

Honesty Program to Begin

Plan Calls For New Procedures

With the start of classes Monday, a new program aimed at assuring honesty in the classroom will go into effect.

The new academic honesty program calls for new classroom procedures, prevention of cheating, and a new social outlook toward dishonesty.

The plan came from a meeting of students, faculty members, and representatives of the administration at the 1954 Student Encampment at Mont Alto.

It was later approved by All-University Cabinet, highest student governing body, and the Council of Administration, composed of members of the administration.

A number of steps to be taken to cut opportunities to cheat are outlined in the new program. Use of alternate seating in classrooms is an example.

A method of dealing with cheaters—something that was not uniform before the new program was created—is also included.

Three types of cheating are recognized: presumably unpremeditated cheating, premeditated cheating, and cooperative premeditated cheating involving collusion.

Students who are accused of cheating will be given trials before academic honesty boards, composed of three faculty members and two students, in their own college.

Students accused of the third type of cheating, cooperative premeditated cheating involving collusion, will be given hearings before the Senate Committee on Student Affairs subcommittee on discipline.

This body will also serve as an appeal board for students found guilty by the academic honesty committees in the colleges.

An example of unpremeditated cheating is looking at another student's test during an examination. An example of premeditated cheating is using crib notes during an exam. Sending a substitute to take an exam is an example of cooperative cheating.

The penalty for presumably unpremeditated cheating is filing a probationary memorandum in the offices of the dean of the student's college, his adviser, the dean of men or the dean of women, and notifying parents of the action.

For premeditated cheating the penalty is disciplinary probation for at least one year and notification of parents.

Suspension for the remainder of that semester or for the next semester is the penalty for cooperative premeditated cheating involving collusion.

Besides the nine college academic honesty committees, an All-University group, known as the Intercollege Committee on Academic Honesty, composed of one representative of each college committee, will discuss uniformity of penalty.

Aviation Interviews

A representative of North American Aviation, Inc., will be on campus Oct. 31, to interview January graduates for positions at the company's Los Angeles plant.

Students should contact the Director of the University Placement Service for details concerning the interviews.

Recreation, Athletic Program Sponsored by WRA for Coeds

Between the 10 activity clubs and intramural sports, sponsored by the Women's Recreation Association, coeds are offered athletic and recreational activities throughout the school year.

All women automatically become members of WRA, governed by the WRA executive council. Members are elected to the council by the women's student body each spring. A freshman representative is elected in the fall.

WRA clubs include instruction and participation in activities from modern dance to outdoor sports.

The Badminton Club provides practice in both playing and refereeing badminton. Con-

2 Officers Assigned To ROTC

Two new commanding officers have been assigned to Naval and Army Reserve Officers Training Corps detachments at the University.

Col. Richard F. Reidy has been named professor of military science and tactics, succeeding Col. Lucien E. Bolduc. Col. Bolduc retired from active duty during the summer. Capt. Victor B. McCrea has been appointed professor of naval science, succeeding Capt. Rowland H. Groff. Capt. Groff has been named commanding officer of Pearl Harbor Naval Base.

Capt. McCrea's new appointment will become effective Oct. 1. Cdr. Robert K. Etnire, associate professor of naval science, has been appointed professor of naval science and tactics until the arrival of Capt. McCrea.

Col. Reidy, graduate of the United States Military Academy, served more than two years in the Asiatic Pacific Theater during World War II. During the Korean War he served as battalion and regimental commander of the 31st Regiment, 7th Infantry Division. He has been awarded the Navy Cross, the Silver Star Medal, and the Bronze Star Medal.

Col. Bolduc was honored at ceremonies held during the summer at Fort George G. Meade, Md. In recognition of his 32 years of service in the Army, he was presented a scroll.

tract bridge-playing instruction is given in the Bridge Club. The Modern Dance Club, under the direction of Miss Dorothy V. Briant, assistant professor of physical education, includes practice on dance fundamentals and free composition work.

The Outing Club sponsors a freshman cabin party, hikes on Mt. Nittany, wiener roasts, and roller skating at Evergreen roller rink. Instruction and practice in riflery are the objectives of the Rifle Club. Members of the Hockey Club participate in Juniata Sports Day, Mid-East Sports Day, Central Pennsylvania Sports Day, and class intramurals. Lacrosse Club members join in Sports Day activities.

The Swim Club, divided into beginner and advanced groups, offers practice on swimming techniques. The Bowling Club is also separated into two divisions—freshman and upperclass. Club activities include practice for tournaments, league competition within the club, and National Intercollegiate Telegraphic American Ten Pin Tournaments. Officials Club members study officiating at athletic events and act as officials at intramural events.

Yearly WRA projects consist of a Christmas party for needy children, Sports Day, clothing drives, and the Sweetheart Dance. Proceeds of this dance go for the support of Foster Parents' Plan for War Children.

WRA playnights are held every Saturday, with recreational facilities available in White Hall. One faculty member and one executive board member are on duty to provide equipment and give assistance. Free refreshments are served.

The WRA cabin, which is located on Mt. Tussey, five miles from campus, is used on weekends by WRA clubs, independent groups, and sororities. It is well-equipped with all camping needs, and approximately 30 girls can sleep there overnight.

Patricia Farrell, senior in special recreation education from State College, is WRA president. Sara Cushman, junior in physical education from Philadelphia, is vice president; and Mary Conrad, sophomore in recreation education from Washington, D.C., is secretary-treasurer.
