Thespian Review To Open Tonight

Songs, dances, and skits will trace the history of the University at the original Thespian revue, "Take Ten," tonight, tomorrow night and Saturday night.

The show begins at 8 p.m. in Schwab Auditorium.

Michael Rosenfeld wrote the songs, and Phillip Wein, Louis Fryman and Rosenfeld wrote the scripts for the show.

Mary Tassia is choreographer and Fryman is director.

The three playwrights spent a week on campus writing and doing research for the play.

"Much research had to be done, because we had to have a complete and correct history of the school, with each song, dance, and costume in the correct period," Fryman said.

Show Traces History

The show traces the history of the University from the time it was still in the planning stage until the present Centennial year.

Each of the ten scenes represents a decade, and the skit in each scene centers around the main expansion in the University's program during that decade.

Fryman explained that extra problems have been caused by the length of time covered in the play, "but it will still be the most extensively-costumed show Thespians have ever produced," he said.

Segl Does Research

Walter Segl, who did the research for the costumes and settings, is chief of the construction and technical crews.

The crowning of the Centennial Homecoming Queen during the finale will climax the production. Some reprises will be taken in the finale and an anniversary song will be dedicated to the University. The queen will be escorted to her throne by Fryman.

She will be chosen from among the five finalists—Barbara Rinehart, Lyn Myers, Ruth Kronenwetter, Joyce Koch, and Valerie Fife.

Identity Kept Secret

One of the five was chosen queen Monday night by the football team and coaches, but her identity will not be disclosed until the Thursday show.

Tickets are on sale at the Hetzel Union desk for $1 for Thursday night's production and $1.25 for the Friday and Saturday night shows.

German Art Exhibited At Library

Five basic motifs of Pennsylvania German folk art are now on exhibition at the Pattee Library.

The exhibit, arranged by Walter E. Boyer, instructor in English composition, is composed of collections of artifacts from the Mahantongo Valley area of Dauphin and Northumberland counties. It will continue until Oct. 31.

The artifacts have been arranged to show the use of rhythmic lines, including the circle, the square, the heart and tulip, and the Tree of Life.

An additional group, which illustrates the use of the bird motif, is included to show the nature of secondary motifs in Pennsylvania German folk art.

The artifacts were arranged in this manner to suggest the probable symbolic value of the motifs. They are made of many materials, including paper, wool, linen, brass, iron, tin and wood. Included are five woolen coverlets, six quilts, cookie cutters, butter moulds, a number of "taufscheins" (birth and baptismal certificates), original examples of the work of John Paul of Elizabethville, and photostats of work by Samuel Diehl.

Boyer has been collecting Pennsylvania German artifacts of the Mahantongo Valley area for 15 years. His collection includes one of the only two known pottery wine coolers.
