President Jests About 'Parole' By Specialists

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—A smiling, waving President Eisenhower came back to the capital today, telling a throng of well-wishers that he has "a parole if not a pardon" from his doctors.

In brilliant sunshine, his friends and neighbors by the thousand jammed the airport and lined the bunting-decked streets of the capital to cheer the President and Mrs. Eisenhower.

Moving a shade more slowly than he used to, but ruddy and radiating cheerfulness, the chief executive walked down the ramp from his airplane at 4 p.m. EST, five hours after leaving Denver where a heart attack had hospitalized him for seven weeks.

"I am happy," he said in a brief talk before microphones at the foot of the ramp. "That the doctors have given me at least a parole if not a pardon, and I expect to be back at my accustomed duties, although they say that I must ease my way into them and not bulldoze my way into them."

Vice President Nixon, heading the welcome home delegation, told the President the crowd at the airport was "just a small indication of the joy and inspiration your return to Washington has brought to the people of the United States and people throughout the world."

"I know that I express the sentiments in their hearts when I say welcome back and God speed you in the days ahead," said Nixon. Said the president, quietly: "Thank you, Dick."

He had a ready handshake for the vice president and for a surprise welcomer—former President Hoover, who told Eisenhower he looked fine. There was another handshake for the President's son, Maj. John S. Eisenhower, and a kiss from John's wife, Barbara.

Then—begging off from further handshakes, and asking the assembled dignitaries to "let the wish take the place of the deed"—the President and Mrs. Eisenhower entered a plastic-top convertible and slowly drove off to the White House.

A little more than half an hour after the President reached the White House, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, his personal physician, issued this statement:

"The President showed no fatigue from his trip and from receptions in Denver and in Washington. His blood pressure and pulse remain normal."

The chief executive's youngest brother, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State University, was among the relations and guests at the White House.

Eisenhower's only plans for tonight were to spend the evening with his family—including the three grandchildren, David, Barbara Ann and Susan, who greeted him as soon as he entered the White House.

Stevenson Proposes Troops Guard Israeli-Arab Border

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 11 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson proposed tonight that the United Nations mount guards on the flaming borders between Israel and her Arab neighbors, to enforce peace in the Middle East.

Stevenson, who is expected to announce next Tuesday he is a candidate for the 1956 Democratic presidential nomination, did not mention in a speech prepared for a University of Virginia audience how United Nations troops would be raised.

But he left the clear implication he would be willing to support an American contribution of men toward the necessary guards he said might prevent the development of "all-out war."

"A major effort of statesmanship is required if we are to avert a political disaster in this troubled area," the 1952 presidential nominee declared. "We have shown little initiative within or outside the United Nations in devising measures to prevent these border incidents."

Stevenson said it seemed evident the way to avoid bloodshed was to "keep the troops of these antagonists apart."

"And I wonder if United Nations guards could not undertake patrol duties in the areas of tension and collision," he said. "Certainly both sides would respect United Nations patrols where they do not trust each other."

Stevenson said this country must act to preserve "an equitable balance of strength so that neither side feels that it lives by the grace of its none too kindly neighbor."

"We must help, if need be, to counteract any Soviet attempt to upset such a balance and we must make it emphatically clear that the status quo shall not be changed by force," he declared. "But we do not want to see an arms race in this area."

W.Va. Drops Participants In Panty Raid

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 11 (AP)—An undisclosed number of students at West Virginia University was suspended today for participating in a panty raid at the school last night.

Joseph Gluck, director of student affairs, said the action was taken at a meeting of the committee on student discipline.

Gluck, who would reveal neither the names nor the number of students involved, said the suspended students had been informed that their petitions for reinstatement would be considered "only after satisfactory arrangements are made for financial restitution for the damages done."

University President Stewart had his hat sprayed with water from a garden hose while trying to break up the act. As panty raids go, it probably could be considered successful.

Stewart has said previously that the students would be in for "appropriate disciplinary action" if their identities could be learned.

It all began at a late hour when the boys on "fraternity row" were whooping it up with songs and yells for Saturday's West Virginia-Pitt football game—traditionally the game of the year.

About 250 of the celebrants decided to have some fun and swarmed across High street to raid Terrace Hall, the dormitory for freshman women. Aided by the element of surprise, they got inside and made off with some lacy souvenirs.

Italy Forbids Export of Jets To Egyptians

ROME, Nov. 11 (AP)—The West got a breather today in the perilous Middle East arms race as Italy announced she would ban export of 30 Italian-made jet fighters ordered by Egypt.

The 30 would have been in addition to 16 Vampire jets shipped earlier this year by a private Italian manufacturer in which the Italian government, ally of the West, was not involved.

Italy's announcement she would refuse export licenses for the obsolescent planes—manufactured under British license by the Macchi Works of Varese—may have saved the West from an embarrassing situation.

Up to now, the Soviet has caught the blame for the arms buildup which Western diplomats fear could lead to a major explosion between Arab states and Israel in the oil-rich area centered around the vital Suez Canal.

The Middle East crisis was precipitated when the Communists bloc sold 200 planes, 100 tanks, six submarines and other war equipment to Egypt's military government at cut-rate prices. Substantial deliveries already have been made.

The Italian Foreign Office, while denying knowledge of any Egyptian jet order or past delivery, said Italy would refuse export licenses, if asked for them.

Brazilian President Ousted in Revolution

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Nov. 11 (AP)—A bloodless military coup ousted Provisional President Carlos Coimbra da Luz today. In a quick sequel, Congress named Senate President Nereu Ramos to succeed him as temporary chief executive.

The shift was aimed to help prevent the possibility of an uprising which would keep President-elect Juscelino Kubitschek, landslide winner at the polls last month, from taking office next Jan. 31 for his five-year term.

The navy and air force threatened for a while to back the ousted man but—after an interval in which fortress guns fired to keep the fleet in harbor—agreed to the change.

Chamber Nominates Ramos

The Chamber of Deputies nominated Ramos, 66, by a vote of 185-72 at a hastily summoned special session to succeed Luz, who took refuge aboard a navy cruiser after being thrown out of office by the army before dawn. The Senate promptly approved this choice. Luz was officially declared unable to continue in office.

As head of the Chamber of Deputies, Luz had taken over as provisional president Tuesday from Joao Cafe Filho, who went on an indefinite leave of absence after suffering a heart attack.

Lott Leads Uprising

The uprising was led by Gen. Henrique Teixeira Lott, who resigned only yesterday as war minister. It was based on the suspicion that Luz, as provisional chief executive, would pave the way for the rejection of Kubitschek as head of this nation.

Gen. Lott's professed aim is to insure the inauguration of the president-elect Jan. 31. Kubitschek was elected with leftist—including Communist—support. He is considered the political heir of the late President Getulio Vargas, who committed suicide last year after being given an ultimatum by elements of the armed forces to withdraw from office.

Luz belongs to the same Social Democratic party as Kubitschek, but adhered to a dissident faction which was believed to favor a scheme of some military leaders to prevent Kubitschek from taking office. But most military chieftains were reported convinced of the legality of Kubitschek's election and, along with Lott, were determined that the constitution should be observed.

Labor Vote Need Of GOP Is Cited

HARRISBURG, Nov. 11 (AP)—A top Republican official contended today the Republican party in Pennsylvania must gain labor support or "keep on losing elections."

"There's no getting away from it," declared Sen. Rowland B. Mahany, Senate GOP floor leader. "The Republicans must stop being identified as the party for big business."

"There aren't enough votes in industry to win an election," Mahany added.

The Republican party must maintain a middle-of-the-road political policy if it is to survive, Mahany said.
