

Lions Top Penn, 20-0; North, Calderone Injured; Moore Gains 49 Yards

By ROY WILLIAMS

Penn State, maintaining possession for nearly the first nine minutes, shot off to a two-touchdown lead over Penn Saturday, and capped it off with another score with less than half a minute to play to even its slate at 3-3 for the Centennial season, with three games to go.

But for Coach Rip Engle it was a costly 20-0 win. Penn, playing an inspired game for a full 60 minutes—it was expected—placed one Lion griddy, and Paul North, on the injured list for the remainder of the season, and another on the same list for at least two weeks.

Prexy Sees Ike Again On Weekend

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of the University, has returned from a weekend visit with his brother in Denver, his third since the President's heart attack of Sept. 24.

Dr. Eisenhower arrived in Denver Saturday and participated in a conference between President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, the New York Times reported yesterday. Dr. Eisenhower left for the East Sunday after having seen his brother again in the morning.

Meanwhile, the United Press reported in a poll of 100 men of most fields of adult activity that Dr. Eisenhower was the choice of six for the presidential candidacy.

In the nation-wide poll, Vice President Richard M. Nixon led the field with 36 votes, and Chief Justice Earl Warren ran second with 25.

Dr. Eisenhower tied former Governor of New York Thomas E. Dewey for third place, and Senator William F. Knowland ran next with five choices.

About Nixon's first-place selection, the UP said: "An important factor in Mr. Nixon's political situation is suggested by a study of the other Republican choices. Most of them are Eisenhower Republicans or liberal Republicans as contrasted with the right wing of the party."

In taking the poll, the UP asked the representative individuals to say whom they believed to be at this time the most likely presidential candidates next year if President Eisenhower did not run.

Home Ec Council To Discuss Open House

Plans for the Home Economics Open House will be discussed at a meeting of the student council at 7 tonight in the Home Economics Living Center.

Voting for Prom Queen

Voting for the Junior Prom queen will be held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. today and tomorrow at the Hetzel Union desk.

Members of the junior class may vote. Matriculation cards must be shown.

Jack Calderone, junior 210-pound tackle, is expected to return to campus today or tomorrow. Dr. Alfred H. Griess, team physician, said yesterday.

Calderone, injured in the second period, was taken to Philadelphia's University Hospital at 6 p.m. Saturday and readied for an operation at 11 p.m. for what was believed a ruptured spleen. At 1 a.m. he had shown such improvement the operation was postponed until 8 a.m. Sunday.

On Sunday, Griess said Calderone had shown marked improvement and hospital authorities decided an operation was not necessary. Griess said that Calderone was "up and about and on a full diet yesterday" but that "he won't play until perhaps the Pitt game."

Paul North, however, suffered a severely sprained ankle and is out for the season, Griess said. Penn caught the Lions on their own ten on the opening kickoff, but the Quakers were offside and the kickoff was run again.

This time the Lions started on the 36. Twelve plays and 64 yards later, despite two penalties, fullback Buck Straub pushed over from the one for a 6-0 lead. Sam Valentine made the point for a 7-0 score.

Three and one-half minutes later Penn State scored again to make it 13-0. Valentine missed the extra point. Penn State capitalized on a "break" when Neil

Ike Approves Postal Increase Attempt

DENVER, Oct. 31 (AP)—Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, leaving it to President Eisenhower to hoist the signal for talking politics, got the chief executive's consent today for another attempt at boosting postal rates.

A 4-cent stamp for regular letters and 7 cents for air mail is under consideration.

The man who managed Eisenhower's 1952 presidential campaign as Republican national chairman told a news conference he just discussed Post Office Department business with the chief executive—no politics.

Like other Cabinet members who have visited the recuperating President, Summerfield insisted it would be "inappropriate" to take up with Eisenhower now the political impact of his heart attack. "Don't you think, he asked, "he should give that signal rather than one of us?"

No Date Indicated

When that signal might come, the postmaster general didn't indicate.

Eisenhower advanced in his convalescence to the point today where his doctors decided on a significant deletion from their medical bulletins.

Over and over they have been saying that "The President's condition continues to progress satisfactorily without complications." In today's bulletin, and in others to follow, they decided it no longer

Auto Stolen In Philadelphia

A car driven by Sanford Lichtenstein, senior in education from Philadelphia, was stolen about 11:30 p.m. Friday in Philadelphia.

The car, which is owned by Lichtenstein's sister, a sophomore at Ogontz Center, was parked in front of the Bellevue-Stratford hotel when it was stolen.

Lichtenstein said he patrolled the city with Philadelphia police for almost an hour without finding any signs of the missing vehicle.

He said he had the keys with him when the car was taken.

Philadelphia police sent out a three-state alarm for the car but have not found it as yet, Lichtenstein said yesterday.

Christie May Face Grand Jury Action

Alexander Christie, freshman in civil engineering from Philadelphia, faces a possible charge of involuntary manslaughter as soon as he is released from the University infirmary, District Attorney John R. Miller said yesterday.

Christie was driving the car involved in an accident in which William McGarvey, freshman in chemistry from Philadelphia, was killed.

Miller, who has been investigating the accident for the past week, said Christie will be given a preliminary hearing upon his release from the infirmary.

If Christie is held for the November grand jury, he will face an involuntary manslaughter indictment, Miller said.

Maximum is 3 Years

The maximum penalty for one found guilty of the charge is three years imprisonment, Miller said.

Miller did not reveal any of the evidence uncovered in his investigation. He did say, however, that the state police and not his office will prefer the charges against Christie.

Dean of Men Frank J. Simes said yesterday afternoon his office will take no action against Christie until after the hearing.

Simes said he has not determined whether Christie had a permit to keep his car on campus. Freshmen are liable to a car ban.

Christie is still confined to the infirmary as a result of the injuries he received in the accident which occurred Oct. 22, on the Benner Pike between State College and Bellefonte.

He and McGarvey were veterans and roommates in Pollock Circle. They were returning to State College when their car went out of control after passing through an intersection about four miles east of State College.

Car Demolished

The car, a convertible, hit a tree and a guard rail before rolling over on its top. It was completely demolished.

A preliminary autopsy revealed McGarvey died of a fractured skull. He was pronounced dead upon arrival at the Centre County hospital.
