

Revised Security Pact Proposed by Molotov

Would Abolish NATO, Keep Germany Split

GENEVA, Oct. 31 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov asked the Western powers tonight to join in a revised collective security pact with the Soviet bloc, leaving Germany divided and setting no deadline for abolishing the military alliances of East and West.

In revising his thrice-rejected security treaty, Molotov said the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the Western European Union and the Communist Warsaw treaty organization should be liquidated. But he said the Soviet government does not propose a date for the liquidation.

Molotov proposed that a semi-demilitarized zone be established to cover both the East and West German republics and "all or some neighboring states."

The Russians thus took an article from the West-supported "treaty of assurance" against German aggression and adapted it in effect to neutralize all Germany.

The Western powers proposed last week that such a zone straddle the frontiers of a reunited Germany with Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia.

While Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay temporarily withheld comment, British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan told Molotov:

"This whole plan is based on the partition of Germany into two parts. Before it can be profitably studied we need to have promised Soviet proposals for German reunification. Without German reunification there can be no real progress toward security."

The Western foreign ministers earlier urged the Soviet Union to sweep aside the Iron Curtain for peaceful trade and freer contacts. Molotov also offered ideas on that subject.

Dulles earlier blazed a path toward friendlier East-West relations by announcing the elimination of passport restrictions for Americans traveling in the Soviet Union in eastern Europe.

"There is a solid basis for good will between us," Dulles told Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov. "It is a fact of history which should be remembered that our peoples have never fought each other."

Meg Decides Not to Marry Group Captain

LONDON, Oct. 31 (AP)—Princess Margaret told the world tonight she has renounced her hope of marrying divorced Peter Townsend. She spoke like a girl with a broken heart who has put duty ahead of love.

"I would like it to be known that I have decided not to marry Group Capt. Peter Townsend," she announced.

"But, mindful of the church's teaching that Christian marriage is indissoluble, and conscious of my duty to the commonwealth, I have resolved to put these considerations before any others."

"I have reached this decision entirely alone and in doing so I have been strengthened by unfailing support and devotion by Group Capt. Townsend."

Townsend—who is 40 and 15 years older than the princess—left the stately mansion alone and drove away toward the seclusion of the English countryside.

Israeli Official Sees Molotov On Arms Sales

GENEVA, Oct. 31 (AP)—Prime Minister Moshe Sharett called on Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov tonight to halt the sale of Communist bloc arms to Israel's Arab neighbors.

Sharett went into the conference with Molotov resolved to tell him the Communist tactic:

1. Might touch off new Middle-eastern fighting that could engulf Europe and the world.

2. Penalize Israel's policy of non-alignment, which Russia supports in other parts of the world.

Communist sale of arms to the Egyptians is seen by Western and Israeli diplomats alike as a bid to leapfrog Russian influence over the Baghdad alliance binding the countries along the northern tier of the Mideast. They are Turkey, Iraq, Iran, Pakistan. Britain also is a member, while the United States expects to join later. Russia and Israel alike have denounced that pact.

The Russians are believed also to want a voice in Mideastern affairs—possibly at a big power conference in which the Arabs and Israelis could sit in. Molotov's immediate reaction to the Israeli protest was not disclosed.

Freed American Scholar Calls Chinese Prison 'Place of Hope'

HONG KONG, Oct. 31 (AP)—Miss Harriet Mills, a 35-year-old Fulbright scholar from New York City, emerged to freedom today and described the Red Chinese prison in which she spent 51 months as "a place of hope. A place where new people are made."

She told reporters she was an unpaid U.S. and British "espionage agent" and spent considerable time in the prison with her hands cuffed behind her back and in ankle chains.

She said this was because she repudiated one of her confessions. But, she added, her jailers treated her "with the utmost consideration and courtesy."

"The Communists had a perfect right to arrest me. I confessed from the very day I was arrested."

"My arrest has been the most decisive thing that has happened to me," she said, adding that if she had not been imprisoned she would not have been able to see how wrong were her thoughts about the Red Chinese government.

She declared Americans are "warmongers" and the U.S. government "is embarked on an aggressive policy," but added, "I must make it clear I am not referring to the broad masses in the United States." She said the Chinese government has "a genuine desire for peace."

Miss Mills was one of four Americans who reached Hong Kong from Red China today.

HOW TO BE A BWOC

A few weeks ago in this space I passed on some hints to college men who wished to become BMOCs. I would be remiss not to do the same for college women who wish to become BWOCs.

The first and most basic step on the road to being a BWOC is to attract attention. Get yourself noticed. But be very, very careful not to do it the wrong way. I mean, any old girl is bound to be noticed if she goes around with a placard that says, "HEY! LOOKIT ME!" Don't you make such a horrid gaffe. On your placard put: "ZUT! REGARDEZ-MOI!" This, as you can see, lends a whole new dimension of tone and dignity.

Once you have been noticed, it is no longer necessary to carry the placard. It will suffice if, from time to time, you make distinctive noises. If, for instance, every three or four minutes you cry, "Whip-poor-will!" you cannot but stay fresh in the minds of onlookers.

We come now to clothes, a vital accessory to the BWOC—indeed, to any girl who wishes to remain out of jail. But to the BWOC clothes are more than just a decent cover; they are, it is not too much to say, a way of life.

This year the "little boy look" is all the rage on campus. Every coed, in a mad effort to look like a little boy, is wearing short pants, knee sox, and boy-shirts. But the BWOC is doing more. She has gone the whole hog in achieving little boyhood. She has frogs in her pockets, scabs on her knees, down on her upper lip, and is followed everywhere by a dog named Spot.

All this, of course, is only by day. When evening falls and her date comes calling, the BWOC is the very picture of chic femininity. She dresses in severe, simple basic black, relieved only by a fourteen pound charm bracelet. Her hair is exquisitely coiffed, with a fresh rubber band around the pony tail. Her daytime scuffs have been replaced by fashionable high heeled pumps, and she does not remove them until she gets to the movies.

After the movies at the campus cafe, the BWOC undergoes her severest test. The true BWOC will never, never, order the entire menu. This is gluttony and can only cause one's date to blench. The true BWOC will pick six or seven good entrées and then have nothing more till dessert. This is class and is the hallmark of the true BWOC.

Finally, the BWOC, upon being asked by the cigarette vendor which is the brand of her choice, will always reply, "Philip Morris, of corris!" For any girl knows that a Philip Morris in one's hand stamps one instantly as a person of taste and discernment, as the possessor of an educated palate, as a connoisseur of the finer, gentler, higher pleasures. This Philip Morris, this badge of savoir faire, now comes to you in a smart new pack of red, white and gold, in king-size or regular, at popular prices, wherever cigarettes are sold. ©Max Shulman, 1955

To all on campus, big or small, men or women, the makers of Philip Morris, who bring you this column, extend a cordial invitation to try today's gentle Philip Morris, made gentle to smoke gentle.
