

Bridges Defends Dulles On 'Brink' Statement

Says Ike's Term 'Like Golden Age'

By ED DUBBS
Sen. Styles Bridges (R.-N.H.) last night defended Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' "brink of war" statement and termed the three years under the Eisenhower Administration "like a Golden Age."

Sen. Bridges, speaking at the Centre County Republican Lincoln Day dinner at Nittany Lion Inn, came to the support of Dulles by saying:

"I say it's a helluva lot better to be on 'brink of war' than in the middle of war."

He went on to say that he has been "amazed" to find the Republican party being criticized "for having the moral honesty to tell the American people that this country has come perilously close to war, on three occasions during the last three years."

"We have assumed a position of world leadership and we have saved the nation from the holocaust of war," he said.

Sen. Bridges, ranking Republican member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said that "the last three years have not been perfect, but in comparison to the 20 years which preceded them, they seem indeed like a Golden Age."

Lauds Administration

He lauded the Administration for balancing the budget, "stabilizing the American dollar," for its dropping of rigid price supports, and for a "positive foreign policy."

He said that when President Dwight D. Eisenhower was elected "he took one of the toughest and most complex jobs of any President of the United States."

Comparing the tasks facing Presidents Lincoln and Eisenhower, he said that "Lincoln had the task of saving the union, while President Eisenhower was confronted with saving the free world."

Sen. Bridges said that "under the leadership of President Eisenhower, we have done much to return this country to the ways of Lincoln."

Urges Surplus Trade

Backing the President's farm program, he added another point to the proposed program. He suggested trading "temporary surpluses" to foreign friendly countries for stockpiling materials such as copper and other ores. He said "temporary surpluses" were those which cannot be kept for long periods.

"This would be getting rid of the surpluses and stockpiling at the same time," he said.

Sen. Bridges, commenting on foreign aid, said he was "finished pouring out American dollars and supplies to countries that aren't willing to help themselves."

He said this was one of his "four basic rules" for guidance on foreign aid. The other three are: "I have no intention of balancing the budgets of certain nations at the American taxpayer's expense; do not intend to support European colonialism with United States money; and do not intend to try to buy friends with American dollars by pouring money into so-called neutral countries which are playing ball with the Communists seven-eighths of the time."

Sen. Bridges said, in closing, that "the next few months, the next few years are going to be (Continued on page eight)"

Song Contest Deadline Set For Saturday

The deadline for entries in the Leonides' song contest is Saturday noon.

Independent women are eligible to submit an entry in the contest, which has a $10 prize.

The compositions may be original, or original lyrics set to a classical, semi-classical, or popular tune.

Entries should be turned in at the Leonides' office, 203 Hetzel Union.

Leonides is working on a plan to organize a bluebook file, which will be available to all independent women. Women who would benefit by the file are asked to help compile it by saving old bluebooks. A Leonides representative will contact the independent women and collect the bluebooks and tests. The organized plan will make a file available in each woman's dormitory.

Leonides representatives were asked by Norma Talarico, acting president, to have at least one monthly meeting in her living unit.

Minutes of the Leonides' meetings will be printed and posted in each living unit.

26 Students Fined By Traffic Court

Twenty-six students were fined a total of $86 by Traffic Court Monday night.

In addition, $49 was levied in automatic fines against ten students for failure to appear before the court. Six students received suspended fines totaling $28, and four cases were dismissed.

Of the $86 total, $71 was levied for traffic violations, $8 for failure to register a vehicle with the Campus Patrol, and $7 for failure to report to the Campus Patrol office.

Student Orchestra Invited to Join Dramatics Board

The Symphony Orchestra has been invited to become a member of the Board of Dramatics and Forensics as the result of a unanimous vote by board members Sunday.

Stanley Michalski, orchestra president and senior in music education from Nanticoke, will represent the orchestra on the board, according to Louis Fryman, board chairman.

In order to become represented on the board, an organization must be active in some form of music, dramatics, or debate, where all members participate in the activity.

There are now nine organizations represented on the board.
