

Campus Post Office Processes Over 2,600,000 Items of Mail

More than 2,600,000 pieces of mail have been processed at the University post office since its opening one year ago yesterday.

That day last year marked the first time a letter carried the postmark "University Park, Pa."

Since then the post office has handled an average of 9000 letters a day during the regular academic year, according to J. Russell Hoy, superintendent.

Only Slow Period

The only slow period last year was during late July through August, when most of the student body was home, Hoy said.

Top day for the post office was its opening day when 55,000 cancellations were made. This is attributed by Hoy largely to philatelic enthusiasm.

The station, located in the Hetzel Union Building, opened on the University's 100th birthday.

The opening of the station brought an end to letters leaving the University stamped with the State College mark.

News 'Datelines' Change

It also replaced State College with University Park on all "datelines" on news stories originating from the University.

University Park was chosen by the board of trustees to dramatize the institution's earlier recognition as a full-fledged university to clear up confusion resulting from the change.

Hoy, who supervises the station under the direction of State College Postmaster Robert J. Miller, said that the summer slump is alleviated somewhat by Summer Sessions, a heavy schedule of conferences and special events, plus the continuously heavy flow of official University mail.

Breakdown of Operations

A breakdown of the first-year operations shows 2,151,118 pieces of mail machine cancelled, 152,000 pieces were hand stamped, and 306,000 represented metered mail. It also has issued 2800 money orders, handled 1050 pieces of registered mail, and insured 4500 packages.

The station offers complete "window service" except for postal savings and international money orders. The money orders, however, may be cashed at the post office. This service includes stamps, stamped envelopes, postal cards, and domestic money orders. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday.

present suggestions to be made by the Registration Committee, and Chairman Samuel Walcott will present Cabinet revision proposals set up by the Cabinet Reorganization Committee.

Among the issues to be discussed by the Registration Committee are the distributing of floor plans to students as they enter Recreation Hall during the registration process, the possibility of calling more attention to the Deans' table, and the reason for no longer operating registration on a seniority basis.

The five-member Cabinet Reorganization Committee, working around a recommendation which originated with the 1955 Student Encampment Committee on Student Government, will present four proposals in an effort to eliminate those Cabinet seats which do not represent a majority of the students. The proposals will be suggested in view of the possibility that membership be extended to groups not now represented.

The committee is in favor of retaining all of the existing 25 Cabinet seats and will submit the following recommendations: 1. That an ex-officio non-voting seat be offered to the Graduate Student Council; 2. That the present ex-officio seats, as provided in the All-University Constitution, remain the same; 3. That the seat now delegated as the Board of Publications be redelegated as the editor of the Daily Collegian; 4. That the seat now delegated as the Board of Dramatics and Forensics be eliminated.

of music education in the College of Education.

The department of theatre arts includes the former division of dramatics which was previously included in the English Literature division of the Liberal Arts College. Also under the theatre arts the dance will be developed cooperatively with the department of women's physical education. The areas of motion pictures and television will be developed cooperatively in conjunction with other departments in the University concerned with these fields.

Under the affiliated departments the department of architecture is still responsible to the dean of the College of Engineering and Architecture, but it shares joint appointments with the department of art.

The departments of art education and music education are still responsible administratively to the College of Education. The department of music education will continue to share joint appointments with the school of fine arts and the section of home art. The music education department will continue to share joint faculty appointments with the department of music.

The faculty members of the school of fine and applied arts are members of the faculty of the Liberal Arts College and as such are eligible for election to the University Senate as Liberal Arts representatives.

The School of Fine and Applied Arts was established at the University last August. Christ-Janer, whose appointment as the first director of the school was approved by the Board of Trustees Jan. 21, was formerly with New York University.
