Art Gallery Being Painted For Exhibit

Workmen have begun painting the Mineral Industries Art Gallery in preparation for the "Pennsylvania Painters" exhibit to be held from Oct. 8 to Nov. 6. The gallery walls will be done in an off-shade gray tone.

The Mineral Industries art collection, which usually hangs in the gallery, has been put in storage until the end of the Centennial exhibit. The cabinets in the middle of the room which hold the mineral art collection are being framed to provide dividers and extra hanging space.

On the front walls outside the gallery a photographic replica of the famous "Staircase Group" by Charles Willson Peale will be displayed. The original, a large 7 1/2 foot painting, is now being shown in Europe.

The paintings will be the first major loan exhibition brought to the University and will have as a theme the history of painting in Pennsylvania. The 48 paintings, all by non-living Pennsylvania artists, are valued at more than a quarter of a million dollars.

The Centennial art committee of the University is sponsoring the exhibit under the chairmanship of Dr. Harold E. Dickson, professor of fine arts.

UCA to Present Technicolor Film In HUB Tonight

A technicolor film, "In the Face of Jeopardy," will be presented by the University Christian Association Forum at 7 tonight in the Hetzel Union auditorium.

The movie, which was filmed in the jungles of Southeast Asia, depicts the conflict between the forces of Christianity and Communism for possession of men's minds.

A panel discussion will follow the movie. Mark Shaw, instructor in agricultural engineering, who spent five years in China with the American Friends Service Committee behind Communist lines, will be a panel member.

The other two panelists will be the Rev. Hal Leiper, associate director of UCA, and his wife, Jane. They spent four years in Peking and were there during the revolution. They were also with Presbyterian missions in communist-controlled China for 18 months.

The forum is open to students and faculty members.

Ninety-Eight Chosen For Concert Band

Seventy-nine men and 19 women have been chosen for the Concert Blue Band, James W. Dunlop, associate professor of music education and director of the Band, has announced.

The Concert Band has begun rehearsals for several concerts to be presented this year. The group will present a concert in Schwab Auditorium on March 25 and one on the Pattee Library steps in May. The Band will also play for the Swiss Gym team meet in January and for the Olympic tryouts in April. Trips to other cities are also being planned, Dunlop said.

The Concert Blue Band differs from the marching Blue Band in function and personnel. The marching Band plays for athletic events and concludes its season with the final football game. The Concert Band continues throughout the year. Men and women may be members of the Concert Band, but members of the marching Band are men only. Each member must tryout for each band every year.

HUB to Be Site Of Army Game Send-Off Rally

A send-off pep rally for the Penn State-Army game at West Point Saturday will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the rear of the Hetzel Union Building.

Delphi, sophomore men's hat society, and Cwens, sophomore women's hat society, will be in charge of the rally.

The event will be conducted from the balcony of the HUB, with the students standing on Holmes Field.
This will be the first pep rally of the year since the one scheduled last week for the Boston University contest was rained out.
Two hat groups have been assigned to each pep rally, according to Hat Society Council officials.
Delphi members will meet at 7 p.m. tomorrow night at Beta Sigma Rho in order to leave for the rally as a group. Delphi members will divide into small groups when they arrive on campus to publicize the rally among students living in dormitories.

Unique Language Study Offered

By TED SERRILL
Every two years, approximately 15 students schedule perhaps the most unusual course offered at the University—the study of Pennsylvaniaish Deitsch.

Instructed by Dr. Albert F. Buffington, professor of German, Pennsylvania German, commonly known as Pennsylvania Dutch, is now in its ninth year of instruction.
As far as is known, the University is the only institution in the country to offer the non-pre-requisite course, Dr. Buffington said. Muhlenberg College listed the subject for one semester but dropped it.
German Culture Taught
A second course in the life and culture of the Pennsylvania Germans is also taught by Dr. Buffington. Approximately 25 students register for the course, which is offered once every two semesters.

Spoken by some 200,000 native Pennsylvanians, the dialect is a branch of German used by settlers from Germany, not Holland. Non-Germans, on hearing the settlers call themselves "Deutsch," thought they meant the English "Dutch."
Dr. Buffington joined the faculty in 1945 and began teaching the two subjects a year later. He has done intensive research in the grammar, pronunciation, and the spelling of the dialect.
With Dr. Preston A. Barba, professor emeritus of German at Muhlenberg College, Dr. Buffington collaborated in writing a text on Pennsylvania German grammar.

First Full Treatment
The textbook, titled "A Pennsylvania German Grammar," is the first scholarly and exhaustive treatment of the language ever written.
Dr. Buffington feels there is a distinct need for such courses because of the large proportion of Pennsylvania Germans in the state. Attention should be paid to such a culture and the University is proud to offer the subjects, he claimed.
The courses are of special interest to agriculture students, he said, because after graduation they will settle in some sections
