JACK LAVERTY, Rutgers' hard-running 155-pound fullback is expected to supplement the Scarlet's running attack Saturday with his up-the-middle bursts. Laverty is a junior and stands only 5-7.

Engle Views Rutgers Tilt With Mixed Emotions

By ROY WILLIAMS

Coach Rip Engle—he has defeated Rutgers each time his time his teams have met the Scarlet—left with the Lions this morning for New Brunswick, N.J., where the two will tangle tomorrow. But Engle left with mixed emotions.

He was happy—because he's finally going to see the last of the pesky Rutgers team—but at the same time he was contemplating his troubles that included two things.

His first one revolves around this week's game although the Lions have been tabbed a 21-point choice over Coach Harvey Harman's outfit. Rutgers has always preceded the grand season finale—Pitt—for the Lions; therefore the tendency for the Lion gridders to overlook the Scarlet, with a 2-4 card this year, and to take them for granted with the Nittanians pointing toward Pitt as the "big one," has placed the Rutgers game in a position of extreme speculation each year.

Rutgers has lost the five games since 1950 with the Lions, but in each instance, although it has felt the roof fall in twice, Rutgers has been a troublesome outfit for Penn State.

Engle's second problem is nothing new, although it hasn't been a five-year headache such as Rutgers. This year it is injuries.

Engle has had comparably few adjustments to make in the backfield because of injuries, with the exception of fullback Buck Straub who broke his hand at the start of the season. On the line it's been another story.

At the ends, four of Engle's men—Ned Finkbeiner, Doug Mechling, Paul North, and Ron Markiewicz, the converted halfback—have been in an out of the injured wraps all season.

Markiewicz, the most recent sideline case, was hospitalized when he suffered a severe abdominal burise in the Syracuse win. Dr. Alfred H. Gries, team physician, said he questioned whether Markiewicz would play again this year.

At tackles Walt Mazur is back in line after breaking his hand, but Jack Calderone is still out. Understudy to Co-Captain Frank Reich, Dan Radakovich, used at center and a valuable linebacker, also got bunged up against Syracuse. Dick DeLuca, guard, is expected to be ready for full duty tomorrow after a shoulder injury slowed him for the last two games.

Coach Harvey Harman may have some lineup changes too. Harman has done most of his juggling at left end and center—being equally successful in both positions with two different men—and has used two quarterbacks during his last six games.

Don Felber, one of quarterback Bill Gatyas' favorite targets, has been first-line material at left end but teammates

Outing Club Barbecue To Be Held Sunday

The Penn State Outing Club will hold a chicken barbecue at 4 p.m. Sunday in Hort Woods. Gordon McCartney, club president, has announced.

Tickets for the barbecue will cost $1.50 per person, and are available at the Hetzel Union desk. The barbecue is open to the public.

The club will hold several outdoor contests at the barbecue. Prizes will be awarded to the winners. In addition, a door prize will be given.

In the event of bad weather, the barbecue will be held in the Stock Pavilion.

IM Bowling, Boxing

Boxing Entries

Intramural boxing is now open for entries, according to Dutch Sykes, IM athletic director. Anyone wishing to participate in the boxing program should stop at the IM office, Recreation Hall, before 4:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Entry fee is 25 cents per man. Each entrant must call at the IM office himself.

Boxing will be divided into the usual fraternity and independent divisions, with each division subdivided into eight different weight classes.

Bouts will consist of three rounds, with each round two minutes or less in length. All matches will be held between 5 and 6 p.m., starting Nov. 29.

DSL In First

Delta Sigma Lambda's 4-0 victory over Sigma Alpha Epsilon Wednesday evening in intramural fraternity bowling league B, shot the winners into a one game lead over Theta Delta Chi.

Theta Delta Chi had been in a first-place deadlock with Delta Sigma Lambda last week.

In other games Alpha Rho Chi served notice that it is still in the title race with its second straight shutout—this time Delta Theta Sigma was the victim; Acacia beat Phi Mu Delta, 3-1; and Phi Epsilon Pi stopped Phi Kappa, 3-1.

Bob Fish, Theta Delta Chi, carried off top honors in the individual three-game high with 501, but had to settle for a tie with Harv Nixon, Phi Epsilon Pi, for the high single—198.

Alpha Chi Rho was the high team point-maker for the night, knocking down 806 pins in one game and 2364 in three.

AchiO, Thetas Win Badminton Matches

The coed Intramural Badminton League officially ended last night with Alpha Chi Omega notching three wins over Zeta Tau Alpha, and Kappa Alpha Theta taking two out of three from Alpha Epsilon Phi, all by scores of 2-0.

Ruth Kronenwetter and Dorothy Killett took the singles matches for Alpha Chi, beating Mickey Marts and Ann Caton. Alpha Chi Omega's doubles team of Joyce McCloskey and Helene Scholes were victorious over Zeta Tau Alpha's June Ament and Liz Marvin.

... FOR DIS'A AND DATA

Rip Engle's football team runs smack into a 93-game scoring streak when it visits Rutgers tomorrow afternoon in New Brunswick, N.J., but a recent check of the records revealed that the Lions have somewhat of a streak of their own underway.

The last eleven to whitewash the Blue and White was the Alan Ameche—led Wisconsin Badgers in the Penn State opener two years ago. Since then the Lions have gone through 24 games without falling short of at least one score.

Since Wisconsin did the trick in '53, the Lions have been able to blank the opposition on five different occasions. In '53 it was Pitt, 17-0; Pitt again, 17-0; along with Syracuse, 13-0, last year; and in seven starts this season Boston University, 35-0, and Penn, 20-0, haven't managed to penetrate the Lion defense for a score.

"THE TOURING LIONS?"

Don't be surprised if you catch one of John Egli's 1955 cagers strolling about campus engrossed in an over-sized road map.

For the first time in several years the Lion basketball team is taking on a 26-game schedule, but it won't come as happy knowledge to you fans who like to see the cagers in action—unless you plan on spending several nights away from campus.

Of the Nittanians' 26 scheduled games, ONLY NINE ARE AT HOME. So, with 17 contests away from Rec Hall and scattered among seven eastern, southern, and mid-western states, how about it—THE 1955 TOURING LIONS?

The cagers began official practice sessions Nov. 1. They open with North Carolina State Dec. 5 in Dixieland, then visit DePaul University before their initial home appearance with Rutgers. That one comes Dec. 14th and Colgate follows on the 17th.

The Motor City tournament will again occupy a portion of the cagers' Xmas recess.

WRESTLING FANS may be interested to know Charlie Spidel's grapplers have Illinois on their 1955-'56 card. The meeting at Champaign will mark the first time the Lions and the Illini have faced each other on the mats.

FOR GOOD RESULTS USE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

Ed Burkowski, of Plymouth, and Ed Farrell, senior letterman, have seen action.

Other players to catch Coach Tor Toretta's eye both in victory and defeat were halfbacks Lee Lusardi, Co-Captain Bob Kelley, and left tackle Jim Marco. Marco missed two games this year with a shoulder separation but should be ready tomorrow.

Senior Al Mittlehner, who took the opening berth from Co-Captain Ed Evans, plays right end; in the fullback slot Toretta pointed out that Jack Laverty, although he weighs only 155-pounds, is a speedy back that Gatyas likes to use up the middle on quick openers. "He can go too," Toretta said.

Toretta, Lion scout, lauded the play of centers Dave Pooley, 185-pound sophomore, and his 200-pound replacement Tony DeSantis, another senior letterman. Toretta said that with these two men in the front wall, plus left guard Bob Howard, 185-pounder, Rutgers has a fast line and is especially dangerous when the guards pull. "They're not too big, but they can move," Toretta said.

Ceramic Society Elects Wotring President

Dean Wotring, senior from Neffs, has been elected president of the Student Branch of the American Ceramic Society.

Other officers are James Sarver, junior from Pittsburgh, vice president; Robert Kowalczyk, sophomore from New Kensington, secretary; and George Remmey, junior from Jenkintown, treasurer. All are majors in ceramic technology.
