foreign students, and the remaining are foreign and American faculty members and University students.

The club's cricket team has a regular schedule of games each spring and summer, meeting teams from Haverford College, Princeton University, Cornell University, and the Embassies in Washington, D.C.

Another sport sponsored by the club is soccer. The team was started four years ago, and annually plays the University soccer team. An effort is now being made to arrange soccer games with other colleges and universities.

Holds Annual Banquet

The main event of the school year is the annual banquet of the club. Each year the banquet centers around one foreign country's traditions. The students from that country plan food, dances, slides, and other entertainment to bring out their country's customs and ideas.

The club also holds political meetings throughout the year. At these meetings speakers or panels discuss controversial issues of world importance.

Officers for next year are Raymond DeLand, graduate in meteorology from Australia, president; George Alleman, sophomore in mechanical engineering from Jenkintown, vice president; Gertrude Winzenburger, graduate in German from Schenectady, N.Y., secretary; and George Imperial, graduate from the Philippines, treasurer. Faculty advisers are Dr. Valclav Mares, associate professor of economics, and Dr. Alfred G. Pundt, professor of European history.

WRA to Plan Banquet

Women's Recreation Association Executive Board will meet at 6:30 tonight in White Hall to discuss plans for their banquet, which will be held Sunday at the Nittany Lion Inn.

Spotlighting Delta Zeta

By EVIE ONSA

Delta Zeta was incorporated on Oct. 24, 1902 at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.

Gamma Delta, one of 76 national chapters, was founded at the University Dec. 14, 1946. The local chapter has 49 members.

The sorority sponsors the Lily Parade, a cerebral palsy fund drive, as one of its projects.

At Christmas time the chapter adopted a family and furnished them with food and clothing and other gifts.

Collecting books for Gallaudet College, Washington, D.C., the only college for the deaf in the United States, is the pledge project. This is also a national Delta Zeta project. The sorority's special philanthropies are connected with hearing and in supplying hearing aids for deaf children.

A knit bazaar, sponsored by the DZ's, provides funds for another philanthropy—clothing and medical supplies for hospitals in Holland and in Norway, which is supervised by Crown Princess Mariha. Proceeds also go to the Cancer and Heart associations.

The sorority provides a scholarship for graduate study in audiology at any accredited University, open on a competitive basis.

The DZ's were Interfraternity Council-Panhellenic Council finalists this year. The sorority has members in Angel Flight, the Modern Dance Concert Group, and Lakonides, women's physical education honorary.

Jocita Hall was named outstanding student in the College of Business Administration last spring. Louise Moreman is past-president of Panhellenic Council.

The ideal pledge is awarded at the annual pledge banquet and dance held in the fall. Each semester a bracelet is awarded to the sister or pledge who has shown the greatest improvement in average.

Officers of the sorority are Bernadette Shahan, president; Joan Wilson, first vice president; Connie Paulakos, second vice president; Jane Applegate, recording secretary; Emily Dhus, treasurer; Claudia Webster, corresponding secretary; Jean Keatley, historian; Gretchen Erdmann and Yvonne Vandarsen, social chairmen. MR. JOHN LINDEMAN

Okay, Joe?

Above is the Christ-like face of one John Lindeman plus beard. Much of the quality of this photograph will be lost in newspaper reproduction because of the deep shadows which are necessary for a study of this nature. But a salon print will be on display shortly.

The picture was taken a day before John made the mistake of giving in to his wife's ultimatum, "me or the beard," that is, cutting off the beautiful foliage.

This is obviously the wedding season. Congratulations to the level-headed couples who have a quiet little wedding without all the pomp and dignity, phony as it is. Looking with broad perspective at modern-day weddings, the large ones at least, it's a strange sight indeed, to see all the attendants and the bride so perfectly attired and so angelic in manner. We won't even waste space talking of the suddenly acquired "dignity" of the wedding party. Not to mention having to subject your friends to the "obligation" of all this dignity. The essence of all this "blow-off" is that the above-mentioned "pompous" type of wedding is extinct and has probably been extinct for thirty years. The only reason it's no longer proper is simply the desecration of our moral code. It's probably the photographer and florist who have been most instrumental in keeping this dying form from being buried. Long live Justice of the Peace Weddings. And of course, a marriage ceremony is beautiful when done in its tender simplicity and not in the forced austerity we now see.

GRADUATING SENIORS: You may purchase any of your negatives we have on file. Quite reasonable. A wonderful time for a fine study of you. Of course, for Father's Day. Remember, you're getting older, even as you read this.

Hope to see you all again next semester unless we become a by-product of one of the A.E.C.'s orgies or the results of this "blowoff."

Sincerely,
