

Brewster Says Ike Will Not Run Again

Even more doubt on whether President Dwight D. Eisenhower will seek a second term has arisen since he suffered a heart attack Saturday.

Dr. Wallace Brewster, professor of political science, is convinced that President Eisenhower will not accept the nomination for a second term, causing the GOP to become

Tocker Gets MI College Money Award

Elburt F. Osborn, dean of the Mineral Industries college, presented the Ellen Steidle achievement award to Edwin Tocker, seventh semester ceramics major from Baltimore, at the first meeting of the Mineral Industries Student Council last night.

The award, a check for $75, was presented for the first time and will be made annually along with a $250 check to a senior who is active in advancing the welfare of the Mineral Industries college.

High scholarship is not essential. To be eligible a student's average should exceed 2.5 and he should have three semester's residence on campus.

The council also passed a motion to print a monthly newsletter. James Stratton, third semester geophysics major from Philadelphia, was named editor.

The council considered a suggestion to invite students to coffee hours according to their curriculum instead of alphabetically as was done last year. Movies may also be shown this year.

Encampment--

Miss Farrell will present suggestions by the Academic Policies Committee concerning the academic honesty program which was approved by the Council of Administration last semester.

Student Participation Urged
Committee members felt that the faculty should take seriously suggestions for classroom procedure and students should call the policy to professors' attention and urge student council presidents to bring it to the deans attention cases where rules are being overlooked.

Freshmen would become acquainted with the policy during Orientation Week through student counselors, publicity, and welcoming speeches by the University president, student president, and presidents of the student councils.

A solution to the Commencement seating problem, improvement of the registration procedure, and what changes or additions should be made in required curriculums so that students' education can be broadened are other subjects discussed in the report.

Moser Participates In Literature Congress

Dr. Gerald M. Moser, assistant professor of romance languages, recently returned from participating in the Seventh International Congress of University Teachers of Ibero-American literature at the University of California.

Dr. Moser was appointed leader of the discussion on Brazilian literature at one session, and at another he read a paper on "The Brazil of the Poet Manuel Bandeira."

involved in a "bitter internal struggle."
"Within the Republican party, there is no one in sight who could serve as a successor to Mr. Eisenhower, except, perhaps, Vice President Richard M. Nixon. But Nixon is in trouble with his own state organization," Dr. Brewster said.

Nixon In Fight
Dr. Brewster explained that Nixon is now involved in a fight for political control of his home state, California. Two other presidential aspirants from the state, Governor Goodwin Knight and Senate Minority Leader William P. Knowland, are also striving for control of the state, he said.

He also indicated that Nixon's youth and "how he would stand with the Independents" were drawbacks against the vice president.

Another native Californian, Chief Justice Earl Warren, "is also in the presidential picture. He is the closest one to President Eisenhower the Republicans have," Brewster said.

Doubts Warren Will Resign
However, Dr. Brewster doubts if Warren would resign his Supreme Court post in order to accept the nomination.

He pointed out that the GOP Old Guard, extreme conservative faction, would "rear its head" and fight for control of the party without the Eisenhower leadership. If they could gain control, Dr. Brewster said, "Republican policy would undoubtedly be to withdraw from European involvements, destroying the bipartisan foreign policy President Eisenhower has followed."

Dr. Brewster feels that if Senator Knowland, a member of the Old Guard, gains control of the Republican party, "we would be involved more deeply in China and the Far East, besides ignoring Europe."

One of the main campaign issues, according to Dr. Brewster, will be the farm problem. "The Republican dilemma is between letting farm income drop or raising expenditures for surplus crops," he concluded.

Plastic Research Is Being Conducted

A research project to determine the physical properties of a cellular plastic, polyurethane foam, known commercially as Curifom, has been started by the department of engineering mechanics.

The research, which is under the supervision of Dr. Joseph Marin, head of the department of engineering mechanics, is being sponsored by the Plastics Division of the Curtiss-Wright Corp. which has allocated $12,500 to the project for one year.

Two Concerts Are Scheduled By Jazz Club

Concerts by the Modern Jazz Quartet and the Stan Kenton Band have been scheduled by the executive committee of the Jazz Club, Donald Brown, president, said.

The Modern Jazz Quartet with Chris Connor will present a concert at 8 p.m. Oct. 8 in Schwab Auditorium. Stan Kenton and his Band will play on Nov. 18 in Recreation Hall.

Members of the Jazz Club will receive free tickets to the Jazz Quartet concert, Brown said. If seats are still available after the members of the Club have been accommodated, tickets will be put on public sale.

Samples of a special 12-inch long playing record of last year's Dave Brubeck concert were played at Tuesday's meeting of the club. This record will be available to club members at the next meeting.

The club is negotiating with various groups including Count Basie, Stan Getz, George Lewis, Ted Ory, and Sidney Bechet as to the possibilities of their presenting concerts on campus this year.

The group sponsored concerts by Dave Brubeck and Louis Armstrong last year.

HURRAY FOR THE RED, WHITE AND GOLD!

There's a new package on Philip Morris Cigarettes. It's red and white and gold and pretty as a picture. You'd never guess that behind anything so bright and cheerful is a saga packed with action and passion, with love and romance and not a few tears.

It started quietly enough. The makers of gentle Philip Morris, as hale a bunch of fellows as you ever clapped your eyes upon, got to talking last summer during their annual outing on Atka, a secluded and unspoiled island, often called "The Capri of Alaska." Capri, on the other hand, is often called "The Attu of Italy."

But I digress. I was saying that the makers of Philip Morris, jim-dandy fellows every man-jack of them, got to talking on their last outing. "Don't you think," said one maker to the other makers, "that our brown Philip Morris package, though in many ways terribly fetching, doesn't quite reflect the basic quality of today's Philip Morris—its happy gentleness, its jolly lightness?"

"Why, yes," replied the other makers to the first maker, "we do think that our brown Philip Morris package, though in many ways terribly fetching, doesn't quite reflect the basic quality of today's Philip Morris—its happy gentleness, its jolly lightness."

"Let us have the pack re-designed!" suggested the first maker, whose name is Laughing Ned.

"Yes, let us!" cried the other makers, whose name is Fun-Loving Tom. "Let us! Let us! Let us!"

The makers forthwith engaged the prominent firm of package re-designers, Sigafos and Associates. It was with full confidence that the makers entrusted the task to Sigafos and Associates, for Sterling Sigafos, the senior member, is known the length and breadth of the world as "The Grand Old Man of Package Re-designing," and his partner, Fred Associates, though a younger man, is everywhere regarded as a comer.

Sigafos and Associates began their job by conducting interviews from coast to coast to determine what kind of pack people wanted for Philip Morris. The partners could not do the interviewing themselves - Sigafos because of his advanced years; Associates because he is subject to motion sickness - so they sent out two trusted employees: Mr. Walker Nylet (Yale '51) and Miss Felicia Sigafos (Radcliffe '52), daughter of the senior partner. After canvassing the entire nation and tabulating more than 90 million interviews, Mr. Nylet sent the following communique to the home office:

"Dear Dad and Associates,
I call you Dad because Miss Sigafos and I discovered during our long and exhaustive survey that never were two people so admirably suited. We have accordingly been married and have accepted a position with the United States Government keeping the lighthouse off Gay Head, Martha's Vineyard.

I hope you are not too upset by this news. May I suggest you look at it this way: you haven't lost a daughter; you've gained a beacon.

Sincerely,
Walker Nylet"

Well sir, old Sigafos fumed for a while, but at last he calmed down and went to visit the newlyweds in their lighthouse, bringing them a suitcase full of twenties as a wedding gift. It was there he learned that people want Philip Morris in the red, white, and gold package which you are now, I trust, holding in your very own hand.

The makers of PHILIP MORRIS who bring you this column beg to remind you that for a while you'll still be seeing Philip Morris both ways - in the bright new red, white and gold package, and in the friendly familiar brown.
