 preted by the rest of the cast.
 Here excelled the others of the east Clyde Gore was perfect as the chaplain, wistful in his search for evidence of youth, whose only love was his viol.

Here excelled John Stroud as the nose-dripping mayor, Hebble Tyson. Shuffling about, tending his white handkerchief, he was living as a man whose powers of leadership were on the decline.

Vail Excelled
 Here excelled Walter Vail as a broken old drunkard. Bearing the smallest part in the play, his one scene in the final act "brought down the house." It was meant to—and he did it.

John Thomas and Richard Colbert as the two brothers, Nicholas and Humphrey Devize, did a fine job with Thomas holding the edge. He provided many a laugh as the happy-go-lucky fellow with a touch of "madness" who tries to imitate the thoughts of his elder brother. Colbert fared well, especially in trying to proposition Jennet.

Patricia Cullen, playing the youths' mother with a world-weary air; Robert Shutt, as a "green" clerk who stumbled into love; Lowell Salmon, a pompous and tawdry judge, and Patricia Rubin, as a young nun with love on her mind, complete the actors. All were good.

Miss Rubin Overacts
 Miss Rubin suffered the same fault as Miss Stern, the heroine, in that she partially overacted her role; she was not so demure as she was brash.

The play's set with its open fireplace in the center and a high window through which the brothers often came leaping, was stark and clearly set the events.

A clever and beautiful play whose major theme was pointed out most strongly when Mendip offered up a yawn to disinterest in life, director Smith has brought some fine entertainment to the campus.

men's journalism honorary fraternity, chose the women for Cap Girl and Matrix Girl.

Miss Sedor, Cap Girl, was chosen for having the most varied activities. She was chosen from those women who have been recognized by a hat society.

Miss Koldys was chosen as Matrix Girl for outstanding service to the University without having been recognized by a hat society.

The members of Theta Sigma Phi presented a comedy skit on the University in 300 AES (After Earl Seely). At this time the University is no longer, but has returned to a farmer's high school.

The theme behind the skit is "Brush Up Your Shakespeare." Politics is not excluded as Adlai Stevenson becomes president of the school. Campus personalities also felt the touch of Theta Sig's wit. Roger Beidler, Elections Committee chairman, and Philip Beard, past All-University Secretary Treasurer, were among those who were lampooned in the skit.

He was referring to the University withholding the story of the patrol being disarmed and the burglary story until the two students were arraigned before State College Justice of the Peace Guy G. Mills last Thursday.

'Ridiculous on University's Part'
 "I think this is ridiculous on the University's part and it certainly has an obligation to the public," he said.

Wiegand refused to comment on the disarming action. However, the Centre Daily Times reported that "the University" described the assault and battery incident as "isolated" and said the union is trying to use it as a wedge for its pay demands. The union is seeking a salary increase from $15 to $20 a month, it was reported. The present salaries range from $235 to $245 a month for a 40-hour week.

In Lockheed's expanding research and development program

Both divisions of Lockheed are engaged in a long-range expansion program in their fields of endeavor.

California Division activities in Burbank cover virtually every phase of aircraft, both commercial and military. 46 major projects are in motion, including 13 models of aircraft in production—extremely high-speed fighters, jet trainers, commercial and military transports, radar search planes, patrol bombers. The development program is the largest and most diversified in the division's history.

New positions have been created for graduates in: Aeronautical, Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering and Mathematics and Physics.

Missile Systems Division, Van Nuys, California specializes in the technology of guided missiles. Its research and development cover virtually every field of scientific endeavor, and offer Engineers and Scientists problems of increasing complexity.

Positions are open for B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. candidates in: Aeronautical, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering and Mathematics and Physics. In addition, a scholarship program leading to M.S. Degrees has been established for those able to qualify for graduate standing.

This broad expansion program is creating new positions in each division.

Graduates in fields of Aeronautical Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Mathematics and Physics are invited to investigate their role in Lockheed's expansion.

Separate Interviews will be given for each division.
