

AIM Governors Back Proposal On Snack Bar

The Association of Independent Men's Board of Governors last night unanimously approved work underway by Nittany Council toward having the snack bar at the skating rink behind the Nittany-Pollock area open on a year-round basis for the area students.

The recommendation was part of the executive committee report read by AIM Secretary Leonard Richards at last night's meeting in the Student Government room of the Hetzel Union Building.

Council Revises MI Constitution, Enacts Charter

The Mineral Industries Student Council last night took the first steps toward enacting a revised constitution and a charter for The Prospector, MI student publication.

The council voted unanimously to accept the constitution and the charter, which must be voted on at the next meeting and passed by two-thirds of the members present before going into effect. The Prospector charter must also be approved by the Senate Committee on Student Affairs.

The council also approved, as part of the revised constitution, an amendment proposed by President Edwin Tocker which would enable the president, with the unanimous consent of the council, to appoint a member to fill any vacancy caused by a leave of absence, dismissal, or resignation. The appointee would hold the post until his graduation.

In other business, the council dropped two members for non-attendance of meetings.

The council will hear Gilbert L. Crossley, assistant professor of electrical engineering, under whose license student operated radio station W3YA is run, at its next meeting.

WSGA Nomination Blanks Available

Self-nomination blanks for WSGA positions will be available in the dean of women's office until March 5, according to Roseanne Fortunato, chairman of Women's Student Government Association elections committee.

Primary elections are scheduled for March 13; finals for March 15.

Seipt to Ask CPIC Report Changes

Fred Seipt, chairman of the Intercollege Council Board, tonight will ask All-University Cabinet to remove one and revise another of the 10 clauses included in the Cabinet Personnel Interviewing Committee report which originated under the student government workshop at last fall's Student Encampment. One clause which Seipt will ask to be removed, states that "The Cabinet Personnel Interviewing Committee shall complete all interviewing for a stated category at least two weeks prior to the announced date of appointment." This announced date is the final Cabinet approval of appointments. The committee has found that the clause serves no real purpose and is a waste of time. Its main purpose was to allow enough time for the All-University president, CPIC, and Cabinet to consider prospective appointments. The Committee will recommend that this can be satisfactorily accomplished without the two week clause.

Clause number nine states: "Advanced notice of the committee positions to be interviewed as well as application procedures shall be published in The Daily Collegian at least two weeks prior to the date set for the final interviewing; and publicity shall continue for as long a period as the CPIC shall deem appropriate."

The committee will recommend that one week is sufficient time for advance notice and that two or three publications of a committee position shall be sufficient. Under old business, Cabinet will vote for the second time on a constitutional amendment proposed by John Seastone, president of the Home Economics Student Council. Cabinet approved the proposal last Thursday, and a two-thirds vote is needed at tonight's meeting for final approval. The amendment states that "The manager of Associated Student Activities must be consulted before agreements are made involving expenditures of student government funds. Expenditures exceeding $200 shall be discussed at one meeting of Cabinet and voted on at the next. Before this time it was the amount of $100."

Following tonight's meeting, Cabinet members and advisers will go to the home of Dean and Mrs. Frank J. Simes for refreshments.

Mark Takes Tumble on Ice; Others Do Too

Capt. Philip A. Mark, head of Campus Patrol, was one of many persons who took tumbles on the snow and ice yesterday.

Capt. Mark was leaving the Hetzel Union building yesterday morning, reading a copy of the Daily Collegian, when his footing gave way.

A student came to his aid, but he got up without help.

Said Capt. Mark: "Never read Collegian while walking on icy walks."

University hospital officials reported no students being treated for falls. But many fell.

Chem-Phys Nominates 3 For Offices

Three students were nominated last night for offices on the Chemistry and Physics Student Council. Elections will be held on March 14.

Nominated for president was Joseph Eberly, junior in physics from State College. Kenneth Christiansen, junior in chemical engineering from Fanwood, N.J., was a nominee for vice president and Nancy Free, sophomore in chemistry from Bethlehem, was nominated for secretary-treasurer.

Council President William Childs announced that a $1000 scholarship will be awarded as a first prize in the senior high school division of the Science Fair which will run in conjunction with the College of Chemistry and Physics open house April 28.

The four-year scholarship is a gift of the Sylvania Electric Products Corporation. Over 100 high schools have been sent invitations.

The council coffee hour Tuesday was termed a partial success and plans will be furthered to increase the attendance, the coffee hour committee reported.

Gilbert Crossley, assistant professor of electrical engineering, will be invited by the council to appear at the next meeting on March 14. Crossley is seeking funds to help support the student operated radio station.

Dean's List Addition

Kendall Weir, junior in electrical engineering, has been named to the Dean's List of the College of Engineering and Architecture for the fall semester. Weir had a 3.51 average. He was omitted from yesterday's listing in The Daily Collegian.

Faculty Requests Rare Book Curator

The faculty of the College of the Liberal Arts has passed a petition requesting that the University budget for the library include the salary of a curator of rare books and a sum of money to be used for the purchase of rare books.

Ben Euwema, dean of the college, said the petition represents the unanimous opinion of the liberal arts faculty. The petition was acted on at a meeting of the faculty held last week.

Dr. Ralph W. McComb, University librarian, asked for a curator in his latest budget request and has also endorsed the liberal arts faculty petition.

Faculty Offers Reasons

The faculty offered several reasons for their two requests. They said the graduate program of the University, including class assignments, theses, dissertations, and faculty research, is hampered by the lack of source material in the fields of literature, history, and other humanities.

At present, according to the faculty, there is no member of the staff except the librarian experienced in cataloging material. Therefore the small amount of such material as the library does have is stored away and not yet completely arranged for use.

Another Reason Given

Another reason the liberal arts faculty gave for the need of a curator is that the present librarians do not have the time to investigate rare materials that are for sale. If this could be done, the library could build up a collection, they said.

The group claims that the University's present librarians are too busy to go out and make contacts with Pennsylvanians, alumni, and friends who have rare items to give away or sell. Other large universities receive such gifts valued at millions of dollars, while the University relies mostly on purchases and small casual gifts.

The petition, while saying that the University library should contain more rare books, manuscripts, letters, and similar materials, states that the shift from a college with largely undergraduate work to a University needs to be accompanied by a new library policy of securing adequate source material.

Senate Group Passes Ag Society Charter

The Senate Committee on Student Affairs yesterday approved a petition by a new campus organization, the World Agricultural Service Society, for a charter.

Membership in the group is open to students interested in the agricultural programs of the world's nations. Glenn Elder, junior in agricultural education, is president.

U.S. Army Band To Play Sunday In Rec Hall

The 120-piece United States Army Field Band will present a free program of concert, popular, and marching music from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday in Recreation Hall.

The band, under the direction of Lieutenant Colonel Chester E. Whiting, is appearing at the request of the Army Cadet Military Council.

The Army field band is on continuous tour and has appeared in England, Europe, and the Far East. It is a separate unit and not connected with the United States Army Band located permanently in Washington.

Fort Meade, Va., is the permanent home of the Army field band but the group seldom spends more than a few weeks there each year because of its extensive tours.

The band does not always travel as a unit. When Army schedules call for simultaneous appearances, the band is split into smaller units.

The band was organized more than 20 years ago.

Following the presentation here on Sunday, the band will appear in Altoona.

Econ Prof Will Speak At Graduate Series

Dr. Ben W. Lewis, chairman of the department of economics at Oberlin College, will speak at the Graduate School series lecture at 7:30 tonight in the Mineral Science auditorium.

Dr. Lewis will speak on "This Business of Bigness." The lecture is co-sponsored by the College of Business Administration.
