

Cabinet Votes to Hold NSA Meeting on Campus

The much-discussed question of the National Student Association came up for consideration again by All-University Cabinet Thursday night. Cabinet voted to invite the Pennsylvania-West Virginia region to hold its convention at the University this spring.

The lengthy debate appeared to be a reiteration of the semester-long discussion. The University resumed membership in NSA last semester.

The motion was introduced by Philip Beard, All-University secretary-treasurer, and immediately came under question from many quarters.

All-University President Earl Seely said that he has been in correspondence with the regional secretary and will notify him of Cabinet's decision.

Seely said that after consulting the calendar he felt the only possible weekend open for the convention would be April 27, 28, and 29.

Jonathan Plaut, head of the Forenses Council, said he felt that many people who would have to prepare for the convention would be busy with Spring Week, which starts April 30.

Doubts Raised by Bullock
More doubts were voiced by Robert Bullock, Interfraternity Council president and past opponent of NSA, who said he felt it might cause embarrassment to NSA committee members. They might be asked how they ran their set-up, he continued, and they would have to reply that they had only been on the job for two weeks.

Beard said he thought NSA members would experience no embarrassment as the visitors would not be likely to ask questions about the NSA structure. He felt they would want to know about the individual student government groups on campus.

He said the NSA visitors would be more likely to ask about the Association of Independent Men and the Interfraternity Council.

"Even if we didn't have NSA at Penn State," Beard said, "we could still hold the convention on campus."

McMillan Takes Negative Stand
Robert McMillan, senior class president, also questioned the wisdom of holding the convention here. McMillan said that since the University had just re-installed NSA it might not be ready to take on the burden of hosting an entire region of its members.

He was answered by Robert Bahrenburg, junior class president, who said he believed that there was no better way to get NSA off on the right foot than to sponsor regional convention.

Bahrenburg mildly rebuffed NSA's opponents by stating that the people who had objected to hosting the convention were haggling on small, insignificant points

WSGA Names 2 Sophomores For Committee

Roseanne Fortunato, sophomore in education from Wilmington, Del., has been elected chairman of the Women's Student Government Association elections committee. She will be assisted by Susanne Smith, sophomore in home economics from Bellefonte.

Committee chairmen for the Coed Tea to be sponsored by freshman women, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m., March 11, in Atherton Hall, were announced. Priscilla Doll and Sandra Shogren, freshman WSGA Senators, are co-chairmen of the tea honoring upperclass women.

Committee heads are as follow: Alice Beebe, clean-up; Carol Courtman, invitations; Mary Ann Gemmill, decorations; Carol Heckman, name tags; Lynn Ward, hostess; Sandra Reimer, refreshments; Ruth Johnson and Penelope Robey, entertainment; and Joan Esslinger and Janet Sloves, publicity.

Patricia Douthett, Judicial Board chairman, announced that Jo Fulton had been appointed a Judicial Board member and chairman of the Freshman Regulations Board, replacing Suzanne Loux who resigned.

Carolyn Cunningham, president, announced that there will be a conference on women's student government at Syracuse University on March 9 and 10. Anne Nitraurer, sophomore senator, will represent WSGA at the conference.

and were overlooking the general good that the convention could do, for the new membership on campus. He said that the points that were being thrown up against NSA were being made mainly by persons who "were still bitter about having NSA approved."

"This bitterness will wear off in three or four years," he said.

Pizza Contest

Byron LaVan, sophomore in business administration from Philadelphia, who says he hates pizza, ate his way through one and a half last night at the Home Delivery Pizzeria before giving up.

A fraternity brother, Ed Goldston, junior in business administration from Pittsburgh, had challenged him to eat 3 large pizzas with tomato sauce, cheese, and mushrooms in 2 hours. He was to drink a quart of skim milk with them.

For two days before the attempt, LaVan ate large meals, trying to stretch his stomach. He ate only breakfast yesterday.

During the time in which he was to eat the pizza LaVan took time out to walk around the block several times to settle the food in his stomach.

Ten persons stood about offering advice to LaVan and urging him to eat faster when it appeared he was falling behind schedule.

After he quit, LaVan said he could have done it if he had had more time.

Hipple Resigns University Post

Dr. John A. Hipple, director of the Mineral Industries Experiment Station and assistant dean for research in the College of Mineral Industries, has submitted his resignation at the University to become vice president of the North American Philips Company.

North American Philips' activities are primarily in the fields of electronics and nucleonics.

Before joining the staff of the University, Dr. Hipple was chief of the Atomic Physics Section of the National Bureau of Standards. Prior to that he had been a member of the research staff at Westinghouse Research Laboratories in East Pittsburgh. He was an undergraduate at the University as well as at Franklin & Marshall College, and received his doctor of philosophy degree from Princeton University.

Marine Officers To Hold Interview

The Marine officer procurement team will be on campus Monday and Tuesday to interview students interested in obtaining a commission in the U.S. Marine Corps.

The Marines have recently opened a new program, platoon leaders class in aviation, making a total of four officer training programs for which college students are eligible.

For further details, students may contact the Marine officer procurement team, which will be located in the HUB, or Captain Saunders at the NROTC unit.

Brotherhood Banquet Slated For Sunday

The third annual Brotherhood Banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in the Hetzel Union ballroom.

Rabbi Arthur J. Lelyveld, national director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations and chairman of the Board of Trustees of World University Service, will speak at the banquet.

In 1946 Rabbi Lelyveld came to Hillel as the Association National Director. He is the author of the Universal Jewish Encyclopedia, and is a member of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, of the Executive Committee of the Jewish Book Council, and of the American Jewish Society for Service.

President Milton S. Eisenhower, honorary chairman of National Brotherhood Week at the University, will introduce Rabbi Lelyveld.

All the religious organizations on campus will be represented in a mixed choral group, which will present songs from each of the religious traditions.

The Committee of Thirteen, composed of faculty members, student leaders of campus religious organizations, and local clergy of the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths, are sponsoring the banquet.

The dinner is open to students, faculty members, and townspeople.

This banquet will officially mark the close of the Centennial celebration.

Theme Song Entries For Leonides Due

Today is the deadline for entries in the Leonides' theme song contest.

All entries should be turned in at the Leonides office, 203 Hetzel Union. All independent women are eligible to enter.

The next Leonides meeting will be held at 6:30 p.m. Monday in 203 Hetzel Union.

Problems Beset Waring Show

Many technical innovations and much back stage talent was necessary before Fred Waring's musical "Hear! Hear!" could take to the road. These include everything from collapsible scenery to lighting experts for the show's "electronic ballet" sequence.

Waring employed Sam Leve, the scenic designer for many Broadway hit shows, to make collapsible sets sturdy enough to survive a 25,000 mile truck tour.

A problem of logistics was encountered in moving the ten tons of equipment necessary for the show. Other preparations for the tour such as arranging hotel reservations, preparing publicity, and other minor details created another headache in the production of "Hear! Hear!"

For the "electronic ballet" sequence of the show, Waring's expert in audio problems set to work on microphones and speakers.

Waring, together with his music arrangers Harry Simeone, Hawley Ades, Roy Ringwald and Charley Naylor, set to work making new arrangements for the songs in the new pageant. Music copyist Earl Sisson took on a three month's task of copying a "part" of each song for every member of the glee club and orchestra.

Last, but not least, the "Pennsylvanians" spent long hours rehearsing the intricacies of an entirely new production. The result: February 24, in Recreation Hall—"Hear! Hear!"

A COLORFUL old-time minstrel sequence is one of the highlights of the Fred Waring music show "Hear! Hear!" to be presented next Friday night in Recreation Hall. Playing the banjo in the act is Fred Waring Jr., kneeling, second from the left, a freshman at the University last year. The show is the production of Waring's Pennsylvanians, including both the glee club and the orchestra.

WDFM to Present Recorded Version Of 'The Tunnel'

A psychological drama, "The Tunnel," will be presented over WDFM at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. The play was presented and tape recorded last semester by members of Drama 480 class, under the direction of Robert Reifsnieder.

The drama concerns an English household composed of a rich, elderly woman who has married a younger husband. Following the arrival of a young housekeeper a series of incidents leading to murder take place.

The drama was produced by an all student cast. The principal actors are Joan Montgomery as the wife, Elizabeth Jones as the maid, and Barry Fain as the young husband. Other cast members are Phillip Wein, Rae Taylor, Lee Sacks, Sylvia Brown, Corliss Philabaum, Bernard Schussman and Elizabeth Ives.

"The Tunnel" is a professional play written by Mabel Constandaras and Howard Aga.

Student Films have been changed starting this Sunday from 119 Osmond to Assembly Room in HUB Two Shows: 7 and 9 p.m.
