Hostetter Plans 1956 Retirement

Parties Call For Change In Saarland

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar, Oct. 24 (AP)—Victorious German parties in the Saar tonight called on the Western European Union to supervise a new governmental election in this little border territory to replace Premier Johannes Hoffmann.

West German Vice Chancellor Franz Bluecher—describing the Saarlanders' plebiscite against Europeanization as "a victory of reason"—led the Bonn Cabinet in proposing new French-German negotiations on the fate of the long-disputed border coal basin.

Control Threatened

France sat tight, its 10-year economic control of the Saar obviously threatened by the upsurge of German national feeling, but there were indications from Paris that some kind of calm compromise would be sought.

Premier Edgar Faure and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer exchanged telegrams, expressing their conviction that German-French relations must not be upset by the results of the Saar election.

Suspicion Is Manifest

In other capitals of Europe, tied to both France and West Germany by the NATO alliance, anxiety and suspicion were manifest over the Saar's home-to-the-fatherland trend. Inevitably, it conjured up memories of the plebiscite for union with Nazi Germany 20 years ago.

In Friedrichsthal, 120 coal miners demanded and won the resignation of their mayor, a member of Hoffmann's Christian People's party. But elsewhere in the Saar people went quietly back to work after weeks of hectic politics.

Erle Sparks, John M. Thomas, Ralph D. Hetzel, and Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower.

His retirement was accepted "with reluctance" by the executive committee of the Board of Trustees at its latest meeting.

In his letter to Dr. Eisenhower announcing his retirement, Hostetter said:

"The privilege of working with you during these past five years has made the culmination of my 48 years of service with the University a fine and rewarding experience."

In his reply, Dr. Eisenhower said:

Few men in American education have so conspicuously contributed to the building of a single institution of higher education as you have done at Penn State. In your nearly half century of service, you have helped the institution develop from a small college to one of the largest state universities in the nation; you have kept the financial and physical structures of the University in an enviable condition, and at the same time you have helped the deans, department heads, and faculty construct an ever-growing educational, research, and extension program of the highest quality. And in doing this you have had the respect and friendship of all."

Hostetter

Starting in 1908, his first job was an assistant in administration. In 1910, after having served also as acting financial agent, he became purchasing agent. In 1923, he added to these duties those of the manager of dormitories.

In 1935, Dr. Hetzel appointed him to the new position of assistant to the president in charge of business and finance. He continued with this title until 1950 when he was designated as comptroller of the University. He has been treasurer of the University and of the Board of Trustees since 1936.

A Losing Cause

WILL HE MAKE IT? That's what the Penn State bench seems to be saying on play late in the fourth quarter of Saturday's game. Left to right are Dan Radakovich, Jay Livzley, Jack Farls, Walt Mazur, and Emil Caprara. West Virginia won, 21-7, to remain undefeated. This Saturday the Lions face Penn in a traditional game in Philadelphia.

W. Va. Manpower Whips Lions, 21-7

By ROY WILLIAMS

A year-long problem for Lion football coach Rip Engle—size and depth—proved its prominence Saturday when Penn State fell to West Virginia before a record-breaking overflow crowd of 34,400 at Morgantown, W. Va., 21-7.

For nearly three quarters, Penn State held against the two-platoon football of West Virginia that had moved the Mountaineers to the number eight slot in college football ratings. In the final 21 minutes the effect of Coach Art Lewis' merry-go-round substitution techniques was felt as he replaced a solid first string with equally powerful—and well-rested—gridders.

During those final 21 minutes West Virginia rolled up 21 points, 14 in the final stanza, as Penn State was unable to contain the Mountaineers' clever offensive attack.

Until the third quarter, when West Virginia cracked through on a 93-yard TD drive in eight plays, Engle's defense—he used practically his entire bench—was the best the Lions' have shown all year.

West Virginia out-manned the Lions, and in the third quarter the effect was evident as it took command; even while West Virginia was scoring three times, however, the Lions' defense showed spots of greatness—particularly the timely punting efforts of scrappy Jim Hochberg, who punted twice with his back to the wall at the end of his own end zone. He got the Lions out of two deep holes with his high-booming kicks.

Two Collegian Staffs To Meet Tonight

The Daily Collegian advertising staff will meet at 6:30 tonight in 9 Carnegie. Members should bring their signed contracts to the meeting. Collegian business candidates will meet at 7 tonight in 217 Willard.

A few fraternities and independent groups have still not turned in their money, he said. If they do not do so within this week, they will be confiscated personally.

John Riggs, chairman of Campus Chest committee, said that the drive was planned as well as possible up to the drive, but should have been managed more efficiently during the drive.

"It is deplorable that the drive turned out so poorly," Riggs said. "In some cases all but a few members of fraternities gave $2 or more, while in others assessments (Continued on page three)

2d Student Injured in Car Crash

A freshman in chemistry from Philadelphia was killed and another freshman was injured early Saturday morning when the car in which they were riding went out of control and crashed near State College.

Dead is William McGarvey, 24, who received a fractured skull and was pronounced dead upon arrival at the Centre County Hospital.

Injured was Alexander Christie, 25, freshman in civil engineering from Philadelphia. Christie received lacerations of the right eyelid, forehead, and left arm, and brushburns of the chest, right arm and both legs. Hospital attendants reported his condition as satisfactory yesterday afternoon.

Scene of the accident was near an intersection on Benner Pike, approximately four miles east of State College.

State Police said the accident occurred when the car went out of control after passing the intersection, ran across the highway, hit a tree, and bounced to the other side of the highway into a guard rail.

After hitting the guard rail, the car, a convertible, rolled over on its top. It was completely demolished.

The two men were returning to State College from Bellefonte, according to reports.

Police said they were unable to determine the cause of the accident. They said road conditions were good and the weather was clear at the time of crash.

McGarvey, who was released from the Navy last April, was a 1949 graduate of Northeast High School, Philadelphia. Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. McGarvey, Philadelphia, and a younger brother and sister.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a.m. today at the Fluehr Funeral Home, Philadelphia. Requiem High Mass will be observed at 11 a.m. in the St. Timothy Catholic Church. Burial will follow at the Our Lady of Grace Cemetery.

The dean of men's office reported yesterday that it had not determined whether Christie had a permit to keep the car on campus. Freshmen are subject to a car ban.

Campus Chest Collects $100 More in Donations

Over $100 in contributions were turned into Campus Chest after the official close of the four-day solicitations Friday night.

This amount did little to raise the final proceeds, which fell short of the $6000 goal by $2,483.10. Tabulations Friday night amounted to $3,516.90.

Acacia won the fraternity trophy with $83.50, and Kappa Kappa Gamma contributed $144.65 to win the trophy for the sorority. Both groups had 100 per cent of the members contributing, and the highest amounts of money.

B level Hamilton Hall had the highest percentage for independents with 96 men contributing $89.15.

Solicitations from the Campus Chest drive last year amounted to $4059.59, less than two-thirds of the $7250 goal.

The average contribution per person was 35 cents, which is very poor for University students, Fred Romig, tabulations chairman, said. The original goal was $1 per per-

Hat Societies Approve New Tapping System

A new system of tapping in place of the applications for men's hat societies was approved at a meeting of Hat Society Council last night.

Under the new system, all men students will fill out a card listing activities, All-University average, and hat society preference. The cards will be available at the Hetzel Union desk.

At the time of tapping, societies will select the new members from the cards, and then will send letters to the men inviting them to become members.

Cards will be available as soon as they are printed, and should be filed by every man who thinks he has the activities and potentiality for a society. The system will go into effect next semester.

Reidenbaugh Presents Plan Donald Reidenbaugh, representing Skull and Bones, senior society, presented the plan to the Council. He said that the system was suggested because the present tapping plan involves no honor, since a man has to ask to become a member. Too many men sit down to their typewriters the night before applications are due, and tell the society what a great guy they are just for the sake of a hat, he added. Some men don't even apply because they don't think they are worthy.

System Maintains Prestige The new system will help to revive the justification of hat societies, he explained, and to maintain the prestige of a service as well as honorary society.

At the time of tapping, information will be distributed to fraternities, sororities, and independent groups on the hat societies.
