Cabinet: Time to Stop All-University Cabinet emphatically demon-strated Thursday night most of the major reastrated Thursday night most of the major rea-sons why it is not held in high student esteem. Bumbling along in a highly inept fashion, Cabinet managed to hear only one of three scheduled reports, and that report had been postponed from the previous week's session. Thus, Cabinet accomplished one week's work in two week's time.

By stretching 15 minutes' work into almost an hour and one-half of needless, haggling, some members of Cabinet proved only how un-informed and ill-prepared they are to sit on the student governing body. Hastily conceived motions were the order of the day at the meeting. Many either delved in-the day at the meeting. Many either derved me-to obscure points or were misstated, thus neces-sitating a retraction. The ignorance of most Cabinet members as to which committee Encampment suggestions should be referred was demonstrated time and again as precious moments sped by while mem-bers tried to determine who should handle what.

The confusion of the debate forced Cabinet advisors to rise often to instruct Cabinet members as to the proper channels through which they could implement their wishes. Cabinet's own disgust with its logginess was demonstrated when a motion was passed re-quiring Encampment Workshop chairmen who have yet to present their reports to include with their reports a list of committees to which suggestions might be referred. In this way Cabinet hopes to speed up the consideration of the Encampment reports But, as was pointed out by Bruce Lieske, existing committees which might handle En-campment suggestions. Cabinet agendas are available to members the day preceding the meeting, allowing suf-ficient time for members to familiarize them-

Therefore, there is no excuse for snap de-cisions on motions, which was certainly the case Thursday night. All-University President Earl Seely expressed his awareness of the prob-lorm when he caid:

lem when he said: "I somehow have the feeling that many of you have not read the reports attached to your

All the members of Cabinet were not to blame for the wasted time. It was the fault of a few who seemed to feel that unless they spoke on every point raised they were not fulfilling their duty. Most of the time all these people do is bog down Cabinet in a mire of needless debet by talking in a totally cutanoous do is bog down Cabinet in a mire of needless debate by talking in a totally extraneous vein. Unless Cabinet members resolve to better adapt themselves to parliamentary procedures they will keep finding themselves so immeshed in technical entanglements that they will ac-complish little of merit. When amendments are made to the amendment to the amendment it becomes increasingly difficult to keep the end purpose of the debate in mind. The performance of Cabinet to date this year has been anything but satisfactory. Members has been anything but satisfactory. Members must resolve to stick to the business at hand and henceforth forget about impressing others with their own importance.

Concert Series: Consider the Audience

The Community Concert membership drive ends at noon today. And with reports that only a little over half the tickets have been sold, the drive can hardly be called a success.

For several reasons, students and some fac-ulty members who have supported the series in the past did not buy tickets. It is difficult to plan one's activities months in advance, and with the increased line of compulsory campus activities, many students and faculty members who were unable to attend all the concerts last year did not want to run the risk of missing paid-for performances. The success of one musical organization has perhaps had adverse affects on another. Since the dynamic beginning of the Jazz Club, ver-satile music lovers have turned from the community series to jazz, and some of the finest jazz, we might add.

But heavy activity schedules and competition need not wreck the series. In an effort to fol-low the general student-faculty trend we offer these two suggestions:

Scalping: Rotten Penn State's Centennial football schedule is one of the finest slates in the history of the University.

In appreciation of the efforts of the Athletic Department, many students are "going out of their way" to make sure that all who so desire gain admittance to the games.

Some students are even being so gracious as dispose of their tickets to outsiders. Of

1. Encourage more block-buying of tickets, such as the Association of Independent Men has done. If social or activity groups would buy eight or ten season tickets and sell them to individuals interested in a particular performance and not too busy to attend, there would be very little monetary risk on the part of the student. 2. Since performers are chosen somewhat ac-cording to the general taste of the audience, booking chairmen should steer away from any artist or group of artists that would tend to compete with Jazz Club artists. In other words, more refined types of performers should be engaged

The lack of interest in this year's drive may be compared with the initial drop in support of motion pictures when television first ap-peared. But motion picture artists and pro-motion agents adjusted to the trend just as concert managers must do now. Movies emerged "better than ever." So can

TO THE EDITOR: As you all know the Associa-tion of Independent Men is promoting indi-vidual ticket sales to the Community Concerts. From the standpoint of students this is good, since it enables one to go to a concert, or con-certs, without purchasing a series trcket. We are sure that the Community Concert Association appreciates the backing that AIM

Here 'n' There Campus Notes

We've been looking around at other colleges and universities lately, and decided to pass on to our readers a few interesting notes from our neighbors.

It seems the parking situation is a universal problem in the collegiate world nowadays. Reports from Texas A & M, Auburn,

This practice is rotten.

It violates the laws of the University, the Commonwealth, and the federal government. It is morally wrong, reflects poorly on school spirit, and makes loyalty to Alma Mater a loughing motter. laughing matter.

Students scalping tickets will be subject to harsh punishments if apprehended, and de-servedly so. There is absolutely no excuse for scalping. It is just a rotten way to make some "easy money," and no one needs money that badly.
