

Hillel to Present New York Stage Hit

"The World of Sholom Aleichem," New York stage hit, will be presented at 8 p.m. tonight in the auditorium of the Hillel Foundation as part of a nation-wide tour being made by six members of the original cast.

Tickets for the production will be available at the door, and may also be obtained until this evening at the Hetzel Union Desk, Kalin's Dress Shop, and the Hillel office.

Debate

Four Members Of Women's Team To Attend Tourney

Four members of the Women's Debate team have been selected to attend the Temple University Novice tournament at Philadelphia Saturday.

Members of the affirmative squad are Sandra Grotzky, freshman in education from Glen Lyon, and Mary Ann Gemmill, freshman in education from New Cumberland. Composing the negative team are Sheila Stahl, freshman in psychology from Sharon, and Anne Smith, freshman in education from Quakertown.

The tournament will debate the national question Resolved: That the non-agricultural industries of the United States should guarantee their workers an annual wage. The orthodox style of four ten-minute speeches and four five-minute rebuttals will be used. The tournament is for the first year debaters who have not participated in a tournament before.

WSGA Group Forms Due On Wednesday

The deadline for application for the Women's Student Government Association Implementation Committee has been changed to Wednesday noon. Application is open to all women students and may be done at the Student Union desk.

Screening of the applicants will be Thursday evening. The implementation committee will act as an experimental group to investigate ways in which students could enforce rules which the hostesses are currently enforcing.

Tentative plans for the committee include work in cooperation with the hostesses to find how the hostesses view student enforcement and in what areas it would be feasible.

The committee, which will be composed of 15 members representing all classes, will write to other universities which have a student enforcement and interview transfer students who have attended such universities. It will also make plans for an orientation program after it has worked out the enforcement plan.

The idea of student enforcement of rules was discussed at WSGA meetings last year. When the revised constitution was approved student enforcement was included, pending a workable plan for its operation.

Cadet Councils To Hold Talks

The Cadet Military Council and Reserve Officers' Training Corps councils will sponsor a series of lectures on world affairs, new weapons, and military life.

The first lecture will be given by Dr. Kent Forester, professor of history, on "Russia, Communism, and Power" at 3 p.m. today in the Hetzel Union auditorium. The speeches are primarily for Army, Navy, and Air Force personnel, but are open to the public.

Lectures on Korea by Dr. Robert T. Oliver, professor of speech, and the Near East by Dr. Frederick R. Matson, professor of archaeology, will also be presented.

HEC Club Workshop Will Be Held Tonight

Members of the Home Economics Club will conduct a Christmas workshop 7:30 tonight in 117 Home Economics.

The purpose of the workshop will be to make tree decorations and favors for the Centre County Home in Bellefonte.

Members of the club, in conjunction with the Penn State Junior Hotel Greeters, will sponsor a party at the home Sunday, Dec. 18.

Herschel Bernardie Original Cast Member

Jewish theater with Jacob Ben-Ami.

Also, Jack Banning, on leave from the cast of "Inherit the Wind"; Marie Andrews, who has appeared with the Cherry Lane Theater in New York; and George Tyne, motion picture star.

The production is being staged by Howard DaSilva, who did the same for the New York run. It includes three one-act plays in English based upon modern Yiddish literature.

In connection with the show's presentation, an exhibition of original drawings and water colors by Ben Shahn, distinguished American artist, is also opening today.

The collection was drawn on the theme "The World of Sholom Kleichem," and will remain on view in the Hillel auditorium until Dec. 15.

AIM Fireside Tonight

The Association of Independent Men will hold a fireside at 9 tonight in Nittany 22.

Treasure House

'Picnic' Will Open Tomorrow Night

William Inge's play "Picnic" which will open at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the General Extension Center was first called "Front Porch," which may have been a more appropriate title since the audience never sees the picnic which is referred to so often in the play.

All action takes place on a porch of a dowdy house in a small town, and in the patch of backyard that separates it from a similar house.

The first performances of "Picnic" were given in Columbus, Ohio, St. Louis, Mo., Cleveland, Ohio, and Boston, Mass. The play opened in New York at the Music Box Theater on Feb. 19, 1953 and ran for 61 weeks. It won the Pulitzer prize, the New York Drama Critics Circle Award, the Outer-Circle Award, and the Theatre Club Award.

Filmed Version
Columbia Pictures is filming a movie version of "Picnic" starring William Holden, Rosaline Russell, and Kim Novak. Joshua Logan, who directed the original stage production, is also directing the movie.

Warren S. Smith, associate professor of dramatics who is directing the Players' production of "Picnic," is relying more heavily on the Inge rather than the Logan interpretation.

Born in Independence
Inge was born in Independence, Kans., and is a graduate of the University of Kansas, where he majored in drama. He tried radio writing and newspaper work before he began his career in drama. Inge received his master's degree at Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn., and then taught at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo. Prior to the acceptance of "Come Back Little Sheba" for Broadway, Inge taught at Washington University, Washington, D.C. Inge is also the author of "Bus Stop."

Park Promenaders To Sponsor Dance

The University Park Promenaders will sponsor a square and folk dance from 7:45 to 9:30 tonight in the Hetzel Union ballroom.

This is the first open square dance presented by the Promenaders. Chauncy P. Lang will do the calling to the orchestra of Jay Crouse, freshman in animal husbandry from Gettysburg.

The type of dances will be determined by the group itself. The Promenaders are planning more of the same type of dance for the future.

Through the Looking Glass

By Gabbi

Brrr—cold enuf for an umbrella these days. I'll tell you I'm pretty stiff competition for that Rudolph character so popular round this time. But we love it all, the icicles dripping from our cokes on the window sill (oh shades of housemothers) and the many one mittens we have stuffed in our drawers. But if the chill really gets you—try ETHELS (it's a store, not a gin) for some warm experiences.

And we cried wolf!

As we peered in ETHEL'S window and came face to face with the slyest wolf with the naughtiest leer. Right down to his pink tongue and nonchalance—he is a charmer and bends easily to sit on any edge. So you see all wolves don't wear fraternity pins! Keeping to the human in inanimate form are the dozens of Hummel figurines so decorative and adorable. If you've never seen them, you're in for a treat—but leave your sales resistance home—they just walk into your favor.

No getting away from it

It's gift giving time again and I'm just having a ball wandering through ETHELS and wishing my head were on a swivel—there's so much to see and buy, like frilly Santa figurines, felt and sparkling angels, Santa and Angel cardboard mobiles, wooden sleighs, festive and fancy gift wrapping ornaments, and candles, huge, colored twisted and appliqued. And ever so many Christmas cards to be personalized or not—it's all so gay and exciting.

Something new has been added

And boy are we rejoicing—at last, card racks now grace ETHELS and makes card selection and payment easier than forgetting the day your term paper is due. It's really a cardland, with more unusualness and humor than a Steve Allen show (almost, anyway). Can't deny their cleverness at all—see you at ETHELS!
