2 Trombonists To Play Tonight

J. J. Johnson and Kai Winding, duo trombonists, will play in Schwab Auditorium at 8:30 tonight as guests of the Penn State Jazz Club.

Tickets for the two hour concert are on sale at the Hetzel Union desk for $1.

Backing the trombonists will be a drum, piano, and string bass. The performers who will play these instruments tonight are not known.

The Johnson-Winding combination has been playing together for the past two years, and has become increasingly popular in spite of scepticism when they first joined forces.

Although Johnson came from Indianapolis and Winding was originally from Denmark, both came to New York City in the early 1940's. Each artist played for periods of one or two years under a succession of well-known orchestra leaders before teaming up.

Founder of 'Sally's' To Sell Business

By AL KLIMCKE

Next Wednesday a Penn State tradition will change hands.

For that is when Dean Probst, who in 1936 instituted a small commercial venture which has since come to be known as Sally's Sandwich Service, will retire and turn his business over to new operators.

Sally's will be taken over intact by J. W. Meyers, Probst's brother-in-law, and Sarah Carwich, both formerly from Phoenix, Ariz. Probst will sell the building and stock, but will retain ownership of the property at Pugh and Beaver streets, upon which the building is located.

Probst described Sally's as, "A child of the depression." "I actually began Sally's because there were just no jobs to be had at the time," Probst said.

Began With One Basket
Sally's began with one basket and a clientele of the six fraternities and the three tri-dorms which made up the College at that time, Probst said. He cited as an example of Sally's growth since then the fact that he now can produce 240 pizza pies at one time.

"Sally's has faced many types of competition in the years since its beginning, but has always managed to outlast them," Probst said. He said he could not even begin to estimate how many thousands of students he has served in the 20 years of Sally's existence, nor the hundreds of students he has employed.

Faces Choice
"In 1936," Probst said, "I found myself faced with the alternative of either moving to a city or going into business for myself." He readily admitted he was glad he made the latter choice.

Probst was born in 1899 in nearby Lock Haven, and spent the major part of his life traveling about the country before deciding to return to "somewhere near home," in 1929.

He held various jobs in Philadelphia, Buffalo, and several Ohio towns during this time. In Philadelphia he helped found the Mineral Springs Hotel in Willow Grove, which has since been torn down.

Before coming to State College he spent seven years as superintendent of the club and grounds for the Boalsburg Officers' Club, and married in 1934.

To Live in Phoenix
After his retirement Probst plans to travel to Phoenix, where he has built a home, with his wife. He said he intends to spend his summers at his farm north of Lock Haven on the old College Post Pike.

Probst enjoys hunting, fishing, and trapping, in spite of the fact that he lost his right arm in a hunting accident when he was 12.

Probst said in the 20 years of Sally's service, he has never missed a night of service to his customers, in spite of "rain, sleet, or hail." He said he only hopes
