

Three Paintings Arrive for Exhibit

Three paintings, "Walt Whitman" by Thomas Eakins, "Shipwreck" by Thomas Birch, and "A Closet Door" by John F. Peto, have arrived at the University after touring various European exhibitions, and will be included in the Centennial exhibit of "Pennsylvania Painters" which will open Saturday at the Mineral Industries Art Gallery.

The three paintings formed a part of the 150th anniversary exhibition of the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts held last winter in Philadelphia. The United States Information Agency, considering this an outstanding painting, decided to show it abroad. Since then it has been exhibited in many cities throughout Europe.

Compromise Offered

A compromise solution had to be worked out when the date of the University Centennial exhibition conflicted with touring dates in Europe. The Agency offerred to withdraw three of the pictures after their showing in Innsbruck, Australia, and, as a result, the Eakins, Birch, and Peto paintings will be a part of the Centennial art show.

"Walt Whitman" by Eakins is one of the outstanding pictures in the exhibition, and is said to be Whitman's favorite portrait of himself. It was borrowed from the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts.

Thomas Eakins is known to be a pre-eminent Pennsylvania painter. In the history of American art, he is the leading scientific naturalist.

Thomas Birch was the first outstanding painter of marine subjects in American painting. "Shipwreck" is one of his most romantic paintings. Birch got his reputation as a marine painter during the War of 1812, when he painted several pictures of naval battles. "Shipwreck" is owned by the Brooklyn Museum of Art.

John F. Peto was one of several artists during the latter part of the 19th century who catered to a popular taste for eye-deceiving paintings or objects which are realistically presented. His specialty was the rack picture of which "A Closet Door" is an example. This painting was borrowed from a private owner.

body or board of directors. The present rules for the committee provide for such a board, but none is in operation.

senger traffic.

He will assume his new position Nov. 1.

Steps to remove the three organizations from the 1955 Chest drive were taken by Cabinet last year, but they were reinstated two weeks ago.

The report accepted last night provides that the board of directors shall consist of one representative from each participating agent of the Chest, the Campus Chest chairman, and two of his personnel, and three faculty members to be chosen at the first meeting by the other members. All board members must be approved by Cabinet.

eral broadening of education. Referred to the chairman of the student Encampment Committee were suggestions that the problems of the superior student be considered at next year's encampment; that there be a workshop of the various student councils next year, and that this year's Encampment should be evaluated sometime this year by those attending last September.

Robert McMillan, president of the senior class, said he and his officers would look into the problem of seating at Commencement. There has been indecision in the past on what should be done in case of rain. One suggestion in the report was that Commencement ceremonies should be held by the individual colleges.

Cabinet decided to strike the entire section on the Commencement situation from the report since McMillan will look into the problem.
