

Tribunal Suggests Probation for Krall, Omits Record Blot

Tribunal recommended Tuesday night that Peter Krall, seventh semester animal husbandry major from Catasauqua, be placed on disciplinary probation, but that a notation of this not be placed on his record.

Due to this unusual stipulation the office of the Dean of Men has not yet given the recommendation official approval, according to Harold W. Perkins, assistant to the dean of men.

In cases involving disciplinary probation, a notation of the incident is made on the student's record until his eighth semester, at which time he may petition for its removal.

Perkins said Tribunal made the exception because of Krall's seventh semester standing.

Fined $100

Krall was fined $100 and spent ten days in county jail for leaving the scene of an accident in which he was involved Sunday evening, Nov. 13, on Route 322 about four miles east of State College.

The case was placed before Tribunal because the office of the Dean of Men considered Krall's conduct during the incident unbecoming a University student.

Krall said he pulled out to pass while returning from Potters Mills where he and two friends "had a few beers," and side-swiped a car traveling from State College.

"We slowed down," Krall said, "and one of the guys said, 'Take off, they didn't stop.' After traveling about a mile and a half, Krall said, he realized he had done the wrong thing, and turned around to return to the scene.

When Krall Returned

Krall said when he returned a state police officer had already arrived at the scene and was setting up flares. He said no more than 15 minutes had elapsed since he had left the scene.

Krall said the officer must have smelled the beer on his breath. However, Krall said he did not think the beer had any effect on his actions.

Damage to Krall's car was estimated at $170. Damage to the car he struck was estimated at around $600.

The subcommittee on discipline of the Senate committee on student affairs yesterday afternoon upheld a Tribunal recommendation made Nov. 21 that five students involved in an incident at the University of Pittsburgh campus be placed on disciplinary probation.

The students had elected to appeal the recommendation.

Light Snow, Cold Expected Today

Light snow and continued cold weather have been forecast for today by meteorology students.

The maximum temperature will reach approximately 33 degrees with a low of 32.

The snow is expected to end early tomorrow morning with temperatures dipping again in the afternoon. More snow flurries are predicted for the afternoon.

Yesterday's high temperature was 31 degrees. The low was 19.

20 Colleges To Drop Air ROTC

More than 20 college and university units of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps will be discontinued, because they are not producing enough officers qualified for pilot instruction, The New York Times reported yesterday.

Col. Daniel Riva, professor of air science, said yesterday that the University was not one of the affected colleges.

The order only affects small colleges and those either not producing enough graduate officers or those with indifferent instruction programs, Col. Riva said. Land-grant colleges and universities have had no trouble in meeting their graduate quotas, he said.

The University has one of the finest AFROTC programs in the country, he said. Approximately 155 University students graduate a year of which about 100 are eligible for pilot training.

The number of college AFROTC programs shut down was said to total over 20, The Times reported. The spokesman declined to identify the institutions because they were obligated to allow colleges and universities to make their own announcements.

Col. Riva said he did not know which colleges were concerned with the shut downs. The Times included a separate report yesterday announcing the cessation of Harvard University's AFROTC program.

Air Force spokesman, assistant secretary for manpower and personnel, said, according to The Times, that the institutions were not producing enough pilot-grade students to justify the expense of the units.

The order will go into effect in July, 1957.

'Security' Plan Goes to Senate

A federal social security system proposal was made ready for State Senate floor approval yesterday following committee approval, the Associated Press reported.

If approved by the legislature, the bipartisan package of eight bills would apply to employees of the University as well as personnel of state teachers' colleges.

The bills would permit state and local government employees to join the social security retirement system if the workers so desire.

The Senate Local Government Committee, which originally took charge of the bills proposed last week, sent them to the Senate floor yesterday.

Dress Rule to Be First Supreme Court Rule

The Supreme Court will function for the first time since its inception tonight when it decides on the constitutionality of the dress rule, now in effect in the men's dormitories.

The Court, made up of senior members of Women's Judicial and Tribunal, will decide whether or not All-University Cabinet overstepped its jurisdiction when it passed the dress rule in the fall of 1953.

The idea of having men dormitory residents wear coats and ties to the Sunday dinner first came up at the Student Encampment in 1953. That fall it was passed by Cabinet.

ICCB Vetoes All-University Open Houses

Inter-Collegiate Council Board, composed of the nine college council presidents, has voted not to hold an All-University open house.

The Board discussed the problem with the Council of Administration, a faculty administrative body, and decided it would not be advantageous to have all the colleges hold an open house on the same day.

The All-University open house held last year received little participation and was not a success, according to Fred Seipt, president of ICCB.

Seipt said that some colleges, liberal arts and business administration, for instance, do not have any material to show at an open house. Others, however, like the College of Agriculture have so many events throughout the year that are similar to an open house than an open house is unnecessary.

Some colleges will still hold their individual open house, but not in conjunction with others. Each college will set its own date.

Lowenfeld New Art Ed Head

Viktor Lowenfeld, professor of art education, has been named head of the department of art education, effective Feb. 1.

The Board of Trustees last August approved the establishment of the department of art education, effective Feb. 1. The department will embrace the program now included in the department of education.

Lowenfeld received the diploma of the Academy of Art in Vienna and the degree of professor of art education at the University of Vienna.

Prior to coming to this country in 1938, he taught in the schools of Vienna and served four years as director of art at the Vienna Institute for the Blind.

Attlee Resigns As Labor Party Boss

LONDON, Thursday, Dec. 8 (AP)—Clement R. Attlee resigned as leader of Britain's Labor party and Queen Elizabeth II promptly made him an earl.

The father of Britain's welfare state resigned at a party caucus yesterday. The Queen announced the earldom early today. The peerage is the traditional reward for long and outstanding political service. Attlee is expected to become leader of the Labor opposition in the House of Lords.

His resignation triggered a bitter power struggle between Leftist Aneurin Bevan and party moderates for his party mantle.

Attlee, 73 next month, stepped down because of age and uncertain health after 20 years in the post, six of them as Prime Minister in crisis-ridden times after World War II.

The bespectacled, pipe-smoking Socialist retired only seven months after age also forced Sir Winston Churchill, his friend and rival for political dominance, into private life.

Within minutes after Attlee announced his retirement at a party caucus, Leftist Bevan began openly canvassing support in balloting which begins Friday to name a new leader.

Most politicians, however, said the odds favored victory for Hugh Gaitskell, 49, a Socialist intellectual, or Attlee's lieutenant, Herbert Morrison, 67, a professional politician. Both are moderates.

The consensus appeared to be that Gaitskell has the edge.

The outcome, which may be known by next Wednesday, was seen as likely to determine whether Labor retains its present policy of intimate friendship with the United States in foreign affairs or swings toward the independent line advocated by Bevan. A Bevanite victory would be sure to mean Labor demands for sweeping new nationalization schemes and government controls.

TIM Approves Date for Mixer At Ice Rink

Town Independent Men last night approved Feb. 17 as the date for its mixer and skating show at the University ice rink.

Final approval of the date is needed from Ernest B. McCoy, dean of the College of Physical Education and Athletics.

In other major business, the organization voted to establish an executive committee and to sponsor an informal dance and a ping-pong tournament.

The ice skating mixer will be open to all students. Town independents will be admitted free by presenting matriculation cards, and other students will be charged the regular 25 cent fee. Skates may be rented and the concession stand will be open.

The executive committee, which is designed for "better coordination within the organization," will be composed of the president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, and chairmen of standing committees as voting members.

Non-voting members will consist of representatives-at-large to the Association of Independent Men and appointments, with approval of the TIM voting members, by the president. The president will preside.

The dance, which has been tagged Lollipop Ball, will be held from 9 p.m. to midnight, Jan. 13, in the Hetzel Union ballroom. The affair will be informal and music will be provided by a local dance band.

The ping pong tournament, scheduled for early next semester, will be open to all students. Matches will be played in the HUB and keys will be presented to the first four winners. No entrance fee has been set.

HUB Displays Art Collection

A collection of original paintings and other art work from the Altoona Center is now on display at the Hetzel Union Building.

The Center's collection, which consists of oil paintings, water colors, prints, drawings and other media, offers a variety of contemporary styles and techniques.

Edwin Zoller, associate professor of fine arts at the Center, assembled the collection. In charge of arrangements for the exhibition was Francis H. Hyslop, Jr., associate professor of fine arts and chairman of the University art committee.

The exhibition will remain on view through December.

IFC Yule Trees Available Tonight

Fraternities that ordered Christmas trees through Interfraternity Council must pick up the trees from 6 to 10 tonight behind Delta Upsilon fraternity.

William Moyer, IFC secretary-treasurer, said yesterday that the trees must be paid for when they are obtained. Fraternities ordering trees and not picking them up will still be billed for the trees, he said.

Moyer said more than 50 trees had been ordered.
