

Colds Treated At Infirmary Show Increase

The number of cold cases treated at the dispensary yesterday showed an increase over the previous day's total.

Approximately 130 new patients received treatment at the dispensary from 8 a.m. to noon yesterday. Over 50 of these complained of cold symptoms.

Dr. Herbert L. Glenn, director of the University Health Service, said in a recent survey of hospitals and college dispensaries throughout the country, approximately 40 per cent of the patients treated daily throughout the year were suffering from colds.

For the past few weeks, the number of students reporting to the dispensary for cold treatment has risen as high as 85 per cent of the daily total, Dr. Glenn continued. Throughout the year, he said, colds far exceed any other sickness treated at the dispensary.

The outbreak of colds is expected to continue throughout the month of October, Dr. Glenn said. The next rush of colds after the present one will probably hit the campus around next March, Dr. Glenn concluded.

Time Out--

(Continued from page seven) performed on the TCU field with the elegance of Penn State's Lenny Moore, the 174-pound Negro halfback who must be one of the hastiest fellows in these United States," Jenkins said in a press release.

"Seven times he picked up from 10 to 20 yards on deliveries," Jenkins went on, "and, in each instance, puzzled Frog defenders found themselves groping for chunks of air. It was always here he comes—there he goes."

Lenny isn't going to go all the way this year all by himself—and he's the first to realize it. He needs a strong, spirited team behind him, and the rest of the 1955 Lion squad more than fit the bill in our book.

Purdue's Lenny Dawson may be a great passer, and UCLA's Ronnie Knox is pretty good with a football, but for our money, dancing, prancing Lenny Moore is the nation's greatest running halfback.

Encampment--

The main points listed by the Committee on Recreational Aspects include the developing of recreational facilities in the West Dorms area, the development of Beaver Dam as a recreational area, better showing of Sunday movies on campus, building up of a co-ed recreation program, and the revising of Spring Week.

Included in the report by the Committee on Regulations and Controls are recommendations that the time limit of three weeks before students operating cars on campus be required to register them be removed; that consideration be given to the practicability of levying fees for students and possibly faculty members and employes for parking areas, and to the feasibility of construction of a cinder parking lot on the edge of the campus.

Car Ban--

The Council set the penalty of suspension for violators of the ban.

Under the ban, freshmen may be exempted from the ban if they claim physical handicaps or daily commuting between campus and home.

Robert Seyler, an AIM governor, was named to the projects committee by Bruce Lieske, AIM president.

Dr. Ruth C. Silva, associate professor of political science, said in a speech to the Young Republicans Club Tuesday night that according to confidants of Dr. Eisenhower, he "did not want the presidential nomination."

Dr. Silva stated that direct opposition to Dr. Eisenhower would come from Wisconsin Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, and Illinois Sen. Everett Dirksen.

Support for Dr. Eisenhower might come from Sen. James H. Duff and the New England delegation that supported his brother in 1952, Silva said.

Some of Dr. Eisenhower's affiliations, including his work with Henry R. Wallace in the Department of Agriculture during the New Deal Days might be brought up as propaganda against him, Silva said.

The question of the possible candidacy of Dr. Eisenhower may have begun in earnest with the publication of a nationally-syndicated column by New York Herald Tribune political columnist Roscoe Drummond late last July.

After listing the qualifications for a possible 1956 alternative to the President, Drummond stated that Dr. Eisenhower was at least one American who could meet the specifications.

With a comment by President Eisenhower—"I think I would rather take Milton's view than those of anyone else"—Drummond concluded.
