

FMA Votes To Restrict Salesmen

The Fraternity Marketing Association has voted to put a stipulation in future contracts with vendors, forbidding vendors who deal with non-FMA member fraternities the same discount as FMA members.

The FMA board met Monday night but lack of a quorum delayed the decision from being official until yesterday, when one concurring vote from an absentee member was received.

Harold W. Perkins, assistant dean of men, cited the problem of vendors who give 5 per cent discounts to non-FMA members and 6 per cent to FMA. After the 1 1/2 per cent service charge is subtracted Perkins said, the non-members receive a larger discount than FMA members.

FMA acts as a buying agent for member fraternities, securing discounts on canned goods and meat through mass buying.

Perkins also told the meeting that FMA must have 40 members before it can realize its goal of greater savings to fraternities. With 40 members, he said, a part-time manager could be employed to run FMA. Thus better service could be obtained.

new Cabinet committee.

The party also said it recognizes the inability of the University to cope with the present parking problem because of the "limitations in the present parking problem." It made no promises concerning the question.

Lion party lists three problems which it claimed its candidates will attempt to remedy. They are the banning of cars from freshman veterans, the absence of intercollegiate women's sports, and the lack of a loud speaker system at Beaver Field for play-by-play descriptions of football games.

The party "believes the purpose of a political party is not only to elect candidates, but also to bring student problems to the attention of everyone."

Campus party clique chairman, Allen Davies, released this statement last night to the Daily Collegian:

"I urge every student to vote in tomorrow's election. The right to vote is inherent in our way of life. The University, in educating us, can give us an opportunity to practice this privilege. I would also like to take this opportunity to thank heartily those who aided in our campaign. Remember, student government is only as effective as we, the students, make it."

Lion party clique chairman, Thomas Dye, in his statement to the student body said: "I hope that the student body will realize that the Lion party and its candidates have attempted to bring real problems, problems directly affecting the students, to everyone's attention during the campaign. "By doing this, win or lose, we have fulfilled a vital function of a political party. The responsibility of building an effective student government is now in the hands of each student—through his personal vote."
