

MacKenzie Will Head Planning for Convocation

General committee chairman for the Centennial Convocation to be held October 21 and 22, is Ossian R. MacKenzie, dean of the College of Business Administration.

Other members of the general committee are Lyman E. Jackson, dean of the College of Agriculture, and Eric A. Walker, dean of the College of Engineering and Architecture.

Frosh Men To Receive IFC Book

The Interfraternity Council rushing booklet will be distributed to all freshman men sometime next week, O. Edward Pollock, assistant dean of men in charge of fraternity affairs, said yesterday. The booklet will not be available to upperclassmen.

Compiled by members of the 52 fraternities on campus and edited by Roger Beidler, Theta Delta Chi, the booklet is published by IFC in order to better acquaint the freshmen on campus with the workings of fraternities at the University, Pollock said.

The booklet explains the workings of IFC, its activities, and what fraternities have to offer to University students.

One section is devoted to small writeups about each fraternity, a fraternity directory, and a map with the locations of each fraternity.

Another section is devoted to fraternity members who are active in student affairs. A picture of each man in this section is accompanied by a small biographical sketch.

Other parts of the booklet include the rushing code, fraternity intramural sports, fraternity cost, outstanding fraternity athletes, and pledge life in a fraternity.

went to the AA office to exchange tickets "in good faith."

When he was told by AA officials that he was given a senior ticketbook at registration, he said he deduced that his ticketbook was switched at either the library or the Lion's Den in the Hetzel Union Building, where he said he went after registration.

He also said he sold his ticketbook for $3 after he went to the opening game and sat "behind the goal-posts." He claimed he could not identify the student he sold his book to since he was a member of his economics class until the section was split.

Edward M. Czeka, AA ticket manager, said in a statement to the dean of men's office, that several other students who were issued tickets in correct sections attempted to exchange their tickets. He failed to take their names, he said.

University and internal revenue laws prohibit the sale of tickets, according to McCoy. However, "not transferable" is not printed on the special football tickets. It is printed on the regular AA books.

Concert Membership For Series Totals 832

Eight hundred thirty-two memberships to the Community Concert Series were sold during the program's two-week campaign, David H. McKinley, president of the Concert Association in State College, has announced.

For the second time in the six years the programs have been offered at the University, the campaign fell short of the 1230 member goal. The seating capacity of Schwab Auditorium is 1230.

1150 Sold

Last year, 1150 memberships were sold. During the previous years, the total of 1230 was reached, and in one case the goal was reached only 48 hours after the new member campaign opened.

The campaign is divided into two parts: a week for members to renew their memberships and a week for others to obtain memberships.

The Association of Independent Men has not yet determined the procedure for selling its block of 30 tickets, Bruce Lieske, AIM president, said yesterday.

To Open Oct. 22

The series will open with the Philharmonic Piano Quartet, Oct. 22, and will include the Virtuosi di Roma on Jan. 9. The Concert Series Board met Monday to determine the other two concerts of the series. The dates and participants for these two concerts must be confirmed by the New York office.

The announcement of the entire series will be made following the confirmation by the New York office.

Leonides Reports Probable Plans For Coffee Hours

Leonides, independent women's organization, at a meeting Monday night, discussed a plan to sponsor informal coffee hours and meals in the dormitory units once a week.

The plan was introduced to help alleviate the apathy which is reported to have risen among upperclass independent women, and also to create a closer spirit among the independent women.

Leonides also approved the organization of an AIM-Leonides choral group to sing secular music. The chorus is now in the process of formation.

The group voted to partially reimburse the Association of Independent Men for jointly sponsored affairs.

Camille Blount, co-chairman of the Autumn Ball, announced that tickets will be sold at the dance Saturday night.

Thespians to Crown Homecoming Queen

The Thespian Centennial Homecoming Queen was selected Monday night but her name won't be disclosed until the finale of the Thursday night production of "Take Ten."

The original Thespian revue gets underway at 8 p.m. in Schwab Auditorium.

She was chosen by the coaches and members of the football team from among five finalists.

The five finalists were selected by the faculty members on the Thespian Board of Control.

The finalists were asked five questions by the men, and then the queen was selected.

The five finalists are Valerie Fife, Joyce Koch, Ruth Kronenwetter, Lyn Myers, and Barbara Rhinehart.

Student Authors

"Take Ten" was written by Michael Rosenfeld, Phillip Wein, a member of the cast, and Louis Fryman, director of the show. Rosenfeld wrote the songs, and all three wrote the script.

The show traces the history of the University from five years before its beginning in 1855. Each of the ten scenes represents a decade, and the main expansion in the University's program during each decade, Fryman said.

The show will open with the prologue "Harrisburg Or Bust," and a skit depicting the first meeting of the Agricultural Society of America, which founded the University.

Comedy Scene

The first scene is a comedy scene showing the society's first meeting where they are deciding on the need for a school, its name, and where it should be located. It ends with the song "Centre is the Center of Education."

A ventriloquist act with Wein and his dummies Elmer and Sylvester Pine will do a parody on the first students on campus in the second scene.

The skit in the third scene will center around the coming of the first coeds to the campus, and the founding of the first societies on campus. It will feature the song "We're A Very Secret Society," and the "Dance of the First Coeds."

Depicts Football Team

"Professional Posers" a song depicting the first football team will highlight the fourth scene.

The fifth scene will parody the first Thespian production "The Rivals." Songs in the scene are "I'm the Leading Man and I'm the Leading Lady," "Crazy Corny-Goofy," "I Know It's You," and "Boys Will Be Girls."

Opening the second act will be the decade of the 1900's when the first summer session was organized.

Religious Scene

The second scene in the second act will contain the religious "That's My Prayer," to be sung by Michael McKay. This centers around World War I.

In the third scene the roaring twenties come out in full sway with Stanley Jacobs and Patricia Sherman singing "Love Affair of 1925," and "Liquor Is Quicker."

The fourth scene is a comedy scene which takes place during the depression and Robert Little stars.

Coed Problem

The problem of too many men and not enough women on campus during the war years is the theme of the fifth scene starring James Jimmire, Dominique Landro, and Gloria Litz.

The finale centers around the crowning of the Centennial Homecoming Queen and a University anniversary song is dedicated. The queen will be escorted to the throne by Fryman.

Senior Class Board Forms Due Wednesday

Applications for the senior class advisory board should be turned in at the Hetzel Union desk before noon next Wednesday.

Seniors with a 2.0 All-University average may submit applications. A long list of activities is not necessary in the application, Robert McMillan, senior class president said.
