

Fewer Cars Registered On Campus This Semester

The ban on freshmen cars on campus has resulted in 100 fewer vehicles registered with the University this year than last year. Last year there were 700 freshmen registered with cars.

"If freshmen were permitted to have cars this year the traffic problem would have been that much greater," said Captain Philip Mark, of the Campus Patrol.

Mark revealed that there are about 3100 faculty, staff, and student parking spaces available. Two hundred parking spaces in the vicinity of the Nittany Lion are not included in the figures.

Traffic fines for the semester have reached $1300. Fines for students have run about the same as last fall's semester; faculty members have been fined less this semester than last fall.

Faculty members are reprimanded by their deans after a traffic violation, Captain Mark said. Campus Patrol finds that this does more to lessen faculty violations than monetary fines.

Thirteen hundred students have been fined, as have 400 faculty and staff members.

Few complaints have come to Campus Patrol concerning traffic on Pollock road between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. The drop in number of students using the road has been considerable in relation to two years ago.

Two Containers Still Not Found

Campus Patrol has not located the two Coca-Cola containers stolen from a station wagon outside Recreation Hall Wednesday night, Capt. Philip A. Mark said yesterday.

The containers were removed from the station wagon of Frank Adams of the Coca-Cola bottling works in Altoona during the Penn State-Syracuse basketball game.

Company officials have said no questions will be asked if the containers are returned to the Clark Motor Co., S. Pugh street, the company's local warehouse.

Each container is under 120 pounds of pressure and may cause serious injury if improperly opened, officials have warned.

Theta Xi Receives National Trophy

The University chapter of Theta Xi received the fraternity's national memorial trophy for the outstanding chapter in the year 1954-55 last week.

The award was made following a dinner attended by town alumni and the chapter's regional director, Dr. George Royer, a senior electrical engineer and systems director of Westinghouse Electric Corp.

The trophy is awarded annually to the charter outstanding in several fields, the major emphasis being placed on the scholastic record. The local chapter rose from 26th to 12th place last year in its standing with University fraternities.

New Dorms --

Complaints of sororities concerning the present housing conditions are that the suites are too small, and that men cannot be entertained by the groups. The new suites will be larger, and will be located on the ground floor, with the dormitory rooms upstairs.

The suite rent in Simmons and McElwain dormitories is now $750 a year. Rent for the new suites cannot be estimated until the exact cost of the construction, interior decoration, and furniture is known.

'Lift-Slab' Method--

(Continued from page one) complete residence units. A dining hall with four dining rooms will be built in the center.

A total of 1064 women students will be accommodated.

The University has asked for bids for the construction. Work on the project is expected to begin in the early spring.

12 Pay Fines For Violations

Twelve persons were fined a total of $82 by Traffic Court last night.

Of the 14 persons who appeared before the court, three received suspended fines and two cases were dismissed.

The breakdown of fines shows that $61 was levied for traffic violations; $11 for failure to report to the office of the Campus Patrol; and $10 for failure to register vehicles with the Campus Patrol.

One student's campus driving privileges were suspended. Automatic fines of $40 were levied against six others for failure to appear before the court.

The regular meetings of Traffic Court for the next two Mondays have been cancelled.
