

Cabinet Approves Reports From Three Committees

By TED SERRILL

Reports on last fall's All-University class elections, the Junior Prom and Junior Week, and Orientation Week were approved by All-University Cabinet last night.

Roger Beidler, chairman of the Elections Committee, recommended that voting machines again be used in the Hetzel Union Building for the spring elections and that the committee's budget be increased to $125 for the spring semester and $75 for the fall semester. The money is to be used for impartial advertising.

IFC May Set February Date For Pledging

Fraternities will probably be allowed to pledge freshmen sometime in February, Robert Bullock, Interfraternity Council president, said last night.

Bullock said the exact date for legalized pledging will not be known until the University releases fall semester grades to fraternities.

He also reminded fraternities, that under the new system they must register all men they pledge with the Fraternity Affairs Office.

Complete rushing lists will be sent to fraternities early next semester, he said. The lists will include the names of men who have been pledged by a fraternity, in addition to eligible freshmen.

This way, he said, fraternities will know who has been pledged, and what men are still eligible for rushing.

'Engineer' Includes Coed Calendar; Sale Begins Today

The 1956 Coed Calendar will be the main feature of the Penn State Engineer which goes on sale today.

This is the first year that the calendar has appeared. The twelve girls who represent the months of the year are: Patricia Brown, January; Nancy Seaman, February; Ann Lederman, March; Hester Ankis, April; Ellen Mifflin, May; Sara Sensenig, June; Barbara Peck, July; Vera Wingert, August; Sandra Goldman, September; Elaine Chaitt, October; Geraldine Ritter, November; and Sally Rolston, December.

The Engineer also contains four student written stories; "Cast Iron" by Robert Howe, "Technical Writing" by Richard Coates, "Checking the Killer Gas" by James Stratton, and "The Thermal Stability of Jet Fields" by James Mittenberger.

The Engineer will be on sale at the Corner Room, outside Grange Dormitory, the Hetzel Union desk, and on the Mall.

Magill Will Play At Lollipop Ball

The Lollipop Ball featuring Eugene Magill and his 18-piece Association of Independent Men band will be held from 9 to 12 tonight in the Hetzel Union Ballroom.

The dance, sponsored by the Town Independent Men, marks the first appearance of the newly formed band. Robert Cole, TIM president, after hearing the group practice last week, said, "The band has some very fine dance and jazz arrangements."

'Who's Who' Listees May Get Copies

Students listed in 'Who's in the News at Penn State' may pick up their two copies of the publication Monday at the Hetzel Union desk. Identification must be shown.

'Who's in the News' was started in 1946 by Arthur R. Warnock, Dean of Men Emeritus, in an effort to give recognition to outstanding men and women of the University.

Students in this year's issue were chosen by the All-University President, the editor of The Daily Collegian, president of the Women's Student Government Association, and student council presidents. A total of 383 students are included in the booklet.

Those listed are the senior board members of all student publications, junior board members of The Daily Collegian, letter winners, students mentioned frequently in campus news, and members of Sigma Delta Chi, men's national professional journalistic fraternity, and Theta Sigma Phi, women's national professional journalism society.

Copies will be sent to the Pattee Library, fraternities, sororities, administration offices and publication departments.

'Who's in the News' is also mailed to leading universities across the country, universities and colleges in Pennsylvania and state newspapers.

Individual stories are also sent by the department of Public Information to the hometown papers of students included in the publication.

This year's editor is James Jacoby, senior in journalism from Allentown, Ann Lederman, senior in journalism from Glenside is associate editor.

Awards Given To 4 Seniors

Four seniors have received awards from the Central Pennsylvania section of the American Chemical Society.

Students chosen for the awards are Hal Harman, senior in metallurgy from Bellefonte; Albert Morre, senior in chemical engineering from Rome; William Schwartz, senior in chemistry from Harrisburg; and Paul Strenge, senior in chemical engineering from Aldan.

The awards are made to seniors in chemistry or allied fields who have maintained a grade point average of 3.5 or better during their first six semesters, according to Dr. John R. Hayes, associate professor of chemistry.

Richard Seng, chairman; Douglas Moorhead, business manager; Elizabeth Rodgers, coronation chairman; Daniel Van Duyne, carnival chairman; Don Bostock, He-Man contest chairman; Judith Burns, Mad Hatters contest chairman; Irving Buck, donkey basketball game chairman; Arnold Hoffman, publicity manager; Peter Kiefer, talent show chairman.

Kenneth Cumblidge, Sunday Night Movies Committee chairman.

George Buckhout, Orientation Week chairman.

Seely Asks Deletion

All-University President Earl Seely asked Cabinet to delete from the report a recommendation requesting the holding of a referendum vote during the spring elections allowing students to select one football half-holiday. Under a plan now under consideration students would be allowed two floating half-holidays in the fall and one full holiday in the spring. The holidays would be determined by Cabinet.

The recommendation was taken out of the report by Cabinet which decided to wait until the Council on Administration meets next week.

Amendment Suggested

Beidler also read the committee's proposal to add an amendment to the Elections code which would not permit any elected officer of a political party to run for any office in any other political party for a period of not less than a year after his resignation. This request came after William Snyder, former Lion Party vice clique chairman, ran for the same post in the Campus Party last December.

Interpretation Questioned

Patricia Farrell, Women's Recreation Association president, and Harold Dean, head of the Cabinet Secretariat, said the amendment could be interpreted by Elections Committee any way it pleased if an officer of a political party decided to start a party of his own.

Since Cabinet felt this would possibly delegate too much power of decision to the committee, it deleted the amendment from the report, allowing Election Committee to rewrite the amendment if it wished.

Bahrenburg Reads Report

The report on the Junior Prom, read by Robert Bahrenburg, junior class president, detailed the events of Junior Week and the prom. Bahrenburg said he thought the week was "very successful" and described the week's pep rally as "one of the largest and best in several years." He also said, "The Junior Prom was attended by more than 1000 couples and people were turned a way from the Chapel Service."

George Yingling, Engineering and Architecture Council president, read a report on last September's Orientation Week program in the absence of Vernon Sones, Orientation committee chairman.

$125 Allocation Approved

Cabinet also allocated $125 to the Junior class for a Christmas party held for faculty children in December.

Seely announced the following appointments, which Cabinet approved:

Brinks Case Solved By FBI; 6 Arrested

BOSTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—The nation's biggest cash holdup—the $1,218,211 cash Brink's job—has been solved, the FBI announced today.

Within hours of the announcement six men—all with criminal records—were held in bail of more than $100,000 each for a hearing in two weeks. Their bail totaled $670,000. They were brought into court with each manacled between two FBI men.

Two other men are in custody, one serving a term in the Western Penitentiary at Pittsburgh, Pa., the other in a Massachusetts jail for gun-carrying.

Two others are being sought. The FBI said 11 men were involved in the holdup—seven were the masked gang wearing identical chauffeur's caps, Navy-type pea coats and gray trousers.

One of the 11 men died "of natural causes" a year ago, the announcement said.

In addition to the cash, the robbers' loot included $1,557,183.83 in checks, money orders and securities. It never was disclosed whether any of this was negotiable.

The six men arraigned were: Adolph Maffie, 44, of North Quincy; Joseph F. McGinnis, 52, Boston; Vincent J. Costa, 41, of Pembroke; Michael V. Geagen, 47, of Milton; Athony Pino, 48, Boston; and Henry Baker, 49, of Natick.

Already in Jail
Already in jail in other cases, but charged with the others are Joseph J. (Specs) O'Keefe, 47, of Boston; and Stanley A. Gusciara, 36, Boston.

Thomas F. Richardson, 48, of Weymouth and James I. Faherty, 44, of Boston, are being sought. The 11th man named by the FBI was Joseph S. Banfield, 45, of Boston, who died a year ago.

The FBI said it has turned over all its evidence and reports in the case to Boston's Suffolk County Dist. Atty. Garrett Byrne.

Sitting Extended
Byrne announced he has extended the sitting of the Suffolk County grand jury—now in session—and will set aside all other business to proceed with the Brink's prosecution.

The announcement of the solution of the baffling crime said it was "an FBI job all the way." Because of that, Brink's express may not have to pay any of the $100,000 reward it offered for "information leading to the arrest and conviction" of the robbers.

AIM Tables Discussion On NISA

The Association of Independent Men's Board of Governors Wednesday night voted to table discussion on the National Independent Student Association until it could be determined which students are interested in attending the NISA convention in the spring.

AIM president Bruce Lieske brought up the subject when he named Thomas Smith and William Johnson as delegates to the spring convention. However, several members of the board questioned this move on the grounds that since the two had not been questioned on the matter, it was possible they may not be interested in attending the convention.

The board then agreed to delay naming the delegates until the Board members and others—who might be interested—could be questioned.

The board also voted to have the Recreation Committee look into the possibilities of installing lights on the poles at the ice skating rink to light both the rink and the adjacent basketball courts.

John Dennis, Pollock Council representative, who first raised the question, said the courts were heavily used, and that lights would greatly benefit the East Area recreation program. He said he had no idea of the cost of installing such lights.

FBI men cannot accept such awards.

The FBI had been close on the trail of the arrested men for a long time. All but one of the arrested men were called before a U.S. grand jury here three years ago, in an inquiry which failed, however, to produce any indictments.
