

Ike Prepared to Run Again

Tells Nation of Decision, Campaign Policy Hopes

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—President Dwight D. Eisenhower told the nation tonight he is willing to run again because, despite his heart attack, "there is not the slightest doubt that I can perform as well as I ever have, all the important duties of the presidency."

The President scheduled a radio-television appearance after announcing earlier in the day he would be available for renomination.

In a summary of his remarks, released in advance, Eisenhower ruled out any "extensive traveling" or "whistle stop speaking" in the event of his renomination—something that can be taken for granted in the light of his decision to run.

He declared: "I shall, in general, wage no political campaign in the customary pattern. Instead, my principal purpose, if renominated, will be to inform the American people accurately, through means of mass communication, of the foreign and domestic program this administration has designed and has pressed for the benefit of all our people; to show them how much of that program has been accomplished or enacted into law; to point out what remains to be done, and to show how we intend to do it."

Early in his talk, unprecedented in American history, Eisenhower said that as "a recovered heart patient, he might be a greater risk than is the normal person of my age." He is 65.

Risk Not Great

But he said his doctors assure him that this increased risk "is not great."

He added: "So far as my own personal sense of well-being is concerned, I am as well as before the attack occurred."

At the same time, Eisenhower said, he must restrict his activities and so, he said:

"If the Republican delegates—to the national convention—come to believe that they should have as their presidential nominee one who would campaign more actively, they would have the perfect right—indeed the duty—to name such a nominee."

Accept Decision Cheerfully
"I, for one, would accept their decision cheerfully and I would continue by all means within my power to help advance the interests of the American people."

Mrs. Eisenhower and the President's brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, arranged to be with him in his office as he detailed for the American people the factors that lay behind his second-term decision.

Eisenhower began by saying he reached his decision only after "the most careful and devoutly prayerful consideration." Then, without further preliminary, he said:

"I have decided that if the Republican party choose to renominate me, I shall accept. Thereafter, if the people of this country should elect me, I shall continue to serve them in the office I now hold."

Prexy Silent On Ike's Plans For 2d Term

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower made no comment yesterday on the decision of his brother, President Dwight D. Eisenhower, to make himself available for a second term in the White House.

He also declined comment on

Dr. Eisenhower was present at the White House last night when President Eisenhower elaborated on his decision in a radio and television address to the nation.

Dr. Eisenhower flew to Washington to be with his brother after the President's announcement at his morning press conference. He is scheduled to receive an award from the Republic of Korea today.

In his speech, President Eisenhower said he made his decision to accept a second term independently of advice of members of his family. Dr. Eisenhower has long been identified as one of the President's closest advisers.

whether he was one of the six who was notified of the decision by President Eisenhower Tuesday night.

A University official said yesterday that Dr. Eisenhower felt it would be inappropriate for him to comment on the announcement.

The Centre Daily Times said Dr. Eisenhower appeared anxious to learn the details of the decision. The Times provided him with a copy of the Associated Press report yesterday morning immediately after it was received from Washington.

Court Will Decide Procedure Methods

The Supreme Court will meet Monday night to set precedent and procedure in hearing future cases Chairman Patricia Douthett said last night.

This meeting has been spurred by Rudolph Lutter's request to have the court examine the constitutionality of the student government compensations, passed by Cabinet last week.

Lutter said yesterday that he hoped the court could try the case on Sunday night because he felt a time lapse might allow "other forces" to step in and injure his chances of getting the case before the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court is in its first year of operation and thus far has heard only one case—the dining hall dress rule case.

The court was set up as an appellate body to consider any questions concerning the Student Government Constitution but thus far has not made any provisions for the procedure in bringing cases before the court.

Monday is Earliest

Miss Douthett said the court could not possibly hear the case as soon as Sunday because they didn't have any operating procedure set up.

She said she couldn't be sure whether or not the court would decide to hear Lutter's case at Monday night's meeting. She said procedural methods would have to be established before any definite action could be taken. However, she admitted the possibility that the court would decide whether or not to hear Lutter's case.

Meyers Wants Decision
Lynn Meyers, chairman of Tribunal and member of the Supreme Court, said that he thought it was any student's right to question the constitutionality of student government actions. Meyers added that he felt that if the student presented a formal letter to the chairman of the Supreme Court with a legitimate complaint, the court would have to take action on the matter.

Lutter's complaint centered around the charge that by voting itself an increase in compensation, Cabinet violated the welfare of the student body and the University, and if such action were condoned, it would set a bad precedent by allowing future student leaders a free hand in channeling funds to themselves by creating scholarships with funds collected from student fees.

All-University President Earl Seely commented on the matter by saying that he felt the present case had no similarity to the (Continued on page eight)

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP)—President Eisenhower's "yes" touched off the heaviest trading in five months today in the stock market.

There were cheers on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange and a great rush of trading at moderately higher prices.

G. Mason Owlett, national Republican committeeman from Pennsylvania, said today that the "people of America should be very happy" about President Eisenhower's announcement that he is available for a second term.

British leaders made no official comment but government officials said privately that Eisenhower's decision was good for the free world.

French officials expressed pleasure privately at the decision. In West Germany associates of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said he was "highly pleased."

Behind the Iron Curtain, the first official reaction in Moscow was smiling but non-committal.

"This is news we have expected for some time," said Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, smiling.

Prexy to Get Korean Award In Rites Today

President Milton S. Eisenhower will be presented South Korea's highest award today in Washington.

Korean ambassador Yau Chan Yang will award the Republic of Korea Medal on behalf of President Syngman Rhee at a ceremony at the Korean Embassy.

He will be cited for his organization and leadership of the American-Korean Foundation. Dr. Eisenhower became first president of the organization in 1953. It functioned as a relief agency during the Korean conflict and is now materially aiding Koreans.

Yang said Dr. Eisenhower is regarded by the Korean people "as their great, good friend. Through his leadership were given kindness and material assistance to the sufferers from Communist aggression."

The presentation was originally scheduled for Feb. 17 but was postponed when Dr. Eisenhower decided he could not travel to Washington following the funeral of Board of Trustees President James Milholland in Pittsburgh because of threatening weather.

Today is March 1 and spring is just around the corner, but the weatherman doesn't seem to realize it.

Although the forecast for today is fair and warmer, according to the students in the department of meteorology, yesterday's snow fall dampened hopes of continued warm weather.

To celebrate today, no snow is predicted and the temperature should rise 20 degrees. The expected maximum is 49 while the low should be 32. Yesterday's high was 29 and the low was 19.

Concert Performer Fails to Appear

Elena Nikolaidi, contralto for the Metropolitan Opera Association, failed to appear while some 800 persons awaited her Community Concert performance in Schwab Auditorium last night.

David McKinley, chairman of the Community Concert, called New York and learned that the recital Miss Nikolaidi was to give Sunday in Town Hall had been cancelled on doctor's orders and that the Community Concert was not notified of the change in plans.

Members of the Woman's Student Government Association House are asked to turn in records of their transcripts to Margaret Forster, 44 McElwain, today.

Preliminary Plans Underway For 5th Annual Encampment

Preliminary plans are underway for the fifth annual Student Encampment to be held at the Mont Alto Forestry School during the week preceding next fall's Orientation Week. The exact dates have not been set.

Approximately 120 people will attend the three-day conference, which had its origin under President Milton S. Eisenhower in 1950. Dr. Eisenhower founded the encampment idea while he was president of Kansas State College. About 90 students and 30 faculty and administration members attend the encampment.

The Encampment Committee is appointed during the spring semester and usually includes two faculty members and two administration members.

A list of problems and discussion topics relating to the University's student government and activities is compiled and categorized under eight general headings. Discussion leaders are chosen to chair the eight different workshops. Each discussion leader does research on each problem so that all facts will be known at the time of Encampment.

Student participants are chosen by two methods. About 80 per cent are chosen by the position they hold in campus activities. The remaining 20 per cent are chosen from interviews by the Encampment Committee. The Committee and Dr. Eisenhower select the faculty and administration members who will attend.

2 Days of Discussion
The first two days of Encampment are spent discussing problems and ideas by each of the eight workshop committees. Plenary sessions are held on the second day and at the close of Encampment. Workshop reports are also made at this time.

Shortly after the fall semester begins, individual workshop reports are presented before All-University Cabinet, which in turn acts on the suggestions and proposals which come from the reports.

Not a Legislative Body
Student Encampment is not a legislative body, but an idea and discussion group. All ideas coming from this group must be put into effect by Cabinet, the Council of Administration, or individual organizations on campus.

The University pays expenses for the faculty and administration and pays one half of the student expenses, while the Student Government Association pays for the other half.
