

NSA Does Not Represent Student Opinion—Bullock

All-University Cabinet may vote in favor of returning to National Student Association tomorrow night, but they will not be representing the opinion of the student body, according to Robert Bullock, president of Interfraternity Council.

Bullock said the NSA student opinion poll printed in The Daily Collegian yesterday showed that if Cabinet votes

Ed Council To Study Curriculums

The Education Student Council voted last night to investigate the possibility of revising the curriculums in the various departments of education.

Barbara Easter has been appointed chairman of a committee to find out the needs of each curriculum by speaking to faculty members. The committee may take a survey among students to find out what courses they feel they need in their fields.

The other members of the committee are: Natalie Moskowitz, Anne Campbell, Katherine Dickson, Virginia Leary, and Marjorie Hopp.

Realizing the plan would require research and approval of an administrative body, Miss Moskowitz said: "We are starting a fire to see what we can do 10 years from now, but if we can better the college in any way, we should try our hand at it."

The proposed plan received the endorsement of Dr. M. R. Trabue, dean of the College of Education, and Dr. F. C. Weaver, assistant dean.

The council also passed a motion to have its president vote in Cabinet that the University rejoin the National Student Association only if the areas are changed. Members felt that the University, through NSA, should be affiliated with colleges or universities more nearly the same size.

Elaine Harding and Gaile Rolle were named to a committee to formulate plans for an open house to be held in the spring.

Teenagers to Talk On European Trip

Talks by three State College high school students on their experiences last summer in Denmark and Germany will be sponsored by the local chapter of American Childhood Education International at 7 tonight in Atherton lounge.

The three students, Sherry Parkin, Nan Gullo, and John Krall, were among 600 sent to Europe from June 20 to September 20, 1955 under the American Field Service program after winning a national essay competition.

Military Controls Jordan Capital

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Armored cars moved through Amman's deserted streets at dawn today with loud-speakers blaring, "Remain in your houses."

The Jordan capital was under strict military control in the third day of a curfew after weekend violence by mobs demonstrating against the Baghdad Pact.

A representative of Interfraternity Council will also serve on the board, but he has not been chosen yet.

The board will meet at 7 p.m. Sunday in 209 Hetzel Union to discuss the class dance to be held March 10, William Coale, class president, said.

Farm Bought For Agronomy Research Site

The University has purchased a 230-acre Centre County farm for use as a new Agronomy Research Center, Dr. Lyman E. Jackson, dean of the college of agriculture, has announced.

The tract, located near Old Fort in Potters Township, will be officially taken over by the University on April 1. It was a part of the Brockerhoff estate, and has been a tenant farm for nearly a century.

The farmhouse proper, bank barn, and outbuildings will be completely modernized for the new research studies.

One of the initial projects on the new site will compare soil and crop management systems for permanently productive agriculture. The program will involve a five-year rotation plan.

Grassland is expected to be a prominent feature of the extensive farm tests.

Theta Alpha Phi Initiates 6 Students

Theta Alpha Phi, national dramatics honorary society, has initiated Joyce Andruzak, junior in arts and letters from Sinking Spring; John Henderson, senior in psychology from Hazelton; Elizabeth Ives, junior in arts and letters from Scranton.

University Talent Seen in Farm Show

Several University organizations took part in the annual talent festival at the 40th Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg last night.

Martha McDonald, senior in home economics from Shipensburg who has been chosen 1955 Pennsylvania Apple Queen, was presented to the audience during the 20-minute finale of the show.

During the finale Miss McDonald stood beside a large replica of an apple tree, covered with red apples, representing this year's apple harvest.

William R. Gordon, professor of rural sociology extension, produced the show, entitled "Song of Freedom," which enacted in a graphical and musical fashion the "advantages of the American way of life, and how it has served the farmers of Pennsylvania."

Drill Team Review

A contingent of Pershing Rifle members took part in a 112-man drill team review which performed a ten minute routine during the show.

James W. Dunlop, assistant professor of music education, directed the 100-piece Future Farmers of America orchestra which played a medley of tunes in tribute to the Pennsylvania farmer.

Members of the University 4-H Club and agricultural and home economics clubs also took part in the pageant.

Musical Salute

The three-hour show began with a musical salute to the farmers of Pennsylvania. Other scenes depicted the settling of the first farmers in the state and the development of the FFA and other rural organizations. One scene concerned the rural people's desire for a world of peace and plenty.

Last year's farm show pageant was dedicated to the University in tribute to its century of service to the agriculture and welfare of the people of Pennsylvania.

The week-long farm show was officially dedicated Monday night with an address by Gov. George M. Leader. The show will end on Friday with the judging of the livestock and poultry meets and the awarding of prizes to the winners.

Psychology Tests To Be Explained

Freshmen in the Colleges of Chemistry and Physics, Engineering and Architecture, and Mineral Industries who have not received the results of the psychological tests taken during Orientation Week, may have them interpreted at 8 tonight in Sparks building.

The test results will be available in the rooms designated by the following alphabetic sub-divisions: A-Ca, room 1; CE-Ez, room 11; F-I, room 12; J-L, room 18; M-Q, room 19; R-Z, room 10.

The interpretations will be given by television, and will take about an hour.

Leiske Names--

(Continued from page one) use of the facilities in the Hetzel Union Building, which are necessary to the success of the plan, have run into a temporary snag.

The Board of Governors will also hear a report from the Elections Committee. AIM spring elections will be held April 18; nominations for these offices will be held April 11.

Lieske said that the Board of Governors will attempt to clear up all the old business which has been pending since the beginning of the semester. Final reports on the Dink Debut, Fish Fry, and the Gridiron Ball will be heard.
