

Let's Go Gang

HEAD CHEERLEADER Tony Cline urges the 2000 students who turned out for last night's pep rally to "Beat Army." Head football coach "Rip" Engle, who spoke at the rally, refused to comment on the outcome of the game. But he assured the crowd the team would "work hard." "Whether we will win or lose can't be told until Saturday," he said.

2000 Cheering Students Attend Army Pep Rally

Over 2000 cheering students crowded the area in front of Old Main last night to send off the football team before the Army-Penn State game tomorrow.

Tony Cline, head cheerleader, emceed the rally and introduced "Rip" Engle, head football coach.

Labor Bureau Job Awarded To Anderson

A former University employee has been appointed assistant director of the Bureau of Women and Children in the Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry.

Mrs. Arthur K. Anderson, former secretary of the Division of Intermediate Registration, will work in the Centre County area as an agent for the state department bureau. Mrs. Anderson will investigate cases which may be violating the minimum wage and working hour laws of Pennsylvania. These cases will deal solely with women and children in the field of labor.

As a prerequisite to accepting the job, Mrs. Anderson will attend special classes in Harrisburg this coming week designed to acquaint her with the job.

Mrs. Anderson's husband was a professor of physiological chemistry at the University for more than 30 years. She was named State College "Woman of the Year" in 1949, and her biographical sketch has appeared in "Who's Who in the East."

Customs --

This year approximately 75 violations have been turned in to the Joint Customs Board, Herbert Black and Miss Boyd, co-chairmen, said. The Board will meet at 7 tonight and 1:30 p.m. tomorrow in 212 Hetzel Union. Violators will be summoned to appear by members of the Board.

The Customs period will end at noon Saturday. Violators up until that time will meet with Board Monday and Wednesday nights.

Freshmen are asked by the Board not to throw their dinks away because they must wear them to the Navy-Penn State football game at Beaver Field, Oct. 15. Signs and handbooks will not be necessary after Saturday.

Rowland to Address Faculty

Charles J. Rowland, head of the department of accounting and business statistics, will speak on "The Pennsylvania Tax Dilemma" at the Faculty Luncheon Club meeting at noon Monday in the Hetzel Union Building.

AIM Board Adopts New Vote System

The Association of Independent Men's Judicial Board of Review adopted a new system of operation at their first meeting of the semester, Wednesday night.

Chairman David Sullivan announced that this semester the board chairman will not vote on the cases heard by the board. In addition to this, Sullivan put into action a plan, discussed by the board last year, under which the chair will be circulated among the members of the board. A different member will take the chair each week, with the previous week's chairman taking the stray vote. By this plan eight members will vote on each case (assuming that there is perfect attendance) and the chairman will only vote in order to break a tie or if his vote is needed to gain a quorum.

This is the first time in the board's two-year history that this type plan has been used.

This plan, Sullivan said, will enable the chairman to "conduct the meeting with entire ease" and be completely unbiased.

The board divided the position of secretary into two divisions in order to lighten the load of secretarial duties. David Cummings, junior in business administration from Olyphant, was elected corresponding secretary and Thomas Binford, junior in engineering science from Thomasville, was elected recording secretary.

Dr. Strong Writes Book For Office Managers

Dr. Earl P. Strong, professor of management and director of the Bureau of Business Research at the University, has written a new "how-to-do-it" book called "How to Increase Office Productivity."

Published by the Trico Service Co. of State College, the book is written especially for office managers and supervisors who are interested in obtaining greater productivity from their workers. A work improvement program involving the performance of six specific functions is developed by Professor Strong.

Educational Program To Be Re-evaluated

The University educational program will be re-evaluated on Nov. 6, 7, and 8 by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. The group will determine whether or not the University is an accredited school.

The Association is the official accrediting organization in this area, and has accredited schools in five states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Canal Zone.

The organization was formed to establish minimum standards for schools and to publish a list of institutions which meet those standards. The University was included in the first list published in 1921.

10-Year Evaluation
Since then the accrediting organization decided to re-evaluate every 10 years institutions already evaluated. This will be the first time the University has been re-evaluated.

Committees appointed by the University Senate, the colleges, and the graduate school, have filled out questionnaires in preparation for the visit, and these will be returned to the association next week, Adrian O. Morse, University provost, said. This is the first step in the accreditation program.

The questions were concerned with the objectives of the University as whole, and of its component parts; the capacity for fulfilling them; and the success with which they are being fulfilled.

About 60 to Visit
Approximately 60 members of the group will visit the University. They will all be out-of-state representatives. The group is made up of faculty members at institutions which are accredited. Since the University is a member of the association, many of its faculty members visit other schools to evaluate them.

In this way it is sort of a cooperative agreement, Morse said.

Some of the members of the committee are Ewald B. Nyquist, chairman of the Association and assistant commissioner of the New York Department of Education, Albany, N.Y.; William S. Carlson, president of the State University of New York; Carter Davidson, president of Union College, New York; and Carroll V. Newson, vice chancellor of New York University.

May Visit Classes
University officials do not as yet know who the other members will be, Morse said.

The members will visit deans and other University officers, department heads, and some members of the teaching, research and extension faculties. They will also probably visit classes, Morse added.

Among the inspection committee will be representative of national societies, such as the American Chemical Society, who will make two reports—one for their societies and one for the Association.

Frizzell Gets Post

John Henry Frizzell, chaplain emeritus of the University and a local resident, is serving as chaplain of the Pennsylvania Senate this week. Each week the duty is performed by a different person. Frizzell also writes the daily prayer in The Centre Daily Times.

Students in the University's first year had to be at least 16 years old.

Young GOPs Report on Nixon Talk

A report on Vice President Richard M. Nixon's address to the national Young Republicans Club convention held June 15-18 in Detroit, Mich., was presented at the first meeting of the Penn State Young Republicans Club Tuesday night in 212 Hetzel Union. Nixon's speech was entitled, "Let's Build a Party to Match Our President."

Delegates from the University attending the convention included John Higgins, president of the campus group, David Scott, Daniel Fegert, and Robert Cole. All representatives to the convention met personally with Nixon after the address.

Cole Reports
Robert Cole reported to members on the speeches given by Gov. Fred Hall of Kansas and several national congressmen and senators who attended the convention.

The University delegates participated in college club panel discussions intended to help plan membership and activities for the year.

The club is trying to get a room in the State College Hotel to set up headquarters for the November elections. Members will conduct a door-to-door campaign supplemented by telephone calls similar to last year's program.

Scott Reports on Workshop
David Scott reported on the regional workshop held in Pittsburgh Saturday, and announced that State College and Bellefonte Young Republican Clubs are in the formation process.

The secretary was instructed to send a telegram to President Dwight D. Eisenhower conveying the club's sympathy on his recent illness.
