

Cabinet Debates NSA; Discussion Postponed

By ED DUBBS

The majority of All-University Cabinet members involved in a heated debate last night on whether the University should resume membership in the National Student Association indicated they would approve such a move.

No final action was taken as Cabinet members voted unanimously to postpone the debate until next Thursday. The motion was made by Douglas Moorhead, president of the Athletic Association.

Robert Bullock, Interfraternity Council president, probably the most outstanding opponent to NSA at the meeting, read a list of international objectives of NSA. He asked: "What does this have to do with the student at Pennsylvania State University?"

770 Given Academic Probation

Seven hundred and seventy students have been placed on academic probation for this semester.

Breakdown shows 687 men and 83 women.

The list of students has been published in the Faculty Directory so advisers to student organizations can check to see if any one holding an office in the activity is on probation.

Students on academic probation may participate in extracurricular activities as members, but they cannot hold an office or be a member of a committee.

The published list is part of the crackdown on academic probation conducted by the office of the dean of men.

University law states that students who fail 35 per cent of their credits for any semester, and who are not dropped because their All-University average does not fall below 1.65, will be placed on academic probation.

All students whose All-University averages fall below 1.65, are also placed on probation. If a student's All-University average falls below 1.5, and the student has not had a 2.2 or better for his "most recent" semester or a 2.0 or better for "each of his two most recent semesters," he will be dropped from the University.

Some Colleges also have probation regulations.

Four Freshmen Elected to WRA, Senate Positions

Two freshman women were elected as representatives to Women's Student Government Association Senate and two other freshmen were elected to Women's Recreation Association in the final elections yesterday.

Priscilla Doll, education major from York; and Sandra Shogren, arts and letters major from Swissvale, were elected to Senate.

Elected to WRA were Patricia Ulrich, home economics major from Mechanicsburg; and Judith McFarland, home economics major from Wayne.

Two hundred forty-eight persons voted in the primaries as compared with the 334 vote in the final election.

Miss Doll and Miss Shogren will be installed Wednesday. Miss Ulrich and Miss McFarland will attend the WRA meeting Tuesday.

Freshman women who entered the primaries or the finals may pick up their pictures in the dean of women's office today.

Robert Smoot, former NSA coordinator on campus, told Cabinet that the question should not read "What can NSA do for Penn State, but what can Penn State get out of NSA?"

"Here we sit in our little room in the Hetzel Union building and don't know anything about what's going on in other schools," Samuel Walcott, sophomore class president and a delegate to the August NSA convention, said.

"What has Penn State ever done for anybody? I'm talking about students, not graduates," he said.

Bahrenburg Supports NSA
Robert Bahrenburg, junior class president, said that "there are things 7000 miles from here that concern us. We'll find out about these things by going to NSA conventions."

Bullock and Norman Miller, acting chairman of the Board of Publications, indicated they did not approve of NSA as a lobbying organization.

"When students mix with politics, politicians mix with students," Miller said.

NSA Not a Lobby
However, Harold Dean, a member of Cabinet Secretarial staff, and Assistant Dean of Men Harold W. Perkins, said that NSA holds no license to lobby.

Miller, who attacked NSA in an editorial in yesterday's Daily Collegian, said that "NSA might be doing something, but I'd like to know what they are doing. None of the delegates to the Convention seem to be able to agree on that point."

Smoot, early in the debate, disputed Miller's editorial.

Officers Directed by Group
Smoot said that the NSA published a report of the organization's annual convention and that the officers spend the year carrying out what was passed at the student convention.

Perkins told Cabinet that "it's up to Penn State to see that NSA does what Penn State thinks NSA should do."

This can be done, he said, by sending delegates to the national convention.

Ray Farabee, vice president of the student government branch of NSA, will address Cabinet members at a special session at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the assembly room of the Hetzel Union building.

Farabee will explain the objectives of the organization and

Hibbs Fund Donations Deadline Set

Organizations and individuals planning to make contributions to the Hibbs Memorial Fund should do so as soon as possible, Helen Sittig, assistant to the dean of women, said yesterday.

Miss Sittig said several groups have authorized payment of a specified sum to the fund, but have not turned in the money as yet.

The deadline for submitting contributions is Oct. 29. Contributions will be received by Miss Sittig in the dean of women's office, 105 Old Main.

The fund, which is being administered by Women's Student Government Association, was set up last week to honor Mrs. Cordelia L. Hibbs, former assistant dean of women, who died Oct. 11 after an illness of nearly a year.

It was established when several students decided to send flowers or some other tribute after Mrs. Hibbs' death. The former dean's family requested that instead of flowers, the money be used for some campus project.

After all contributions to the fund have been received, a project for use of the fund will be selected. Miss Sittig said that a gift for the Helen Eaken Eisenhower Memorial Chapel has been suggested, but no consideration has been given to any one project as yet.

the services it presents to colleges and universities. Cabinet members will be free to ask questions concerning the association, Beard said.

He requested that the members become well acquainted with NSA and its functions so they may intelligently discuss the question of resumption of membership by the University at next Thursday's meeting.

Tickets for Mitchell Speech On Sale Today in Sparks, HUB

Tickets will be out today for the Career Day speech of James P. Mitchell, United States Secretary of Labor.

The tickets will be free and may be obtained by Business Administration students in 106 Sparks. Other students may get their tickets at the Hetzel Union desk.

Tickets will also be distributed at the State College Chamber of Commerce for town students and the public.

Career Day, an annual event sponsored by the College of Business Administration, will be held on Nov. 11. It will consist of a day-long series of panel discussions pertaining to various fields of business and will be concluded by Secretary Mitchell's speech at 8 p.m. in Schwab Auditorium. Tickets will not be needed for the afternoon panel discussions.

Last year's Career Day speaker was Ralph J. Bunche, director of the trusteeship department of the United Nations.

The panel discussions will be divided into sections, each dealing with a certain phase of business. Panels will be composed of representatives from various business fields.

Panel discussions will be open to business administration students only. Students may attend any panel of their choice.

Career Day is designed to give students the chance to explore the opportunities in major fields of business and to learn character qualities and education essentials necessary for success in the business world.

McAllister Hall Repairs Begin

Workmen started last Friday to repair the slate roof and replace the rain gutter on McAllister Hall.

The men will install a new rain gutter around the entire roof and will replace three or four rows of slate above the gutter, according to Charles Lamm, supervisor of building maintenance and operations.

Lamm said the men will work as long as possible before winter, but will have to continue the job next spring.

He said he believes the present roof is still the original one.

McAllister Hall was built in 1905.
