Firemen To Inspect Dwellings

Nine volunteer teams of Alpha Fire Company will conduct an investigation of State College homes and business places in an effort to reduce the number of possible fire hazards in the borough.

The plan calls for an investigation team composed of seven or eight firemen to visit each property armed with a questionnaire and flashlights to make a thorough investigation.

Fire Chief Tom Sauers said Tuesday he was hopeful the investigation will begin within a week.

Firemen will point out danger points to owners and make recommendations for improvement.

Questionnaires will be completed and sent to fire marshal, Bruce Holman. Hazards will be checked from time to time by Holman.

Plans for the investigation were touched off when Town Independent Men president Robert Cole notified the Chamber of Commerce in November of complaints town students had made to him of existing fire hazards in rooming houses.

Final action for a definite investigation was approved Monday evening at a meeting of the borough council at which Cole questioned the council on its progress.

Cole was appointed by All-University Cabinet last fall to investigate the housing conditions of town students.

He said at least 25 students complained of fire hazards in town rooming houses. One student told Cole that three of his friends moved from the rooming house at which the student lives because the danger of fire was "imminent."

Complaints listed by town students include: faulty wiring, crowded conditions, dirty houses, and lack of fire escapes.

chair, a rug and a shovel, and attempted to remove an eight-day clock from Phi Kappa Tau fraternity the morning of Feb. 1.

The Office of the Dean of Men did not approve or disapprove the recommendation, but referred to the Senate subcommittee where the views of both Tribunal and the Office will be presented for the consideration of the other members.

The case of Donald L. Hawke, senior in business administration from Easton, who admitted siphoning gas from a car in a garage near his residence the morning of Jan. 23, may result in either disciplinary probation or suspension from the University, depending upon the decision of the subcommittee.

Each of the four, Hugh Browne, senior in business administration from Nutley, N.J.; John Cone, senior in labor management from Pittsburgh; Adrian Eschallier, senior in arts and letters from Upper Darby; and Robert Elmes, senior in business administration from Beaver Falls, was fined $50 plus $11.50 costs by Squire Guy G. Mills at a hearing last Wednesday.

Browne cut his hand when he slipped on an icy pavement and broke a whiskey bottle he was carrying.

Borough police were called to Phi Kappa Tau at 2 a.m. Feb. 1 to investigate a complaint of theft. Police reported that they followed a trail of blood directly to the Pi Kappa Phi house, through the main floor, and out of the house again.

Browne was identified when a call was made to the infirmary, police said. A call by police to Pi Kappa Phi stating that one of the four had been identified resulted in the other three appearing. (Continued on page eight) to provide equal advantage for all students. Small visual aids, such as pictures or postcards that cannot be used in a classroom, can be enlarged on a television screen.

Television is being used for better utilization of large classrooms. Six sets are staggered along the sides of a classroom to aid the instruction with visual material. In this way, students in the rear of the room can see as well as those in the front. Classes in education, chemistry, and electrical engineering use this method for demonstrations.

New System Simpler

The TV systems in Osmond Laboratory and EE are simpler than the Sparks system, and involve only one camera. In Sparks the picture is not sent to other rooms, but is used to accommodate more students in one room, as demonstrations may be seen clearly by students.

These advances in the television experiment will help provide for an increase in enrollment, and enable the best instructors to meet more students. The instructors will lecture on television, and teaching assistants will lead discussion and problem work during recitation periods.

There are 36 hours of televised classes a week this semester. These are primarily introductory courses, where enrollment is large.

Courses Televised
The new courses televised this year are Accounting I, Economics 2, Political Science 3, Sociology I, and EE 8. Others are Speech 200, Psychology 2, Commerce 30, Music 5, Education I, Air Science 4, and Chemistry 2.

A high quality sound system has been added to the system in Sparks. This was installed for Music 5, but will be used for other classes.

The television program is being financed by the Ford Foundation's Fund for the Advancement of Education.

Rumors of Prexy Running Quenched

After rumors from all areas of the press that Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of the University, may be the dark horse in this year's presidential race, President Dwight D. Eisenhower said at his news conference yesterday he knows of no political ambitions of his brother.

Dr. Eisenhower, who has made frequent visits to Washington since his brother became president, is known as one of the President's closest advisers.

Asked if Dr. Eisenhower has any political aspirations, the chief executive said: "If he has any political ambition, it is unknown to me."

pointed toward Feb. 29 or March 7 as possible dates. Ordinarily, those would be conference days.

Probably the chief executive said the announcement also will require a longer explanation than he would give at a news conference. That might mean a TV-radio appearance.

As usual, Eisenhower gave no conclusive indication that he is inclined one way or the other at the moment.

He did say that if he decides against seeking re-election and Chief Justice Earl Warren wants to try for the Republican presidential nomination, "He would have no opposition from me; of that, I assure you." Yet he made it rather clear he wouldn't tap Warren on the shoulder and tell the chief justice he wants him in the White House.

As for his youngest brother, Milton president of Pennsylvania State University, who also has been mentioned as a GOP presidential possibility, the chief executive said: "If he has any political ambition, it is unknown to me."

Eisenhower was asked how he felt concerning his Sept. 24 heart attack. He answered that there are times when he feels "more tired than, I think, I would have in the past, but that may be also just advancing years."
