

Penn State Sports—

ON THE LINE

Hollywood in Rec Hall? Well, not quite but an integral part of the famous city—the movie camera—is a standard, well-used piece of equipment in Recreation Hall, especially in Room 230 where Penn State's football coaches hang their hats.

After each Lion football game Coach Rip Engle and his six assistants go through reel after reel of film searching the play-by-play account to patch and pinpoint as many of the Lion mistakes as possible.

And the camera tells all. It shows a poor block, the missed block, who's loafing who's tackling and blocking, and who's doing his assigned job.

Yesterday we looked over the shoulder of Tor Toretti, one of Engle's assistants and top scouts, as he went through part of the Army-Penn State contest.

Although we saw the game Saturday, what we saw with the stopping, starting, and stopping again to go back (often three or four times) to check a particular play, the movies showed us a great deal.

As far as Engle is concerned here are some of the conclusions:

GOOD POINTS: The coaches came up with some "good things" for the Lions that will definitely be valuable for the remainder of the season although Army rolled to a 35-6 victory.

Moore was conspicuous in both his running and defensive game. Buck Straub, returning for his first duty since he broke his hand at the start of fall practice, stood out on defense.

"We missed Frank Reich after he was hurt in the first quarter," Engle said. "He's an inspiration to our defense, and we needed him for calling the defensive line signals."

Linemen Sam Valentine, Earl Shumaker, and Otto Kneidinger, although some slips were made, played a hard, rugged defensive game.

BAD POINTS: nervousness in the first period, and shoddy blocking against the big, fast Army line, Army repeatedly broke down the Lions' blocks, rushed the passer, and caught the backs before they got started. Poor punting, despite the fact that the Lions were not rushed, also hurt as Penn State averaged 27 yards per punt.

THE RESULT: The Coaches will tune up the Lions grid machine, test it, tune it up some more and then wait—for Virginia on Saturday. Seems like a good idea.

If you see the Lions' encounter with Virginia Saturday watch the man wearing jersey No. 45 for the Cavaliers.

He—John Polzer—has a story about himself in the recent Oct. 18 issue of "Look Magazine" giving the low down on himself, football, and what happened when the two got together.

Written in a surprisingly frank manner Polzer, Virginia's 22-year-old senior guard, puts across an important message to the "tough" kid who dares somebody to knock off the proverbial chip that he produly wears on his shoulder.

A good story, with plenty of meaning, common sense, and evidently, "the word of experience."

NOTE TO FANS GOING TO VIRGINIA GAME:

Penn State is the first Northern team to appear in the seven-year-old Tobacco Festival that will be staged this weekend when Virginia hosts the Lions at City Stadium, Richmond, Va.

But if you're driving to Richmond Friday night, BEWARE—according to Richmond's Mayor, Bryan Thomas, who notified the University that a parade will hold up much of the traffic in and out of Richmond Friday night.

The parade—to include 75 floats and mobile units—will start at 5:45 p.m. and end at approximately 7:00 p.m. It will move west along Broad Street to City Stadium. Broad Street is the main east-west thoroughfare in Richmond and it lies directly across the major routes coming into the city from the North.

Traffic will be heavy; it will take the parade about 60 minutes to pass any given point.

IN OTHER WORDS, arrive before 4 p.m., Friday or after 7:30 p.m. to avoid the traffic.

1st Outing Club Archery Meet Set for Tonight

The Outing Club will hold its first archery meeting at 7 tonight in 202 Engineering B. Plans will be discussed for Sunday's meet, to be held on the archery field range.

The club also announced that an overnight cabin party and moonlight hike will be held this weekend.

Men planning to make the trip must sign up at the main desk in the HUB and girls must sign before noon Friday.

The group will leave from behind Old Main at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Field and Stream Division of the Outing Club will hold a section meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in 317 Willard.

George Harvey, associate professor of physical education, will speak. Slides of previous trips will be shown.

The division will also discuss plans for forming a rifle club. John McHugh, physical education rifle instructor, will address the group on this topic.

Following tonight's meeting the group will retire to the archery work shop in 207 Engineering B, where instructions will be given in the making of bows and arrows.

Sunday's meet will begin at 2:30 p.m. with awards being given to the winners of the shoot.

Football 'Firsts'

Navy plays at Penn State for the first time since 1923, Pitt for the first time since 1942, during the 1955 football season.

Three Future Lion Grid Opponents Lose

While Penn State's football team was handed its first defeat of the season by Army Saturday, five of the Lions' future foes registered two wins against three losses.

Of the seven opponents remaining on the Nittanies' grid schedule, two—Syracuse and Rutgers—had open dates.

In one of the top games of the week the Oklahoma Sooners ran up a 19 point edge in the first half to coast to a 26-14 win over the Pitt Panthers, who threw a scare into Bud Wilkinson's boys by scoring two fast touchdowns in the second half. Pitt will be the final grid attraction for the Lions this season.

GW Whips Virginia
Virginia, the Lions' opponent Saturday, was handed a stinging 13-0 defeat by George Washington in one of the week's mild upsets. The Cavaliers, beaten by Clemson the week before, were two touchdown favorites over George Washington.

In probably the most surprising game of the year, West Virginia ran roughshod over Wake Forest, 46-0. The Mountaineers, who were slim favorites to beat their opponents, showed a tremendous running and passing game, which took Wake Forest by complete surprise.

Navy, the Lions' homecoming opponent on Oct. 15, paced by All-American quarterback George Welsh and All-American end Ron Beagle, scored an easy 26-0 win over South Carolina.

Navy Has Air Power
The Middle combination of Welsh to Beagle clicked for the first time this year proving that Navy will be a power in the air as well as on the ground.

In a far west game California's Golden Bears, held to a 7-7 tie at er Tommy Byrne, and relievers Bob Grim and Bob Turley. For the difference between the winning and losing pool was just about $100,000.

Although official figures won't be released for some time by the office of Commissioner Ford Frick it was understood the Brooks had voted 37 splits, making each full share worth $9,524. The reported 36 Yankees' full shares were each good for $5,739.

Varsity 'S' to Meet

The Varsity "S" Club will meet at 8:30 tonight at Theta Kappa Phi.

Any varsity letter winner may attend this meeting.

Chick Werner, track and cross country coach, will speak.

halftime, scored three touchdowns to hand the University of Pennsylvania its second defeat, 27-7.
