

Syracuse Favored Today; Game Set For 2 P.M., EST

By ROY WILLIAMS

Playing .500 football after finishing two-thirds of its Centennial football season, Penn State moves into the final three-game phase of the 1955 card today when it meets Syracuse before the Columbia Broadcasting System television lenses and an expected capacity crowd of 30,000 home fans.

Syracuse has been given everything from a one-point to a two-touchdown favorite's role to break the Lions' jinx which has stopped Syracuse from winning on Beaver Field

TIM Sees Ice Show Obstacles

William Norman, publicity chairman for Town Independent Men, said yesterday that several difficulties have arisen in attempting to plan an ice show.

Norman said that a considerable number of students have signed up to take part in the affair. No exact figures were available, but Norman said students had signed up for all phases of the show, including costuming, lights, and choreography.

Norman said he hoped that the Penn State Outing Club and TIM could work together on the ice show if it is held.

He explained that members of TIM have discussed the project with two members of the administration and have not received encouragement.

Adrian O. Morse, University provost, said he thought the idea was good, but that Ernest B. McCoy, dean of the College of Physical Education and Athletics, would be able to discuss the problem involved, according to Norman.

McCoy mentioned that at present there are no bleachers that would fit the rink. He said they would have to build them, or the audience would have to stand.

Weather also presented a problem, according to McCoy. He said shows would have to be short because of the temperatures the audience would have to stand.

McCoy told Norman that there are no dressing room facilities.

Norman said one of the major problems McCoy presented is practice time for participants. He said the University is trying to pay off the money they borrowed to build the rink, and that they would not want to keep paying students from using the rink.

McCoy told Norman that it takes two and a half hours every morning to clean the rink for afternoon use; therefore these hours could not be used.

Norman said he plans to look into the matter further, and has not given up the attempt to have an ice show.

FMA to Meet

The Fraternity Marketing Association board of trustees will vote on three petitions for FMA membership at 8 p.m. Monday night at 143 MacAllister street.

for 21 years. Penn State's star halfback, Lenny Moore, unable to get his running game out of the doldrums for the past six weeks, and his former running mate at Reading High School, halfback Jim Brown, Syracuse's speedy Negro left halfback, will meet today for different purposes as they duel for the afternoon honors.

Moore, playing on only his second dry field in six games at Penn last week, brought his season total to 363 yards when he collected 49 yards. He has carried 94 times for a 3.9 average per carry.

The fleet speedster misses the blocking of 1954 supplied by ends Jim Garrity and Jesse Arnette, tackle Rosey Grier, and halfback Ron Younkers. He misses the 1954 quarterbacking of versatile Don Bailey.

Coach Rip Engle, plagued with injuries all season as the opposition has battered the smallest eleven that Engle has coached during his six years at the Nittany Vale, has made lineup changes in two spots.

Tackles Walt Mazur and Clint Law replace Jack Calderone. Both will be used interchangeably. Mazur is a 225-pound senior from Tamaqua and Law, who has seen off-and-on action this year, is a 6-4 210-pound Downingtown native.

At end, where Engle has felt the heaviest brunt of the injury hoax, he's named Jim Caldwell to take over for injured Paul North. North, a left end, along with ends Doug Mechling and Ned Finkbeiner, have been in and out of the end slots all year with injuries.

Tackle reserve Jim Harding, ends Les Walters and Leo Kwaliik, guard Dick DeLuca, and center Dan Radakovich, will see action. The four—DeLuca started until a slight injury recently slowed him—have been valuable substitutes.

Cold Weather, Snow Predicted

For the second time in three years the department of meteorology has predicted light snow flurries for the weekend of the Junior Prom.

In 1953, however, the "light flurries" developed into a snow fall of 13 inches, which set a new record for November.

The forecast for today is partly cloudy weather with cool temperatures and a chance of scattered snow. The temperature is expected to reach a high of 45 to 50 degrees, and the low tonight will be approximately 35.

Sheila Nearing was crowned junior prom queen by orchestra leader Claude Thornhill before some 2500 people at the Junior Prom last night.

Robert Bahrenberg, junior class president, presented a trophy and flowers to the queen. Members of Androcles, Druids, and Blue Key, junior men's hat societies, formed an honor guard.

Miss Nearing is an education major from Milford. She was sponsored by Tau Kappa Epsilon and is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta.

She is president of her dormitory unit in McElwain, a member of Thespians, and is a candidate for the LaVie editorial staff.

Members of Count

Members of the royal court were Joetta Laing, arts and letters major from State College, sponsored by Delta Delta Delta; Martha Fleming, home economics major from Huntingdon, sponsored by Kappa Alpha Theta.

Gillian Hamer, arts and letters major from Livramento, Brazil, sponsored by Town Independent Men; Jean McMahon, physical education major from Williamsport, sponsored by Phi Gamma Delta. All were finalists in the queen contest.

The queen also received gifts of jewelry, clothing accessories, and record albums from State College merchants.

Kappa's Receive Trophy

Preceding the coronation a trophy was presented to Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, winner of the pep rally banner contest Thursday night.

The Kappas chanted "Syracuse Indians know we'll burn them down to size," in time to the beat of tom-toms.

Delta Tau Delta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon tied for second place in the contest.

The junior prom queen was selected through voting Tuesday and Wednesday by members of the junior class. However, the name of the winner was not disclosed.

Accrediting Program Will Begin Monday

By NANCY SHOWALTER

The University's educational objectives and how well they are attained are the basis for the accreditation program to be held Monday through Wednesday.

The accreditation will be done by 58 members of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the official accrediting organization in this area.

University officers feel there is little doubt that the University will be accredited. However, there may be areas which will need special emphasis and more development, according to Adrian O. Morse, University provost.

The organization has no set standards which a school must meet.

Instead, the team judges each school according to the quality of its objectives, and whether or not the objectives are fulfilled.

The University has been an accredited school since the first list of accredited schools was published in 1921. Since then the association has decided to re-evaluate schools every 10 years. This is the first time the University has been re-evaluated.

The evaluation will be conducted through interviews with deans, department heads, University officers, and various faculty members and students.

Cabinet Seeks Ruling On Student 'Salaries'

All-University Cabinet approved a motion Thursday night that an individual's monetary compensation in a student activity should not exceed that of the All-University president.

The All-University president's compensation is $300 a year, according to George L. Donovan, director of Associated Student Activities.

The motion, which was made by Louis Adler, president of the Liberal Arts Student Council, was referred to the Senate Committee on Student Affairs. The vote was 15 to 8.

Adler apparently made the motion as a result of a discussion on the compensation system employed by Froth magazine.

Feinsilber Presents Report
The system was included in the Encampment Communications Workshop report, which was presented at the meeting by Myron Feinsilber, chairman of the Encampment committee.

Byron Fielding, present editor of the humor magazine, said at Encampment that the editor and business manager of Froth last year split approximately $2400.

Feinsilber and Robert O. Shipman, instructor in journalism and Froth adviser, said they understand a new compensation system would be instituted by the magazine.

Cabinet accepted the committee's report and referred a motion by Douglas Moorhead, president of the student Athletic Association, to the board of directors of campus radio station WDFM.

To Poll Students

The motion asks the station to discover what time the student body wants to listen to its broadcasts. It further states that if the hours are later than the ones now observed by the station, WDFM should broadcast at a later time.

WDFM now broadcasts nightly from 7:15 to 10:30.

Adler's motion was referred to the Senate committee since it has control over all professional, (Continued on page eight)

Gaza Strip Calm; 2 Tiffs Reported

JERUSALEM, Nov. 4 (AP)—Comparative quiet returned to the Israeli-Egyptian frontier today, although Israel reported an Egyptian attack by two platoons on an outpost east of the Gaza Strip.

An Israeli spokesman said the Egyptians were repulsed by machinegun and rifle fire. Egyptian spokesmen in Cairo made no mention of such an attack.

A U.N. spokesman said Israeli and Egyptian forces continued an exchange of mortar and artillery fire farther south of the El Auja-Nizana demilitarized zone, scene of a bloody battle yesterday, but "nothing serious happened."

Egypt Receiving Communist Arms

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—The State Department officially disclosed today the Soviet bloc is delivering arms to Egypt by the shiploads, together with military technicians.

Statements by press officer Lincoln White broke the department's long official silence on a variety of reports that the Communists had lost no time in carrying out their cannon-for-cotton deal with Egypt.

In response to news conference questions, White said he could supply no details on the amount or kinds of arms. But he said the department's information was that "several shiploads" had arrived.

Molotov Rebuffs New Western Plan

GENEVA, Nov. 4 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov rebuffed tonight a new Western proposal to begin reunification of Germany by nationwide elections next September. He will fly to Moscow tomorrow—possibly to receive new instructions.

The 65-year-old diplomat's disclosure that he will make a round trip to the Soviet capital during a three-day recess of the Geneva conference stirred immediate speculation that he may come back with revised ideas on the deadlocked German problem.

He turned down the West's newest German unification plan at today's Big Four session.
