 from the pile. The fourth rod is used to regulate the rate of chain reaction when the pile is operating.
 The boron in the rods soaks up the particles shot from the pile. When these rods are lifted, the particles begin bombarding each other, starting chain reaction.
 Cochrane said the reactor will be used primarily for experimentation by faculty and graduate students after present low-power calibration tests are completed.
 The reactor can be used in two ways, Cochrane said. Material can be lowered next to the pile, thus becoming radioactive, or the pile can be moved to one end of the pool and placed against a funnel hole. The radiation would then be transmitted to an experimentation room by use of a funnel.
 The reactor was built at an approximate cost of $310,000. Uran-

Bus Ad Bulletin Available Monday

An article on the reservation of courses for seniors in the College of Business Administration will be included in this month's Biz Ad Bulletin which will be available Monday.
 Joseph Ginsberg, president of the Business Administration Student Council, and Betty Barnhart, senior from Bedford, are the personalities of the month; Dr. Monroe Newman, assistant professor of economics, is the professor of the month.
 The Bulletin may be obtained at the Hetzel Union desk, the lobbies of Willard and Sparks, the Corner Room, the Penn State Diner, and the New College Diner.
 The most eastern point in the U.S. is West Quaddy Head, Maine.
 A uranium for the atomic pile is loaned to the University by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Beaver House Plans Children's Yule Party

Beaver House will entertain 15 children from Woodycrest at a Christmas party from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Monday.
 The fraternity is sponsoring the event in cooperation with third floor MacAllister Hall. The children will range from four to eight years.
 Santa Claus will make an appearance and distribute gifts. There will also be refreshments and general entertainment.

Checks Are in Mail For Korean Veterans

Checks for veterans attending the University under the Korean Bill of Rights are in the mail and should arrive within the next few days, according to the Veterans' Affairs office in the basement of Old Main.
 A spokesman for the office said some veterans have already received their checks, and the rest should arrive shortly.

N.J. Junior Alumni To Sponsor Party

The Penn State Junior Alumni Club of New Jersey will hold a Christmas party in conjunction with the annual college night dance to be held Dec. 30 at Frank Dailey's Meadowbrook in Cedar Grove, N.J.
 Approximately 15 colleges and universities throughout the country will be represented at the party. The Dorsey Brothers, Tommy and Jimmy, will provide music for dancing.
 Any student planning to attend the affair should contact Martha Michener of Miriam Jones at 248 McElwain Hall before Tuesday for table reservations.
Yugoslavia—

 lots should be drawn in the office of the president of the Assembly between the two candidates, the Philippines and Yugoslavia, and that the loser should withdraw his candidacy.

Cabinet—

 view applicants for scholarships on Jan. 4, 5, and 6. The students will serve as advisers to the committee.
 A request from the Junior Class for $125 to help finance their annual Christmas party for children of faculty members was heard by Cabinet. Cabinet will vote on the request at its next meeting since a request for any amount over $100 must be read twice and voted on at the second reading.

Reelection—

 committee elected the four class clique officers to preside over Sunday's election since the officers' posts dissolved. One member would chair the meeting and a parliamentarian would be chosen from the steering committee.
 Former clique chairman Allen Davies said these two persons would not be announced until the election.
