Sewerage Plant to Be Constructed

The University is expected to build a sewerage treatment plant, the facilities of which the borough would rent, within 18 months after formal agreement is reached by the two parties.

Present plans are based on a preliminary agreement under which the University would build and operate the new plant and the borough would rent its facilities.

Final details of the agreement are to be worked out at a meeting this week. After that, the borough council will hold a "citizens" meeting to air its part in the agreement.

The council's final decision on the contract will come after the open meeting.

John Leister, sewerage committee chairman, told the council Monday night that the University will probably borrow money for 40 years, at a lower annual cost than would be possible for the borough to do, under authority and revenue bond financing.

In other business, the council heard a suggestion that next year's budget provide for $3500 to be used for engineering and legal expenses to study the proposed north-south parkway along the eastern edge of the borough.

It was also announced that the University's new street lights on College avenue are operating, but West Penn is having trouble obtaining the steel poles for the new lights on the borough sides of the street.

The University and borough have agreed to install street lights on College avenue along the campus.

Yule Trees Arrive For Fraternities

Fraternities that ordered Christmas trees through Interfraternity Council may pick them up after 6 p.m. tomorrow in back of Delta Upsilon fraternity, William Moyer, IFC secretary-treasurer announced yesterday.

Moyer said he did not know whether the fraternities would be billed for the trees or whether they would have to pay for them when the trees were picked up.

A total of 42 trees were ordered through IFC, Moyer said.

Ship's Bell To Be Erected In HUB Court

The bell from the battleship USS Pennsylvania, given to the University by the Navy Department, will be erected as soon "as the weather is favorable, probably in the spring," Walter H. Wiegand, director of the physical plant, said yesterday.

Erection of the bell has been held up because the steel supports on which the bell is to be hoisted are now in the process of fabrication. A special mount is also being designed for the bell.

The bell, which weighs approximately half a ton, will be placed in the courtyard of the Hetzel Union Building when work is finished on the mounting.

The USS Pennsylvania was decommissioned shortly after World War II. In the last weeks of the war it was attacked by a Japanese suicide plane off the shores of Okinawa and damaged beyond repair.

The Navy Department will actually loan the Pennsylvania bell to the University, but on a permanent basis.

$15 First Prize Awarded to Eiser In Display Contest

John Eiser, senior in architecture from Punxsutawney, won first place award of $15 in the Christmas display contest sponsored by Pi Gamma Alpha, local fine arts honorary fraternity.

Consolation prizes of $5 each were given to Warren Gran from Irvington, N.J., and Thomas B. Brown from Meyersdale. Both students are seniors in architecture.

Fifteen entries were received for the contest, Arthur Anderson, senior in architecture from State College, announced.

The winning design was a quartet group of snowmen caroling beneath a lamp post.

Members of Pi Gamma Alpha will construct the winning design on State College avenue and it will serve as the Christmas display for the University.

$34.5 Billion Planned for Defense

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Dec. 6 (AP)—A near-final decision to set the new defense budget at about $34.5 billion was reported reached today by President Dwight D. Eisenhower and his military and budget experts.

That is roughly the rate of defense spending for this fiscal year. Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson said he expects "no major change" in the total of the new budget for the new fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Dim Prospects Foreseen

Since defense takes about two out of every three dollars the government spends, there appeared to be dim prospects that the administration would be able to recommend any sizeable tax cut to Congress. The lawmakers, of course, could take it on themselves to put through a substantial reduction in an election year. It's been done before.

Eisenhower went over the defense budget for an hour and a half at a conference in his headquarters in the Gettysburg Post Office. Crowded into the small room with him were:

Wilson; Adm. Arthur Radford, Staff; Budget Director Rowland Hughes; Deputy Director Percival F. Brundage; W. J. McNeil, Pentagon budget officer; and Col. Andrew Goodpaster, secretary of the White House staff.

Final Figure Near

Wilson told reporters "no final figure" was arrived at. But McNeil indicated it was all but final and said there are no plans for further meetings with Eisenhower on the subject.

The secretary said he still

Dormitory Vote Shows Pollock Area Favors Dress Rule Revision

By TERRY LEACH

An unofficial vote on the constitutionality of the Sunday dress rule taken last week by Pollock Dormitory presidents and reported last night before Pollock Council indicated a majority of Pollock area students favor some revision in the present ruling.

The constitutionality of the dress rule will be decided tomorrow evening when the Supreme Court meets for the first time. The Court, formed last spring, consists of senior members of Tribunal and Women's Judicial.

Should the Supreme Court declare the rule unconstitutional, individual rulings in the future on the dress rule for West Hall, Nittany, and Pollock areas will be made by their respective councils.

West Halls Council last night voted to table any action on the dress rule until the Court has reached a decision. Nittany Council reached a similar decision Monday.

The rule now states that men of the three areas will wear coats and ties to the noon meal on Sunday. When passed two years ago the ruling was intended to improve the sociability of the independent dining halls.

One dormitory, Pollock 14, voted to retain the rule as it now stands while at least two Pollock dormitories (not identified) voted to do away with the rule in its entirety, according to John Dennis, Council vice president.

The Pollock area voted followed a statement made last week by Bruce Lieske, AIM president, that he will ask each council president to hold an election to determine student opinion on the dress rule should the court declare it unconstitutional.

Dennis said Pollock area students had given the following reasons for opposing the rule:

1. When it is raining students must walk from the dorms to the dining hall in the rain. This results in soiled and spotted clothing.

2. The dining hall is not a suitable environment in which to wear dress clothing. If the University would provide better eating facilities the students would feel like dressing occasionally for meals.

3. Some students are veterans and feel the University should not tell them what to wear while eating.

New Parking Restriction

Police Chief John R. Juba has warned car owners that no parking will be allowed on the 500 block of S. Frazier street. Police consider the hill dangerous for parking. Within the past week a car drifted away and crashed, causing considerable damage.

Collegian to Distribute 550 Newspapers

The revised method of circulation of the 6000 Daily Collegians provides for 550 papers to be distributed from The Daily Collegian office.

Roger Vogelsinger, acting business manager, said this was done to equalize the distribution and make more Collegians available to students living in town. The revised method went into effect Tuesday.

Distribution points now available to town students are the Agriculture dining hall, New College Diner, Corner Room, the Hetzel Union Building, and the Collegian office.

Undergraduate students are assessed $2.20 for a year's subscription through fees paid to the University. The remainder of the paper's income is derived from advertisers, a revenue source which may vary greatly from year to year.

On the basis of Collegian's total income only one paper can be made available for every two students.

Christie Absent From Court

Alexander Christie, freshman in civil engineering from Philadelphia who has been charged with involuntary manslaughter, did not appear at special court session in Bellefonte yesterday.

Special court is ordered by a presiding judge to hear pleas by those under grand jury indictment.

Christie is now scheduled to go on trial Monday or Tuesday in Bellefonte criminal court.

Christie was the driver of an automobile that went out of control on Oct. 22, four miles east of campus, killing William McGarvey, freshman in chemistry from Philadelphia.
