

Senate Rejects Planned Area For Carnival

The Senate Committee on Student Affairs yesterday temporarily rejected the Spring Week Committee's proposal to hold the Spring Week carnival in the parking lot north of the ice rink.

The Senate committee suggested that other possible areas be considered before a place is decided upon.

Panhel Council Considers ASA Membership

Panhelnic Council Monday night discussed the possibility of joining the Associated Student Activities Fund.

This organization, Joanne Caruso, president said, would handle Panhel's account and audit its books free of charge. It is run by the University. Other schools often charge a fee for this service based on the size of each group's budget.

Miss Caruso said joining the organization would facilitate the handling of accounts and eliminate a lot of bookwork. Since IFC is a member, transfer of funds from one account to another could be made easily.

Pauline Paulekas, sorority chairman for Greek Week, announced that each sorority will probably be assessed $12 for Greek Week to cover banquet costs, programs, and trophies.

Sororities were reminded that a list of pledges and sisters and the officers they hold must be turned into the dean of women's office.

Council also appointed a committee to look into two $50 scholarships which are awarded by Panhel.

Party to Be Given By BusAd Council

An Easter party for 50 children from State College, Circleville, and Millbrook will be sponsored by the Business Administration Council from 4 to 5:30 p.m. today in the Hetzel Union ballroom.

Patronesses from Phi Chi Theta, women's national business fraternity, will act as hostesses.

Phillip Wein, senior in arts and letters from Clarion, amateur magician and ventriloquist, will perform.

Segregation Issue To Be Discussed

"Tuscaloosa at Penn State—To What Extent Does It Happen Here?" will be discussed at a public meeting sponsored by the campus committee on race relations at 7:30 tonight in the Hetzel Union assembly hall.

Dr. Edward Abramson, assistant professor of sociology and Ruston Roy, associate professor of geochemistry, will discuss race relations on campus and in State College.

3 Involved In Accidents On Tuesday

A car driven by a student rammed the rear of a car driven by a faculty member and a run-away car hit another faculty member's car in separate accidents Tuesday.

The car operated by Charles Lutz, sophomore in general agriculture from Port Matilda, hit the rear of the car operated by Dr. George J. Fritz, assistant professor of botany, Tuesday afternoon on Shortlidge road.

Police said Lutz's car hit Dr. Fritz's vehicle when it stopped for a line of traffic.

Dr. Fritz caused Campus Patrol a little trouble when it investigated the accident. He carried an Indiana operator's license, North Carolina plates, insurance from an Illinois broker, and a Pennsylvania learner's permit and auto title. All were in order, police said.

About $100 damage was done to Lutz's car.

Police said James A. Moore, Lewistown, parked his car on S. Frazier street near W. College avenue and left it in parked gear with the handbrake not set. It drifted backward into the sports car owned by Michael J. Owens, instructor in engineering mechanics, Owens' car was parked near Calder alley.

Damage to the sports car was estimated at $150 and $25 to Moore's vehicle.

Cattle Drawings Set for April 5

Drawings for show cattle for the 31st annual Penn State Dairy Exposition will be held Thursday, April 5, and not tonight as was erroneously reported in yesterday's Daily Collegian.

Students need no previous experience to enter the exposition. A $2 deposit will be required for the use of fitting and showing equipment.

Transportation to the dairy barns will be arranged so that students will be able to fit the animals.

Prizes and awards for showmanship and fitting will be presented at the Awards Banquet on May 12.

New Suite in Old Main May Be Finished Today

The new administrative suite in the second-floor lounge of Old Main is expected to be finished today.

A Physical Plant spokesman said he expects Wilmed E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, to move into the suite as soon as possible.

Kenworthy's present office, situated in the president's suite, is to be used for storage.

The principle objection the committee raised against having the carnival in the parking lot by the ice rink is that this spot is too close to the Nittany dormitory area and those students not wanting to participate in the carnival would be inconvenienced by it.

The committee also raised an objection to the parking facilities available if the carnival were held there. It was suggested that parking might run over into most of the dormitory area.

Heavy traffic of people, cars, and construction equipment might cause more inconvenience for Nittany dormitory residents, according to the Senate committee. The traffic period could extend as long as 60 hours, according to one member.

The committee told Richard Seng, Spring Week committee chairman, to reconsider a place for the event and to keep in mind that it could be held in another place which would be more acceptable and less detrimental. Particularly, it was suggested that the carnival be held further from dormitories.

Other Options Are Held

The Spring Week committee had options on three other places before they decided in favor of the ice rink parking lot. Other places considered by the committee are the lot south of Simmons dormitory where the carnival has been held before, the parking lot across Shortlidge road from the Extension Conference Center and north of the Jordan fertility plots, and the area in back of McElwain dormitory.

With the planned building for the area south of Simmons this area will not be considered. The parking area north of the fertility plots would have to be fenced off if used according to a report by Daniel VanDuyne, carnival chairman. He also suggested that the area would not be smooth.

The Spring Week committee will discuss a place for the carnival at its meeting Sunday.

Phys Ed Elects Farrell President

Ann Farrell, junior in physical education from State College, was elected president of the Physical Education Student Council by a close vote last week.

Those elected to the other offices were David Watkins, sophomore in physical education from Coopersburg, vice president; Jack Michel, sophomore in physical education from Ridgeway, secretary; and William Spieth, junior in physical education from Phoenixville, treasurer.

Fourteen Per Cent Vote for Councils

Approximately 14 per cent of those eligible turned out yesterday to vote for representatives in seven student council elections.

The turnout was declared "disappointingly light" by members of the council elections committees.

However, officials expect a larger number of persons at the polls today, the last day for voting. Voting will be held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. today at the various polling spots around the campus set up by the councils.

The largest turnout was recorded at the polling place of the Business Administration student council. At 5 p.m. yesterday, 159 of the 835 eligible voters had cast their ballots. One incident was recorded of a student attempting to vote more than once.

The council ballot boxes are located in the lobby of Sparks building, and in the card room of the Hetzel Union building. To prevent persons from voting more than once at the two separate voting places, officials stamp the voter's matriculation card. Yesterday afternoon, a student attempted to vote in the HUB after he had already voted in Sparks.

Voting for representatives of the Home Economics student council was termed 20 per cent higher than this time last year by one official. At 5 p.m. yesterday, 150 of the 680 persons eligible had cast their ballots.

The ballot boxes for the Home Economics student council elections are located in the lobby of the Home Economics building.

Sixty-three persons out of approximately 600 eligible voted in the Mineral Industries council elections. The voting is being carried out in the lobby of the Mineral Industries building.

Officials termed the results in the Liberal Arts student council elections as 25 per cent higher than last year's elections. When the polls closed yesterday, 116 of the 350 eligible to vote had cast their ballots.

Elections for the Liberal Arts student council are being carried on in the card room of the HUB in conjunction with the All-University elections.

A bigger turnout than last year in the balloting for posts on the Chem-Phys student council was declared by council officials. At 5 p.m. yesterday, 119 of the 580 eligible had voted. Last year, only 112 persons voted during the one day allotted to voting, an official said.

Elections for the Chem-Phys student council positions are being held in the lobby of Osmond laboratory.

Voting was slow at the polling place for the Education student council. When the polls closed yesterday, 106 of the 780 eligible had voted. Officials pointed out that this was more than cast last year during the one day voting. Elections for education student council representatives are being held in the card room of the HUB.

Approximately 200 of the 1100 persons eligible to vote in the Engineering and Architecture student council elections cast their ballots yesterday. Elections are being held in the lobby of the engineering building, and in the card room of the HUB.
