Home Ec Committee to Talk On Christmas in Puerto Rico

A discussion of Christmas celebration in Puerto Rico will highlight the second in a series of programs sponsored by the International Friends Committee of the College of Home Economics at 7:30 tonight in 14 Home Economics.

Also included in the program will be the showing of colored slides of Puerto Rico, a talk on the economic situation in Puerto Rico, and singing of Puerto Rican Christmas carols.

Puerto Rican students participating in the program are Lily and Luis Berrios, Nilda Lopez, and Ennio Belen.

Puerto Rican Christmas food will be served and a display on Puerto Rican crafts is scheduled. Tickets, fifty cents for adults and twenty-five cents for students, may be purchased at the door.

The purpose of the international programs is to promote understanding among foreign and American students and to assist foreign students financially if the need arises. This is the second year the program has been arranged.

Undergraduate students working on the program include Sally Kilmer, Norma Laughner, Ernest Kanes, Mary Wilson, Eleanor Woodward, Sylvia Pence, and Shirley Robb. Dr. Miriam E. Lowenberg, professor of food and nutrition, is the faculty adviser in charge of the program.

'Dames' Vote to Admit Undergraduate's Views

Penn State Dames, a group of student wives and mothers, passed an amendment to their constitution to enable wives of undergraduates to become members upon payment of dues.

A group meeting or social event is held the third Thursday of each month.

Leonides to Hold Intra-Group Contest For Theme Song

Leonides, independent women's organization, will sponsor a contest for a theme song characteristic of the organization. A $10 prize will be awarded for the winning composition.

Entries for the contest, which is open only to independent women, should be turned in to the Leonides office in the Hetzel Union Building before January 6.

The song may be either a composition of original words and music or of original words written to a classical, semi-classical, or popular tune.

Ruth Kaplan, senior in education from Ardmore, was named chairman of the contest committee, which includes Camelia Blount, sophomore in education from Homestead, Sheila Teplitz, sophomore in home economics from Verona, and Georgiana Eckroth, senior in arts and letters from Tyrone.

Leonides colors are blue and gold.

Team Selected By Chess Club

A five-man team has been selected by the Chess Club for two matches this weekend.

The team will play the downtown Young Men's Christian Association of Pittsburgh on Saturday, and Bethany College on Sunday. Both of these matches will be played away.

The members of the team are Edward Herr, sophomore in electrical engineering from New Market, N.J.; Carl Deitrich, freshman in arts and letters from Bellefonte; Arthur Stein, freshman in arts and letters from Philipsburg; Frederick Kerr, sophomore in science from Allison Park; and William Friedman, senior in arts and letters from Philadelphia.

WSGA Interviews Set for Tonight

Applicants for the Woman's Student Government Association's Implementation committee will be screened from 7 to 10 tonight in the WSGA room in White Hall. The screening board will hold a preliminary meeting at 6:15 tonight.

The Implementation committee will investigate ways of student enforcement of WSGA rules which are currently being enforced by dormitory hostesses.

Directors' Theater Play Scheduled for Tonight

The Directors' Theater will present "A Sleep of Prisoners" at 7 tonight in the Little Theater, basement of Old Main.

Two other plays will be given during December: "Room 919" on Dec. 15 and "Take a Giant Step" on Dec. 20. Both plays will begin at 5 p.m. Admission is free.

Phi Sigma Kappa Is 'Foster Parent' For Fourth Year

Members of Phi Sigma Kappa will be playing year-round Santa Claus to Gregoire Vergracht, a twelve-year-old Belgian boy.

The local chapter has "adopted" Gregoire through the Foster Parents' Plan for War Children, Inc.

Gregoire lives with his mother and 13-year-old brother, Christian, in Ostend. Their father was taken as hostage by the occupying Germans during World War II and never heard from again.

Foster Parents' Plan, 43 W. 81st street, New York City, has cared for more than 75,000 war children in stricken countries. Each child is treated as an individual with the foster parents contributing $15 monthly towards the child's support for at least a year.

This will be the second child and fourth year that the fraternity has sponsored the plan.

thru the Looking Glass

By Gabbi

Oops—you've caught me! Honest scarecrow I was only peeking thru the looking glass that Gabbi talks about so much. Mebbe I can pick up a few pointers . . . The New York Times takes so long to get up to my country. You know that bit about Santa having "you" on his list—that's folklore for you ed majors, only friends and relatives know your taste. Mention that you shop ETHELS and you'll be snowed with the last word in beauty and uniqueness.

If you let go all (well, some) inhibitions last year you rid yourself of your Christmas tree for lack of storage space and you're buying a new one—have you considered a perennial (so use your roommate's dictionary) and have a luscious pink or aqua spun glass enhancing your favorite niche or window—and in 2-D silver, metallic green and blue for a very festive decoration. And then if you're still bent on pine (it's very big this year) laden its limbs with jeweled ornaments worth a king's ransom (but not nearly as expensive!) and for tables, bookshelves, tiny santas, snowmen, angels and choir singers!!

Ah Men!!

and what nicer way to show him he's appreciated (or get an equally expensive gift in return) for the alum or ug (you figure it out) note paper in leather Penn State crested box—and letter holder to match—all for $2.50!! If he's aesthetic and loves den living (all tigers do) perhaps a reproduction of world famous museum sculptures would please him—always in good taste, always conversational—f r o m $7.50 up. Large and fascinating collection of cufflinks, wallets, leather accessories and ashtrays, especially for men who await your attention si vous plait!!

Tread Softly

but c a r r y a big knife—cause you'll be the sneakiest slippers that ever padded around a cell—feather-mocs, packable, washable, and the softest kid ever. For men, luggage tan in plaid cases; for women, pink, blue beige in zipper cases!! See you at ETHEL'S.
