

Jazz in Schwab

IT WAS JAZZ in the modern vein as members of the Modern Jazz Quartet explored the "new trend in sound" Saturday night in Schwab Auditorium. Approximately 900 jazz enthusiasts attended. The quartet improvised on classical themes—the current rage in modern jazz. Giving the listeners a sample are Connie Kay on the drums, Percy Heath at the string bass, and Mill Jackson on the vibraphone.

Modern Jazz Club Concert Attended by 900 Persons

Approximately 900 persons attended the Modern Jazz Quartet concert Saturday night in Schwab Auditorium.

The Jazz Club, sponsors of the concert, broke even on the performance, Frank Munz, publicity chairman of the club, announced.

One hundred twenty memberships were sold at the door, bringing the total membership of the Jazz Club to about 500. Approximately $640 was received at the door. The cost of the Quartet was $600, with $40 remaining to pay other expenses.

Members of the Quartet complimented Saturday night's audience as being receptive and courteous, according to Munz. The audience appeared to enjoy the concert, Munz added. The music was quiet and subdued, and the group seemed to be well rehearsed and polished, he said.

John Lewis, pianist, presented an explanation of the type of music the group played.

The Quartet opened the concert with an illustration of the canon, a composition in two or more parts employing imitation in its strictest form. The group then progressed to more complicated counter-pointed forms and built the rest of the concert on the modern jazz basis.

Dairy Team 11th In Inter-Collegiate Judging Contest

The Dairy Judging team placed 11th in a field of 34 in the National Dairy Cattle Inter-Collegiate Judging contest last week in Waterloo, Iowa.

The team, which was first in the Ayrshire breeds, third in the Holsteins and Brown Swiss, and seventh in the Guernseys, was leading the contest until it placed thirty-second in the Jerseys. Cornell won the contest, which was entered by colleges from the United States and Canada.

Fred Seipt, senior from Lansdale, was the third highest in the nation in individual Ayrshire judging.

Other members of the team are David Morrow, senior from Tyrone; Darwin Braund, senior from Sayre; and James Hutchinson, junior from Cecil. All are animal husbandry majors.

Monday the team will enter the Inter-Collegiate contests of the International Dairy Show in Chicago. The squad is coached by Gilbert H. Porter, instructor in dairy husbandry.

Hotel Greeters to Meet

The Penn State Hotel Greeters will meet at 8:30 tonight in the Home Economics Cafeteria.

Symposium Opens Art Exhibition

Approximately 200 persons attended the sessions of the symposium held Saturday for the opening of the Centennial major loan exhibition on "Pennsylvania Painters."

Four authorities in the field of American art participated. Edgar P. Richardson, director of the Detroit Art Institute, described the arts that took place in Philadelphia during the half century following the American Revolution.

Sculpture and sculptors were discussed by Dorothy Graffy, Philadelphia art editor and critic. In a talk "Sculpture Then and Now," she drew parallels between the old and new traditions in the field.

The work of Thomas Eakins, outstanding Philadelphia painter, and its relationship to the late 19th-early 20th century realistic movement in American art was discussed by Lloyd Goodrich, associate director of the Whitney Museum of American Art.

Benton Spruance, Philadelphia artist, spoke on Pennsylvania print makers. Thirty-three of Spruance's lithographs are now on display in the Hetzel Union Building.

The Centennial exhibition, which will continue through Nov. 6 in the Mineral Industries art gallery, will remain open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays and Saturdays, and from 2 to 9 p.m. Sundays.

F. Cuthbert Salmon, associate professor of architecture, and Yar G. Chomicky, assistant professor of art education, were in charge of the installation of the paintings.

Players, Thespians Tickets on Sale

Tickets for "Take Ten," original Thespian musical-comedy, and "The Rainmaker," romantic comedy produced by the Penn State Players, went on sale yesterday at the Hetzel Union desk.

"The Rainmaker" tickets cost $1. The show will open Friday and Saturday at the Extension Conference Center and will run on successive Friday and Saturday evenings throughout the weekend of Nov. 19.

"Take Ten" tickets cost $1 for Thursday night and $1.25 for Friday and Saturday night productions.

LA Coffee Hour Postponed

The first Liberal Arts Student Council coffee hour has been postponed from Oct. 11 until Oct. 18. It will be held at 4 p.m. at Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Foreign Service Exam Date Set

The second written examination under revised procedures will be given for students interested in Foreign Service careers on Dec. 9. Candidates must file their requests before Oct. 21. Forms are available at the department of political science in 119 Sparks.

Applicants should be at least 20 and under 31 years of age, a United States citizen for at least ten years, and, if married, married to an American citizen.

Rufus Z. Smith, Foreign Service Officer, will be at the University on Oct. 12 in the Green Lounge of Atherton Hall at 7 p.m. He will be available for interviews in 213 Willard from 3-5 p.m. of the same day. Smith has recently returned from Thailand where he was the American Consul.

Coaly Society Meeting

The Coaly Society will hold its first meeting of the year tonight in 209 Hetzel Union, following the Agriculture Student Council meeting.

Convocation

Furnas to Address Convocation Session

Dr. Clifford C. Furnas, chancellor of the University of Buffalo, will speak in the closing plenary session of the Centennial Convocation at 10:45 a.m. Oct. 22 in 121 Sparks.

Dr. Furnas will summarize the round table discussions on research.

President Milton S. Eisenhower will give the opening plenary session address. Other speakers will be John Cowles, president of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune Co.; Dr. Carroll V. Newsom, executive vice chancellor of New York University; and Dr. Francis H. Squire, dean of the University of Delaware, who will replace Dr. Colgate W. Darden, president of the University of Virginia. Dr. Darden, a member of the United States mission to the United Nations, was forced to cancel because of a UN meeting in New York.

MacKenzie is Chairman
Ossian R. MacKenzie, dean of the College of Business Administration, is chairman of the convocation general planning committee.

Dr. Furnas, a leading man in research himself, will work with the round-table discussions on research and summarize them at the closing plenary session. He has personally conducted a great deal of research in the fields of process metallurgy and physical chemistry. He has also specialized in and written many technical articles on fluid flow, heat transfer combustion and other phases of research related to the aviation field.

Dr. Furnas received his B.S. degree from Purdue University and his Ph.D. from the University of Michigan. Purdue awarded him the honorary Doctor of Engineering degree in 1946. In 1931 he joined the Yale University staff as associate professor in chemical engineering after doing research on metallurgical processes with the United States Bureau of Mines. In 1943 Dr. Furnas joined Curtiss-Wright as director of its research laboratory in Buffalo. When this lab was given to Cornell University in 1946, he became director of the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory.
