

Free Froth Day

SEVENTY-FIVE students living within a 10-mile radius of Altoona and one living within a 12-mile radius received free copies of Froth yesterday. The idea started when the head of the University's Altoona center banned Froth at the center. Due to bad weather, Froth copies will be on sale again today at the bulletin board on the Mall, the Corner Room, the Hetzel Union desk, and the corner of Shortlidge and Pollock roads.

der the proposed budget. Student encampment committee will receive its own allotment of $700 this year, and the inter-religious committee of 13 will receive $300.
Most of the meeting tonight is expected to be taken up with committee reports. Richard Seng, chairman of the Spring Week committee, will present a report outlining the plans and regulations for the individual Spring Week contests.
Judy Sedor, chairman of the educational policy, will suggest the administration look into the problem of overlapping courses in order that students in the colleges and schools concerned may elect a greater number of liberal arts courses.
Under old business, Cabinet will vote for the second time on a motion to change the title of the Cabinet member representing the board of publications to the editor of The Daily Collegian.
A parking report, brought up at last week's meeting by Thomas Dye, and tabled by Cabinet, may be brought to the floor at tonight's session.
Under new business, Cabinet will discuss plans for purchasing a piano for Recreation Hall.

Council Passes Revision, Plans Spring Election

The Mineral Industries Student Council last night completed revision of its Constitution and outlined procedure for election of new members.
The council also approved and sent to the Senate committee on student affairs a charter for The Prospector, M.I. student publication.
Self-nomination for the council election, to be held March 21 and 22, will be through sheets posted at prominent places in the M.I. building and will be open until March 20. Two freshmen, two sophomores, and three juniors will be elected. Balloting will take place in the foyer of the M.I. building.
The revised Constitution and an amendment to the Constitution were passed by a more than two-thirds vote. The amendment, proposed by President Edwin Tocker at the group's last meeting, enables the president, with the unanimous consent of the council, to appoint a member to fill any vacancy caused by a leave of absence, dismissal, or resignation. The appointee will hold the post until graduation.
The council will not meet until after Spring vacation, when it will elect new officers.

Running for treasurer are Jean McMahon, John Giles, Barbara Frederick, and William Spieth.
