

Players to Present 'Rainmaker' Tonight

How a Western family is affected by the appearance of a "rainmaker" during a time of drought is the plot of "The Rainmaker," which will be presented at 8 p.m. tomorrow and Saturday night at the Extension Conference Center.

It will continue on successive Friday and Saturday nights through Nov. 19.

Tickets are on sale for $1 at the Hetzel Union desk.

The Penn State players, dramatics group, are producing the play, which is the first Center Stage show of the semester. Center Stage productions are arena-type theater plays.

A world of drama techniques opened at the University with the initiation of arena-type staging in 1946.

Range in Productions

Center Stage productions have ranged from Broadway hits to classics. Among the recent plays were such New York successes as "Bell, Book, and Candle," "The Corn is Green," "Children of Darkness," "On Approval," "The Moon Is Blue," "Pick Up Sticks," "Gentle People," "Biography," and "You Can't Take It With You."

Classical dramas and comedies presented were Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler," Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," and George Bernard Shaw's "Major Barbara." The group also presented a work of the famous Irish dramatist, Sean O'Casey, "Juno and the Paycock."

Roster Includes Three

In addition to "The Rainmaker," this year's roster includes "Picnic," "The Alchemist," and "The Lady's Not for Burning."

Players will also present "The Mikado" and "An Inspector Calls" at Schwab Auditorium.

As its name implies, Center Stage presents its plays in the center of the auditorium with the audience grouped around it. Darkness is the only curtain, and the lights are turned out between scenes.

Players was first organized in 1919. Since then its repertory has been a varied one. The plays have ranged from a Greek drama by Sophocles to a Broadway hit such Four delegates who attended the National Student Association Congress this summer at the University of Minnesota will present their report at tonight's meeting. On Sunday, Cabinet will meet in the assembly hall of the Hetzel Union building to hear a report by Ray Farabee, vice president of the student government branch of NSA, on the organization. In two weeks, Cabinet will decide whether or not to affiliate with NSA, Seely said.

Cabinet will also decide whether to sponsor and finance the trip of a member of the body to the United Nations Assembly. If more than one member wishes to go, and Cabinet approves that action, the names will probably be placed in a hat for selection, Seely said. Last year, Millie McGowan, Women's Recreation Association president, made the trip.

An amendment to Cabinet's constitution, providing for a seat on the body if one of its members is absent, will be read by Philip Beard, All-University secretary-treasurer, for the third time. If approved, the amendment will go into effect.

It provides for a seat on Cabinet by the second highest member in the hierarchy of the absent member's organization.

Identification--

'Scalpers' Reported Student "scalpers" are reportedly selling their tickets for as high as $20.

By selling their tickets, students are not only breaking University and revenue laws, but are also demonstrating "a lack of school spirit," McCoy said.

The words "not transferable" are printed on the regulation AA book. However, the warning is not on the special tickets.

Official Receives Calls Edward M. Czepak, AA ticket manager, said he received calls as early as last month from persons who had purchased tickets from students. He said they wanted to know whether the tickets would be honored at the gate.

AA officials have asked students to notify their office of anyone who is selling tickets, especially at high prices.

Extra guards and policemen will be on duty at the game to cope with the expected sell-out crowd, McCoy said.

Campus Chest--

David Richards, men's dormitories; Donna Reid, women's dormitories; Donald Reidenbaugh, fraternities; Martha Fleming and Susan Hill, sororities; Carolyn Miller, town women; Alpha Phi Omega, town men.

Students interested in helping with Campus Chest should submit their name, address, telephone number, and semester at the Hetzel Union desk. A 2.0 All-University average, under the new grading system, is required.

A mixer for solicitors will be held at 8 p.m. Monday in the ballroom of the Hetzel Union Building. Supplies and information will be distributed to the committees, followed by dancing and refreshments.

Police Ask Aid During Weekend

The police department in State College has reminded area residents that all available parking facilities will be needed this weekend.

It has been suggested that apartments and private homes having Homecoming visitors make provisions for off-street parking spaces wherever possible.
