

TIM-BER!

AT LEAST you can't blame Pitt students on this. High winds blew down this tree in front of Women's Building early yesterday morning as freezing weather hit a windy campus. The tree, at least 100 feet long, was sawed to pieces and promptly removed by workmen.

50 Mile Per Hour Winds Hit Campus

Winds hitting top speeds of 50 miles per hour ripped across campus yesterday blowing down a large spruce tree in front of Womah's Building.

No other damage was reported, according to campus patrol.

Yesterday was the coldest day of the season, with a low of 22 degrees and a high of 31. However, today is expected to be still colder, with a minimum temperature of 21 and a maximum of 33, according to the forecast made by students in the department of meteorology.

Today's weather will be fair, cold, and windy. Tomorrow will be colder but less windy.

'Prospector' Staff to Meet

Material for the December issue should be turned in by Monday.

Players Will End Six-Week Run Of 'Rainmaker'

Players will conclude its six weekend run of "The Rainmaker" at 8 tonight and tomorrow in the Extension Conference Center.

The N. Richard Nash play is the story of a plain girl, Lizzie Curry, and her two brothers and father who are worried about her becoming an old maid and about the paralyzing drought in the West where the story takes place. The rainmaker appears and promises to bring rain for $100. He also convinces the girl that she has a real beauty of her own. Rain comes and so does love.

Included in the cast are Gerald Denisof as Noah Curry, William Sample as H. C. Curry, Richard Swire as Jim Curry and Patricia Doll as Lizzie Curry. Other members of the cast are William Taylor as File, Henry Minsker as Sheriff Thomas and Emil Haas as Starbuck.

Tickets for "The Rainmaker" are on sale for $1 at the Hetzel Union desk until 4:30 p.m. today.

Work on Buildings Is Behind Schedule

Construction on building projects on campus—including the Helen Eakin Eisenhower Memorial Chapel—has been delayed several weeks because of late delivery of materials.

A shortage of structural steel has caused most of the delay, but the supply of other building products has been hindered by such things as a strike at one manufacturing plant and the floods in the Northeast which seriously damaged another factory.

Walter H. Wiegand, supervisor of the physical plant, said yesterday the workmen had made good progress on the Chapel and because of the dry weather this summer had been ahead of schedule.

However, he said, they had to wait on the steel shipment, which put them several weeks behind. He predicted that the workmen could not make up the lost time and said the Chapel probably would not be finished until several weeks after the expected completion date—the summer of 1956.

Work on the Infirmary wings was delayed several weeks because of late delivery of structural steel and other materials.

The cement used on the job was being supplied by a New England firm which was damaged in the recent floods in that area. The University had difficulty matching the same color of the cement, Wiegand said.

One of the two wings of the infirmary will house the Dispensary, now located in the basement of Old Main. The other wing will be used for bed patients. The completion date has been set for next summer.

A strike at another manufacturing firm has halted the supply of tile products for the construction of the Animal Disease Laboratory. The laboratory was scheduled to be completed in early spring.

Delta Sigma Pi Initiates Thirteen

Delta Sigma Pi, professional business administration fraternity, celebrated its Founder's Day last week with the initiation of its fall pledge class.

The initiation was followed by a banquet at the Eutaw House. Edwin C. Ewing, a member of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, who was guest speaker, was initiated as an honorary member.

In 1923 dark colored socks were a requirement for the freshman uniform, and the non-smoking rule was changed to a ban on the "use of tobacco in any form."
