

Lions to Meet Winless Penn

Lions Given Heavy Edge In 44th Tilt

By ROY WILLIAMS
Penn State visits Franklin Field tomorrow to take on its traditional football grid foe, the Quakers of Pennsylvania, with the hopes that history will repeat itself.

The Lions, for the first time in three weeks have been tagged the favorites. They are given a 26-point edge for Saturday's game which is expected to draw 25,000 fans.

Last year Penn, seeking its first victory of the season against the Lions, scored first but finally gave way to the Lions' pressure and yielded a 35-13 victory.

The hero of the engagement was Lenny Moore, the fleet half-back, who has been held in check pretty successfully for the last five games.

Coach Rip Engle, however, has no intentions of "yanking" Moore. Thus far Moore has been a stand-out on defense—his presence alone in the backfield provides a definite offensive threat.

As far as the Penn game of 1954 is concerned, Moore has vivid memories. He scored first on a nine-yard plunge off tackle, added another on a 60-yard scamper, and tallied an unneeded six-pointer on a 57-yard pass interception.

Here's how Engle feels about him: "He's not running as far, that's sure, but he's still a lot of football player, perhaps the best all-around back in the country. I don't think there's a better back, defensively, and offensively he's a threat every time he gets his hands on the ball."

Halfback Billy Kane, who played one of his best games last Saturday, was also a standout last year in picking up 113 yards on the ground including a 53-yard sprint.

Against West Virginia he picked up 46 yards in seven tries including a 34-yard run.

Kane and Moore along with quarterback Bobby Hoffman and Jim Hochberg, the punting specialist who has received so much attention after his spree against the Mountaineers, and Buck Straub will round out the backfield. Joe Sabol, soph fullback and his classmate Emil Caprara, plus halfbacks Bobby Allen and Ray Alberigi will be in line for action.

Fight on State

CHEERLEADERS, backed up by the Air Force Reserve Officers' Training Corps band, lead the students in a song at the Penn State-Penn pep rally last night. Approximately 350 students attended the affair.

Enthusiasm Reigns At Penn Pep Rally

By ED DUBBS

A small but enthusiastic group of approximately 350 students turned out last night in front of Old Main for the Penn State-Penn pep rally.

On hand for the rally were the cheerleaders, the Air Force Reserve Officers' Training Corps marching band, Dean of Men Frank J. Simes, and coach John T. White, and Lion co-captain

IFC to Discuss Plans For Gridiron Dance

Interfraternity Council will discuss the Gridiron Dance, scheduled for Pitt weekend, at the IFC meeting, 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Hetzel Union Assembly Hall.

The dance will be sponsored by IFC.

Also on the agenda is a report on Fraternity Marketing Association by John Seastone, student member of the FMA board of trustees.

Otto Kneidinger.

Simes, amid hoots from freshmen, presented a plaque to Samuel Walcott, sophomore class president, for the sophomores' victory over the freshmen in the "Big Pull."

The "Big Pull," a tug-of-war which ended customs, was held Oct. 15. It pitted 22 sophomores against 22 freshmen custom violators.

Sophs Have Most Pull

Simes, in presenting the plaque, a three-foot length of board with a piece of the rope attached, said the victory showed the sophomores were the "class with the most pull."

White pointed out that although the Quakers have not won a game since they beat Navy two years ago, "they are trying."

"I don't think they can beat Penn State as far as the morale showing here tonight," he said.

Kneidinger said he hopes "you all will turn out for the game and support the team."

Comedians on Hand

Also on hand were comedian Howard Levine, senior in pre-med from Spring Valley, N.M., and his sidekick, Harris Coleman, junior in arts and letters from Allentown. Levine told of his experiences in Philadelphia for the game last year.

Members and pledges of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity and Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority appeared in Halloween costumes, which were worn for a joint party before the pep rally.

Before the rally, a parade through the west end of campus was led by the AFROTC band.

The rally was sponsored by Skull and Bones, senior men's hat society, and Scrolls, senior women's hat society.

No Collegian Tomorrow

The Daily Collegian will not be published tomorrow due to the Penn half-holiday. The next regular issue of the Collegian will be Tuesday.

Parties to Start Fall Campaigns For Elections

The two campus political parties will start campaigning Monday to promote their candidates for the freshman and sophomore class offices. Elections will be held Nov. 10 and 11.

In an attempt to create more interest in campus elections, the All-University Elections Committee will begin an impartial campaign later next week. In the spring elections, only 37.7 per cent of the student body voted.

The Lion party candidates for the freshman class offices are Samuel Moyer, president; Arthur Plautz, vice president; and Mary Nash, secretary-treasurer.

Campus party steering committee last night debated some of the campaign procedures for the coming freshman and sophomore elections on Nov. 10 and 11.

No action was taken by the committee on establishing an "open letter" type of platform which, as described by clique chairman Allen Davies, would indicate the "past, present, and future" of the party's suggestions on improving student activities.

Running for the freshman class offices in the Campus party are Bruce Walsh, president; Alvin Clemens, vice president; and Dolores Dodson, secretary-treasurer.

Campus party sophomore class candidates are William Coalie, president; Richard Holman, vice president; and Patricia Moran, secretary-treasurer.

The campaigns are closely regulated by the Elections Committee by rules set down in the elections code. A political party may not spend more than $150 for publicity purposes.

Party platforms will be submitted to the committee next week for its approval. Neither party has yet set up a platform.

The committee also will meet with the clique chairmen to answer any questions, clarify the elections code, or hear any complaints of code violations. Another (Continued on page eight)

Walker Says His New Post Helps Research

Dr. Eric A. Walker, dean of the College of Engineering and Architecture, said yesterday he looks upon the new office of vice president of the University as a step in coordinating research at the University.

Walker will take over the newly created position of vice president on June 30, 1956. One of his three principal functions will be to coordinate and stimulate the research program.

Walker explained that only two of the three educational areas constituting the University—resident instruction and general extension—have coordinators at the top.

The colleges conducting research have no overall representative, and operate independently, he said.

He added that he plans no change in the research procedure or operations. Of his appointment, he said he was "happy" to receive it and looks forward to the "great honor" of working with Dr. Eisenhower.

Walker is also a candidate for the State College borough council in the November elections. Asked if his new appointment will affect his candidacy, he said he doesn't see how it would.

German Unity Starts Big Four Deadlock

GENEVA, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Big Four foreign ministers convened today and quickly found themselves deadlocked on European security and the unification of Germany—the basic questions "the spirit of Geneva" has been unable to reconcile.

All paid tribute to the cause of world peace in this follow-up to the summit conference of their chiefs of government here last July. But their opposing policies on the two big issues remained basically unaltered.

Pinay Leads

France's Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay spearheaded the West's case as chairman, although his government may fall tomorrow. He urged an immediate decision on a plan for simultaneously uniting Germany and making Europe secure. But he said the North Atlantic Treaty Organization defense alliance could not be sacrificed.

Russia's V. M. Molotov, demanded the gradual dissolution of NATO and rejected "a mechanical merger" of Germany on Western terms.

Soviet Blocks

On a point of order, the Soviet foreign minister blocked the West's effort to introduce tonight its long-heralded proposal for coupling free German elections with a security guarantee to Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

He insisted discussion should not begin on Item 1 of the agenda until tomorrow, when he, too, will have a proposal ready.

Two Articles Speculate On Prexy as Candidate

The "quiet boom" to push Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower into the political eye received a push this week through an article in a national magazine and a nationally syndicated column.

In its November issue, American Magazine carries a six-page article on Dr. Eisenhower, complete with pictures showing him with his brother, President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Hal Boyle, whose Associated Press column is carried by over 800 newspapers, yesterday devoted an entire column to Dr. Eisenhower. The column appeared four days after Boyle visited the University to speak to a banquet of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity.

Titled "Spotlight on Milton Eisenhower," the American Magazine article presents mainly a biographical sketch of Dr. Eisenhower. It was written by Vance Packard, a graduate of the University.

Writes Boyle: "How would you feel if your well-loved brother suddenly were stricken ill, and people began to suggest maybe you were the man to take over his job eventually."

"This is the spot President Milton Eisenhower of the Pennsylvania State University finds himself in today. It is an embarrassing spot, and not at all to his liking."

Boyle said a "quiet boom" has developed in support of Dr. Eisenhower since many people feel that President Eisenhower will not seek a second term.

Boyle, in commenting on the fact that Dr. Eisenhower has remained silent about the "quiet boom," quotes a friend, whom he does not identify, as saying: "What else could he say? If he said anything else—no matter what it was—it would be misconstrued."

Boyle, in presenting a biographical sketch of Dr. Eisenhower, said that "Who's Who in America" devotes 47 lines to Dr. Eisenhower and 24 to President Eisenhower.
