

Mongolian Issue Splits West in UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 14 (AP)—Russian sponsorship of Outer Mongolia's claim to a seat in the United Nations split the West today and threatened to block admission of 17 other countries into the world body.

Britain and the Soviet Union said they were ready to support the admission of all 18 new members, but the United States stood firm against Soviet-backed Outer Mongolia.

200 Students Attend Mixer

Approximately 200 students attended the freshman-sophomore mixer Saturday afternoon in the Hetzel Union ballroom, according to Arthur Schravessande, former freshman class president.

The Tri-Tones, a combo which were scheduled to play for the mixer did not appear, due to a death in one of the musicians' family. However, a group of musicians from the freshman and sophomore class provided music for the affair.

Schravessande and Samuel Wolcott, former sophomore class president, gave farewell addresses.

Lack of interest on the part of the students and lack of publicity were judged as reasons for the poor showing at the mixer, according to Schravessande.

Eisenhower Visits Brother, Attends Land-Grant Confab

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of the University, visited his brother in Washington, D.C., over the weekend—accompanying Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower to church Sunday—and left yesterday morning to attend a conference in Michigan.

Dr. Eisenhower took off Saturday morning for the nation's capital, where President Dwight D. Eisenhower was resting prior to his trip to Gettysburg yesterday.

The president's youngest brother accompanied Mrs. Eisenhower to church Sunday, the New York Times reported. He returned to the University Sunday night.

Dr. Eisenhower left yesterday morning again to attend a conference of land-grant colleges in Lansing, Mich. He is expected to return late tonight or early tomorrow.

Seely Seeks OK On Appointments

All-University President Earl Seely will ask All-University Cabinet Thursday night to approve ten students for appointments to two newly-established committees.

They are Philip Beard, Patricia Farrell, Fred Seipt, John Seastone, and Judith Pendleton, Committee on Compensations; Samuel Walcott, Robert Bullock, Arthur Schravessande, and Pauline Paulekas.

AIM-Leonides Choir

The Association of Independent Men-Leonides choir will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. tonight in the Hetzel Union auditorium.

The meeting is open to independent men and women.

Forger Admits Rigging Bomb On Fated Plane

DENVER, Nov. 14 (AP)—Rigging of a dynamite bomb that blew up a United Airlines plane, killing his mother and 43 others, was admitted today by a 28-year-old Denver forger.

U.S. Atty. Donald E. Kelley said John Gilbert Graham, construction and restaurant worker—termed a playboy by probation officers—had signed a "written admission."

Graham waived a hearing on a "peacetime sabotage" charge and was jailed when he was unable to supply $100,000 bond.

The sabotage charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine.

Kelley met with state prosecutors to consider whether the slim, youthful-looking defendant should be turned over to them for prosecution on murder charges, punishable by death in Colorado.

"One element in breaking the case," Kelley said, was an air flight insurance policy for $37,500 on Graham's mother, Mrs. Daisy King.

FBI agents, who arrested Graham, reported he took out the policy at the Denver Airport shortly before she boarded the ill-fated plane for Alaska. Ironically, the policy was invalid because the mother had not signed it.

Sherwood, 59, Dies

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—Robert E. Sherwood, 59, whose pen won him more Pulitzer prizes than any other American, died today. The six foot, seven inch playwright and biographer suffered a heart attack Saturday.

Theta Alpha Phi to Meet

Theta Alpha Phi, national dramatics honorary fraternity, will meet for lunch at noon today in Dining Room B of the Hetzel Union Building. The group will discuss the January initiation.

A British spokesman said the qualifications of Outer Mongolia were open to doubt, but that Britain would agree to accept its admission if this would break the nine-year deadlock in the admission of new members. Admission of 18 nations would bring UN membership to 78.

A Soviet delegation spokesman insisted Russia would not agree to admit any of the 18 applicants unless Outer Mongolia were included.

Canada's Paul Martin was reported ready to circulate resolution calling formally for the approval of the 18 applicants, which include five Soviet bloc countries and 13 pro-Western or neutral countries, including Japan, Italy and Spain.

A British spokesman issued a statement saying "we are supporting the Canadian government's efforts to break the deadlock over the admission of new members to the United Nations. To this end we are ready to acquiesce in the admission of all 18 outstanding applicants, even if the qualifications of some of them are open to doubt. Among the latter is especially Outer Mongolia."

The issue has been a subject of much discussion between the Big Four foreign ministers at Geneva and was brought into the open by Western officials after Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov spent most of two hours yesterday in trying to persuade Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to accept the Soviet point of view.

Gettysburg Welcomes Ike

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 14 (AP)—President and Mrs. Eisenhower returned to Gettysburg today and a heart-tingling home-coming welcome from "the people who are going to be our good neighbors, God willing."

Thousands of them turned out in historic Lincoln Square, jamming the streets, perching on balconies and in windows, crowding onto roof tops.

Before the little, informal speeches could get under way, the high school band and what looked like most of Gettysburg's 7200 citizens swung into "Happy birthday, dear Mamie."

Burgess mayor William G. Weaver told the chief executive and First Lady "how glad and happy we are that you have made Gettysburg your home." His daughter, Patricia, 13, handed Mrs. Eisenhower—59 today—a bouquet of brilliant red roses. Before driving the four miles to his country estate where he will spend another six weeks or more of continuing to convalesce from his Sept. 24 heart attack, the President spoke from a platform in the square to the beaming people surrounding him.

He told his "future permanent neighbors, I hope," that he and Mrs. Eisenhower "feel deeply honored that you should turn out today to welcome us to this area where we expect to make our home and which has been so long a part of the Eisenhower family's life."

As a young Army officer, Eisenhower was stationed here during World War I.

And he said he thought that Mrs. Eisenhower decided back in 1918 that Gettysburg was going to be their home on retirement. He didn't say when that might be, though. It was a gorgeous Indian summer day.

THE TRUE AND TRAGICAL TALE OF HAPPY JACK SIGAFOOS

Who would have thought that Happy Jack Sigafos, the boy the sky never rained on, would ever teeter on the edge of a life of crime?

Certainly there was no sign of it in his boyhood. His home life was most tranquil and uplifting. His mother was a nice plump lady who hummed a lot and gave baskets to the poor. His father was a highly respected citizen who could imitate more than four hundred bird calls and once saved an elderly widow from drowning in his good suit. (That is, Mr. Sigafos was in his good suit; the elderly widow was in swimming trunks.)

Happy Jack's life was nothing short of idyllic—until he went off to college.

In college Happy Jack quickly became a typical freshman—tweedy, seedy, and needy. He learned the joys of rounding out his personality, and he learned the cost. His allowance vanished like dew before the morning sun. There were times, it grieves me to report, when he didn't even have enough for a pack of Philip Morris—and you know how miserable that can be! To be deprived of Philip Morris's gentle flavor, its subtly blended tastiness, its trauma-repairing mildness, its ineffable excellence—why, it is a prospect to break the heart in twain!

Happy Jack tried to get more money from home. He wrote piteous and impassioned letters pointing out that the modern large-capacity girl simply could not be maintained on his meagre allowance. But all Jack got from home were tiresome homilies about thrift and prudence.

Then one day a sinister sophomore came up to Jack and said, "I know how you can get more money from home." Jack said, "How?" and the sinister sophomore handed him a sheet of paper. "For one dollar," said the sinister sophomore, "I will sell you this list of fiendishly clever lies to tell your father when you need extra money."

- Jack read the list of fiendishly clever lies:
1. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to buy a new house for the Dean of M.
 2. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to buy a headstone for Rover, our late, and dormitory watchdog.
 3. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to buy the college a new fullback.
 4. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to endow a chair of fine arts.
 5. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to build our own space satellite.

For a moment, poor Jack was tempted; surely his father could not but support all these worthy causes. Then Jack's good upbringing came to the fore. He turned to the sinister sophomore and said, "No, thank you. I could not deceive my aged parent so. And as for you, sir, I can only say—Pie!"

Upon hearing this, the sinister sophomore broke into a huge grin. He whipped off his black hat and pasty face—and who do you think it was? None other than Mr. Sigafos, Happy Jack's father, that's who!

"Good lad," cried Mr. Sigafos. "You have passed your test brilliantly." With that he gave Happy Jack a check for a half million dollars and a red convertible containing four nubile maidens.
