

'Penstate Inka' Sets Record For Butterfat Production

Penstate Inka Pathfinder Star, a heifer in the University herd, recently became the first Holstein in the nation to produce over 1000 pounds of butterfat each year for five years.

The patched Holstein's yearly production would make 7500 quarts of ice cream plus 1260 pounds of milk solids.

Her life's total is 181,911 pounds of milk and 77,066 pounds of butterfat, which would equal more than 15,000 gallons of ice cream.

The cow, commonly known as number 3345, more than triples the milk production of an average Pennsylvania cow, and there is a good chance that she will break her own record. The life expectancy of a cow is approximately 15 years and Inka is only 12.

Since last year she has been milked exclusively by Earl Waltermeyer, sophomore in dairy science from Glen Rock. Because Inka is an exceptional cow, she must be milked three times a day by hand, instead of being machine-milked twice a day like ordinary cows.

Inka is the mother of eight calves, including four bulls and four heifers, who are now following in their mother's footsteps by setting records of their own.

Seven Escape Serious Injury On Mt. Nittany

By RON WALKER

Seven students who hiked to the top of Mt. Nittany Sunday afternoon, narrowly escaped serious injury when they attempted to scale a 200-foot deep rocky quarry near Lemont.

The seven, all but one from Hamilton Hall, are: Robert Pech, freshman in electrical engineering from Donora; David Moyer, freshman in agricultural education from Dublin; William Coleman, freshman in general agriculture from Pittsburgh; Richard Baderston, freshman in secondary education from Philadelphia; Ralph Ward, freshman in agricultural engineering from Mt. Lebanon; Dean McCartney, freshman in business administration from Pittsburgh; and Robert Pennell, sophomore in geology and mineralogy from Crafton.

When Ward and McCartney attempted to climb the 200-foot inclined side of the quarry, several boulders gave way, stranding the two about half way up.

When McCartney ran back down the side, the boulders began to move. McCartney laid flat against the rock wall and several large boulders tumbled down, narrowly missing him.

Ward was then left stranded about 10 feet from the top of the quarry. Moyer, Pech, and Baderston quickly ran to the top by a back way and attempted to lift Ward out with a broken tree limb.

As they attempted to pull Ward up, the limb broke, and he fell back. A large rock stopped him and prevented him from falling 190 feet to the bottom. On the second attempt the three pulled him to safety.

in Psychology 17. In group A, students were told that they would be required to comply with University regulations which permits no unexcused absences. Group B was told that class attendance was optional.

There was no difference in the result: Group A had 10.54 actual absences to total possible absences, and Group B had 10.59 per cent.

Principal research under study this semester is how to make the most effective adaptation of courses to television and vice versa, and the potentialities of using television for presenting close-ups, demonstrations, short films, guest speakers, discussion panels, still pictures, and other graphs.

Guest Speakers Named for Grad Lecture Series

Dr. Benjamin W. Lewis, chairman of the department of economics at Oberlin College, and Willard Olson, dean of the College of Education at the University of Michigan, will speak at the first two lectures presented by the Graduate School.

Dr. Lewis will speak on "The Role of Economists in the Federal Government" at 7:30 p.m. March 1 in the Mineral Industries auditorium. The lecture will be co-sponsored by the College of Business Administration.

Dean Olson will talk on "How Children Grow, Achieve, Feel, and Behave" at 7:30 p.m. March 12 in 121 Sparks. This lecture will also be sponsored by the College of Education.

In April, Dr. Newman A. Hall, associate dean in charge of the graduate division, College of Engineering, New York University, will be guest lecturer. Dr. Hall will be co-sponsored by the College of Engineering.

Correction

The first session of a course in elementary photography, sponsored by the Penn State Camera Club, will be held March 3 instead of March 23 as erroneously reported in yesterday's Daily Collegian.

Registration for the free course, which is open to students and faculty, will continue at the Hetzel Union desk until February 29.

TIM Secretary Nominations To Be Heard

Nominations for secretary will be heard tonight at a meeting of Town Independent Men at 7:30 p.m. in 209 Hetzel Union Building.

James Faust, present TIM secretary, will resign his position March 8 in order to student teach. Nominations will be from the floor, according to Robert Cole, TIM president.

A second and final reading of the revised TIM constitution will be made by James Goodwin, TIM parliamentarian. After the constitution has been read TIM will vote on acceptance.

Lash Howes, TIM representative at large to the Association of Independent Men, will assume control of the membership committee and will present a plan for boosting membership in TIM.

Walter Kowalik and James Brough each won a $2.50 gift certificate Friday evening in the cakewalk at the TIM-sponsored ice mixer at the University rink.

Norman Shoup presented a comedy routine in which he jumped over six sand bags backward and 10 forward.

The "Rocketts" consisting of Anne Richards, Carol Berggren, Gloria Wagner, Christine Bell, and Betty Reeder from State College High School presented a dancing routine. The "Rocketts" were directed by Christine Jones.

Dr. Eisenhower opened the convocation as he discussed the future of American higher education in the first plenary session.

Discussions were divided into three groups of three round-tables each. Dr. Clifford C. Furnas, chancellor of the University of Buffalo, summarized the research discussion. Dr. Carrol V. Newsom, executive vice chancellor of New York University, summarized the extension round-tables. And Dr. Francis H. Squire, dean of the University of Delaware, covered the results of discussion groups on resident instruction.

Several conclusions were drawn and it was suggested that the work of the convocation not be halted.

Throughout the Centennial many events, both large and small, have been held to honor the birthday. The events mentioned above were only the major celebrations.

The Brotherhood Banquet held Sunday was the last official Centennial celebration.
